DIPLOMATIC BLAST HURLED AT RUSSIA IN BRITISH NOTE

Charge 'Threat Of Overwhelming Force' To Prevent Peace

SERVES AS IRONIC REPLY TO STALIN'S STATEMENT

By Sydney Mirkin

London, Sunday, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Britain charged Russia today with using the "threat of overwhelming force" and "aggressive and subversive policies" throughout the world to prevent peace.

In a five-page note, Prime Minister Attlee's government threw the book the entire postwar record—at Moscow in answering a Soviet charge of Jan. 20 that Britain is violating the 1942 Anglo-Russian alliance by moving to rearm West Germany.

Coming promptly after Prime Minister Stalin's broadside in a Pravda interview against Britain, the United States and the United Nations, the British note was a ready-made reply to Stalin also.

The note, originally prepared for delivery next week, was handed to Soviet Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin last Saturday because it dealt directly with several points raised by the Stalin interview.

Virtually the only agreement found among western spokesmen and newspapers commenting on the interview was with Stalin's qualified statement that war is not ve[illegible]nevitable.

The reaction of French government spokesmen and Washington administration experts was that Stalin laid the groundwork for his eventual departure from the United Nations by his charge the UN is being turned into a tool of the United States and an "instrument of war."

Washington authorities made the added point that the Stalin objective in assailing Prime Minister Attlee as a slanderer of the Soviet Union was to stir up British leftists

CIRCUS INJURY PROVES FATAL

A. E. Selden, Who Did 'Flight Of Death' At Fair Here, Succumbs

His "Flight of Death" in which he had repeatedly starred to the amazement of eager and thrilled spectators, ultimately proved to be just what the name signified, when A. E. Selden, 61, was fatally injured in the annual winter fair in Fort Myers, Fla., on February 7. He died in a hospital there on February 12.

Special interest attaches to this man and his startling act as he was formerly with the Southern Valley shows and last October performed his feat at the Ouachita Valley fair in West Monroe.

His was a high pole act in which he slid off a pole onto a cable several hundred feet. In the fatal performance, his outfit in someway caught and threw him considerable distance earthward. He received a number of broken bones and lived but five days.

Manager John H. Birdsong, of the Ouachita Valley Fair Association, stated Saturday he was an exceptionally cleancut performer and a man of good habits.

Evidently realizing that his end was not too far off when here last fall he showed Mr. Birdsong the picture of his future grave in a city in Michigan on which he had a stone already erected and an engraving cut in the stone showed his daring circus act.

So far as known he leaves no close relatives.

Ban Fishing In Five Lakes, Bayous In Ouachita Parish

Fishermen of Ouachita parish received a rude jolt Saturday morning when they were informed that a parish ordinance outlaws fishing on five parish lakes and bayous from Feb. 15 through March 31.

The ordinance, number 5032, passed by the police jury in 1943, closes Bayou DeSiard, Phillips Bayou, Bayou Bartholomew, Lake Bartholomew and Horse Shoe Lake during the specified period, which coincides with the spawning season.

In recent years, the law had not been enforced and most anglers were unaware of its existence. It came to light as a result of the recent arrest of several men arrested for using illegal tackle while fishing on Bayou DeSiard. District Attorney Fred Fudikar, Jr., while checking local ordinances for specific charges, found the restriction in section three of the jury law.

"The reason that the law had not been enforced in past years," said Fudikar, "is frankly that it had never been brought to the attention of this office. At the present time, however, we have no choice but to enforce it. Any future action must come from the police jury."

A member of the jury explained that the law had not been enforced during the war years because of the meat shortage, when fish caught by sportsmen became an important part of their families' diets. After the war, he added, the ordinance was "pretty generally forgotten."

The ordinance was originally sponsored by sportsmen's and conservation groups and was passed by the jury after considerable discussion.

In explaining the ordinance, Fudickar stressed other restrictions on fishing in the bodies of water mentioned. Netting and seining for fish is illegal at all times except with the special permission of the Ouachita Game and Fishing Commission. Members of the commission board are J. A. Combs and O. N. McNeil. A third post on the board has not been filled to date.

Legal hours on the bayous and lakes specified in the ordinance are from one hour before sunrise to one hour after sunset. Catch limits are as follows:

Black bass, striped bass and barfish limit, ten, or a total of ten of all such species: minimum size: black bass, ten inches, stripped bass and barfish, seven inches; catch limit for white or speckled perch, 15; for bream, 50.

$5,000,000 Athletic Club Fire Kills Five

Others May Have Perished In Blaze At Denver Gymnasium; Fire Originates From Decorations

Denver, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Fire flaring up from paper decorations in a gymnasium gushed through the Denver Athletic Club today, killing at least five persons and injuring a score.

The club manager, Ralph E. Snell, said it might cost as much as $5,000,000 to replace the damage.

Firemen battling flames on the upper residence floors of the six story old brick building said they were "not sure" all persons had been counted for.

The flames sped like lightning through the structure after breaking out in the gymnasium where employes were putting up decorations for a celebration tonight.

The dead were trapped on the upper floors. Nine of the score of injured were hospitalized.

Firemen rescued many residents by running ladders to the windows but they couldn't reach J. C. Wild, 70.

Trapped on the top floor, Wild leaned out a window and screamed for help as smoke swirled about him. Finally he collapsed and fell backward, a hand dangling from the window. Then his hand vanished. A ladder crew found him dead.

The other dead included a chambermaid, Jane Meade; Jack

Prime Minister Stalin is the official candidate in all 16 republics making up the U.S.S.R. A holiday atmosphere permeated Moscow this evening with illuminated displays flashing from many buildings and slogans proclaiming the "glory of great Stalin." Huge pictures of the Soviet leader were ready to go up with the dawn tomorrow.

3 RESIGN FROM CONTROL BOARD

Labor Members Submit Written Resignations To President

By Max Hall

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The three labor members of the wage stabilization board carried their walkout a step further today by sending written resignations to President Truman, but the government did not abandon hope of bringing unions back into the wage control program.

Mr. Truman was out of town when the messages reached the White House. Whether he would ask the labor leaders to reconsider could not be learned.

The next important actions in the big squabble over labor's part in carrying out home-front controls were put off until next week, when tempers may be cooler.

Union leaders want a bigger voice in the defense program, and when the board voted 6-3 for a wage formula they didn't like, they seized the chance to dramatize their general grievances. The walkout of their representatives from the board was followed by a blast at the whole mobilization effort by the united labor policy committee.

Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston must sign the wage formula before it becomes effective. He studied the document today and postponed action.

Meantime here is a glance at other mobilization news:

2 Autos Damaged, Arkansan Held

Two parked automobiles were damaged Friday night when a 49-year-old Arkansas man, now charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and damage to property, hit the cars in the 1400 block of South Grand, reported Monroe Police officers.

W. M. McKissick, Bradley, Ark., hit the rear end of a 1950 Chevrolet belonging to J. Gene Williams, 211 Cypress, West Monroe, as it was parked next to the curb, knocking it approximately 30 feet, said officers. He then hit a 1940 Chevrolet, owned by Robert A. Warner, Monroe, which was parked in the same block.

McKissick was taken to the Wright-Bendel clinic where he was treated for a lacerated lip and minor cuts and bruises. He was placed under a $500 bond.

Kill-As-You-Go Tactics Now Employed Against Reds

By Russell Brines

Tokyo, Feb. 17.—(AP)—It's a different attack pattern United Nations forces are using in Korea now. They sweep the countryside clean of the enemy as they go.

GIs call it "operation broom." This is the third definite tactic employed against the Communists since the Korean War began June 25.

The first was purely defensive. The bitter, toe-hold defense of the Pusan perimeter to which Allied troops were knocked back by the weight of the North Korean invasion. Here it was a matter of plugging holes in the line with the scarce corks of manpower.

The second was the quick, ripping thrusts of armored columns in the breakout from the Pusan beachhead. With this was combined the rapier stroke of the simultaneous amphibious landing in the Inchon-Seoul area.

Now it's kill and wound Reds, tear down enemy strength, perhaps make the Communists search for peace. Winning back real estate is secondary.

There's no more bypassing of reluctant Red units that won't come out to fight. Now it's wipe out every Red pocket, then stand in lines as solid as manpower and terrain permit and wait behind massed firepower for the next reckless enemy attack.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway commander of the U.S. Eighth army, is running this kill-as-you-go show.

His methodical annihilation campaign has cost the Reds 106,666 casualties from ground action

STOKE TO JOIN TEACHER STUDY

Former L. S. U. President Will Conduct Work With Citizens' Commission

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Former Louisiana State University President Dr. Harold Stoke will conduct an extensive study of public school teachers and their role in American life, the national citizens commission for public schools announced today.

Dr. Stoke, who resigned as L. S. U. president last December, will work with a commission-named committee directed by Mrs. Barry Bingham of Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Bingham is vice-president of the Louisville Courier Journal and Times and a trustee of Radcliffe College.

Roy Larsen, president of Time, Inc., and chairman of the commission said, "since the commission was formed in 1949, its members have been very conscious of the fact that teachers not only determine the quality of any public school but also are among the most important figures in any democracy.

"The commission appointed the subcommittee headed by Mrs. Bingham to determine what the commission could do to help solve the problem of the tremendous shortage of qualified teachers in the United States public schools. Dr. Stoke will serve as director of the committee."

The commission has been concentrating on encouraging the organization of local community citizens committees to work for a better system of public schools. The commission is partially financed from the general education board, the Carnegie corporation and the New York community trust.

Other committee members include Larsen; Stuart Bradley, executive board member of the Louisiana education foundation; James Brownlee, general partner of J. H. Whithey and company; Mrs. Bruce Gould, editor of the Ladies Home Journal; Mrs. Samuel Lewisohn, trustee of Vassar College; Mrs. Agnes Meyefn, Washington Post reporter on social problems and member of the president's committee on higher education; Harry Scherman, founder of the Book of - the - Month Club; Dr. Karl Menninger, Menninger foundation; and Fred Hoehler, director of the department of public welfare for Illinois.

Dr. Stoke resigned as L. S. U. president after serving three and one half years. He was succeeded by former Comptroller Troy Middleton.

His resignation followed policy

'HAMS' MAPPING DEFENSE PLANS

Appoint Committee Of Amateur Radio Operators To Study Situation

Members of the Ouachita Valley Amateur Radio Club — who provided communication here when telegraph and telephone lines were down during the recent seige of ice and snow—have taken steps to assist in setting up an adequate civil defense program for this vicinity.

The club appointed a committee to study the problems of communication and to set up plans which would best serve the community should an attack come. This was done at a recent bi-monthly meeting of the club at the West Monroe recreation center.

The session was conducted by T. C. Pipes, recently elected president of the group.

A class for those increasing their code—receiving sped and those learning the code was conducted before the club met.

Among those attending were: Bernie Wilenzich, Marvin Hill, Edgar Brown, Howard Griffith, E. D. "Red" Wells, F. D. Wells, Bill Bell, T. C. "Buck" Pipes, Jack Gaines, Jack Hover, James Hutto, M. L. Phillips, Jess Hilton, and J. M. Brooks.

Visitors included Lou Herring, of Jackson, Miss., R. E. Jones and V. L. Shelby of Monroe.

The club will meet again Thursday, and all those interested in amateur radios are invited to attend.

REGISTRATION AT NORTHEAST GAINS

Present Enrollment Stands At 540 Or 68 Per Cent Over Last Year

Enrollment for the spring semester at Northeast Louisiana State College reached the 540 mark Saturday noon, announced B. S. Hammer, registrar. This number represents an increase of about 68 per cent over the enrollment of the second semester last year.

According to registration figures, students entering colleges for the first time and transfer students from other colleges or universities comprise over 16 per cent of those enrolling this spring.

Veterans registering represent 16 per cent of the total number enrolled at Northeastern. Veterans comprised only 10 per cent of the student body of last year's second semester figures. This shows a considerable increase in the number of GI's normally attending.

A great deal of interest also has been seen in the enrollment of teachers who have scheduled classes that would assist them in their special programs of work or who have enrolled to earn additional college hours leading toward a bachelor's degree.

Trailer courses were offered this spring to enable students entering as freshmen to carry a regular schedule of studies.

Thirty-three junior and senior subjects supplemented courses already offered. Special emphasis has been given to classes in education, fine arts, business administration and science.

Long Hints He'll Be Candidate For Lt. Governorship

New Orleans, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long said today he will be a candidate for lieutenant governor in next year's election, with two provisos.

These are his health and his ability to get "a good honest man of unquestioned integrity to run" for governor.

Long named four he has "in mind" — John Doles, the Plain Dealing, La., banker who managed U. S. Sen. Russell B. Long's campaign; S. L. Digby, conservation commissioner; Dr. Robert Bernhard, charity hospital director and Long's personal physician and U. S. Sen. Allen J. Ellender.

The governor left out the name of Lt. Gov. William J. Dodd. When asked about Dodd, Long said "Dodd doesn't want to be governor."

Dodd was not immediately available for comment.

Long added in an interview "I never want to be governor again. There'd be no strings attached to my running (for lieutenant governor). All I would want to do would be to help a good man to be a good governor and take some of the load off his shoulders.

"I know I would have been helped a lot if I had someone as lieutenant governor who knows as much about the job as I do."

DEATH CAR IS FOUND IN N. O.

Body Of Florida Constable Found Near Mobile; No Arrests Yet

New Orleans, Feb. 17.—(AP)—A blood-stained automobile believed to be owned by Florida Constable Luther T. Hardison, who was found shot to death near Mobile early today, was discovered on a downtown street here early tonight.

The license plates and the description of the car checked with the car driven by Hardison. Handcuffs and a blackjack were found in the car. A constable's sign was hanging on the sun visor.

New Orleans police said "It looks like someone has been murdered in this car." They added that some of Hardison's papers were in the car.

Hardison's bullet - riddled body was found in a roadside ditch near Mobile early today. The strapping-middle aged man was identified by Mobile County Sheriff William H. Holcombe.

The car was found parked in front of a tavern. The tavern operator said the car was not parked in front of his establishment when he left at midnight, but it was there when he returned at 6 a. m. today.

The tavern operator said he became alarmed when he noticed smears on the car which looked like blood stains.

GAIN TWO MILES

High American Officer Says 'We Are Not Going To Giveup Chechon'

ENEMY WITHIN 4 MILES OF THREATENED VILLAGE

Tokyo, Sunday, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Chinese and North Koreans today drove through a blizzard to within four miles of Chechon in a new attack against the Allied east flank in central Korea.

A.P. Correspondent John Randolph said the attackers advanced two miles at the outset of the new push on Chechon, mountainous gateway to South Korea.

In a frontline dispatch, Randolph reported the attack was made in at least division strength, with another division nearby in support.

An enemy division's strength is roughly 5,000.

Saturday, elements of three North Korean divisions were repulsed by artillery and counter-attacking infantrymen in attempts to turn the Allied flank at Chechon.

"We are not going to let them take Chechon," said a high American staff officer on the central front.

This officer, who declined use of his name, told AP Correspondent William J. Waugh Saturday night the Fifth North Korean corps, with an estimated 10,000 to 20,000 men, was spearheading the thrusts against Chechon.

Lead elements reached within three miles of that town before the Americans leaped into action and hurled the enemy back two miles.

South Koreans who had fallen back six miles before Chechon Saturday afternoon reported late Sat-

OAK GROVE MAN HELD IN THEFT

Apprehended In Ruston After Monroe Service Station Robbed

An apparent over-anxiety for ready cash was instrumental in bringing about the arrest of an Oak Grove man in Ruston yesterday after he cashed a stolen check at the Rose Oil Company in Monroe.

W. G. Caston, 29, is in the parish jail under a charge of robbery. Police said he robbed Sikes Service Station, at the corner of 18th street and Louisville avenue, of $93 in cash and an endorsed $43 check.

Caston was apprehended in Ruston.

According to police, Caston walked into the service station around noon today, and while the proprietor serviced a car, took the money and check from the register.

Driving into West Monroe, Caston cashed the check and headed toward Ruston, police asserted.

Identification of the arrested man was made by the station owner and a Rose Oil Company employe.

Welfare Groups In Korea To Follow Single Command

Tokyo, Feb. 17. —(AP)— All civilian welfare groups in Korea must operate under United Nations command pooling their supplies and personnel, and not acting as independent organizations, a spokesman for General McArthur said tonight.

He thus explained a complaint by the league of Red Cross societies at Geneva that Red Cross workers in Korea were not permitted to wear Red Cross insignias.

Actually, he said, welfare personnel must wear prescribed uniform with the United Nations shoulder patch, but it may show the identity of their parent organization.

The disagreement concerns not insignia, but the larger question of independet or unified operation by all civilian welfare organizations.

Three-man Red Cross teams from Canada, Britain, Denmark, Norway and the United States have arrived in Tokyo and others are en route, but only two Canadians and a Dane have gone to Korea.

The others are still in Tokyo, waiting to see whether the Red Cross can operate separately in Korea, the spokesman said.

The international refugee organization and several other groups have recruited staff personnel and aid under the unified policy, he added.

"However," he declared, "representatives of the league of Red Cross societies in this theater have

OFFICERS IN AIR PATROL SLATED

Capt. Hover, Monroe Squadron, Advised Of Visit Here Monday

According to Lieut. Chas. Stratford, public information officer of the local civil air patrol, word received this morning by Captain Jack Hover commanding officer of the Monroe squadron, stated that the air commissioner and several other officers will be in Monroe Monday night to attend the regular meeting of the local squadron.

It is expected that some important information will be given to the Monroe officers and members of the C. A. P. regarding what is expected of them during any type of emergency for home defense. At Shreveport recently, a large scale mock program was directed by the Civil Air Patrol during which a city in Louisiana was attacked by atom bomb.

The civil air patrol immediately went into action with hospital supplies, doctors, stretchers, blankets, tents, food supplies, ambulances, short wave radios, air to ground communication, and dozens of other necessarw equipment to relieve suffering and save life. It has been reported that "operation AB" was in every way successful and the civil air patrol stands ready to cooperate with local or national authorities whenever needed.

It is expected that some inside information on governmental plans pertaining to "home defense" including support of the local civil air patrol and definite plans for operation of the CAP in the future. All officers, members, and cadets are requested to be at the meeting held in the naval reserve building on Monday night at 7:30 p.m.

SEEK BIG BLOOD BANK IN STATE

McClendon States His Office Is Ready To Record Blood Types Of All Desirous

Two factors—the department of veterans' affairs and the ability of World War II veterans to remember their blood types—may make Louisiana the first state with an emergency blood reservoir for whole blood transfusions.

H. B. McClendon, Ouachita parish service officer, said Saturday that his office would record the blood types of any person who wished to join the blood reservoir, whether veteran or non-veteran.

"World War II veterans were decided upon by State Civil Defense Director Wm. J. "Bill" Dodd as the most logical people to ask first," McClendon said, "simply because all of them had their blood types stamped on their dog tags."

The "blood reservoir" would be a list of the names and addresses of blood type "O" persons who are willing to donate blood during an emergency. The possibility of atomic explosions prompted the civil defense board to act.

Joseph L. Golsan, director of veterans' affairs, has announced that service officers in every parish will cooperate in the task.

"We have surveyed several of the parish service offices and find that some of our officers want to expand on the idea, and blood type all contacts, so that the parishes will have a 'distaster supply' of blood. This could be obtained quickly after tornadoes, floods, fires, or any other natural disturbances."

McClendon said that type 'O' or universal blood could be used for any transfusion. He quoted civil defense figures as estimating that 45 per cent of the population has type 'O' blood. And he added:

"It has been estimated that 288,000 pints of whole blood would be needed in the three weeks following an atomic bomb explosion in a population center the size of Baton Rouge or Shreveport."

Volunteer donors are urged to telephone or contact McClendon at Room 204, Parish Courthouse, Monroe, La., to add their names to the blood reservoir list.

NEW DORMS ARE NOW OCCUPIED

Tech Men Moving Into Fine New Buildings On Campus

Ruston, Feb. 17.—(Special)—The first of 209 Louisiana Tech men students began Wednesday to move into the two new dormitories located west of the college stadium.

"Moving day" for these men was under the supervision of S. X. Lewis and Berry Hinton, assistant deans of men here. W. L. Mitchell, Tech dean of men, said most of the men students would be moved into the new dormitories by Friday.

Barracks two and three will be vacated by this weekend in order that housing accommodations will be available for high school basketball players coming here Friday and Saturday, Dean Mitchell said. Barracks one will be vacated at a later date, he said.

To be eligible to move into one of the new dormitories a student must have more than 45 hours credit, Dean Mitchell said. Those with less than 45 hours will be housed in the other three Tech dormitories. Each student will have his choice of dormitories once his elibibility is established.

Serving as faculty counselors for students in the two new dormitories will be professors John Winters and R. O. Trout, both of the social science department. They will reside in the new buildings and will advise student residents concerning college life.

Each of the new dormitories consists of 49 rooms, with accommodations for three men to the room, or a total of 147 students in each building.

Each room is equipped with a lavatory, one double-deck bed, a single bed, two clothes closets and study tables.

Contributors To Culture

Life membership in the National Institute of Arts and Letters has just been awarded to five writers, four artists and a composer, bringing the total up to 238 of a maximum limit of 250. Some of these are well known, others less familiar to the general public.

The extent of popular awareness has nothing to do with their selection. The sole criterion is whether they are regarded as having made a permanent contribution to American culture.

Two of the new members are women: Leonie Adams, poet, and Clare Leighton, printmaker, illustrator and sometimes writer. The four others selected primarily as writers are Kenneth Burke, philosopher, novelist and critic, author of "White Oxen" and "Counter-Statement"; Lionel Trilling, essayist, critic and teacher; Louis Kronenberger, essayist, critic and biographer, and John Van Druten, author of more than 25 plays, including "I Remember Mama," "The Voice of the Turtle" and "Bell, Book and Candle."

The three other artists are Henry Kreis, sculptor, whose work adorns numerous Washington buildings; Peter Blume, painter, whose painting, "South of Scranton," caused a furor and now hangs in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and Everett Shinn, painter whose works are in many galleries of New York and other cities. The composer is Henry Cowell, active in many musical fields.

What must be highly gratifying to most of these new life members who replace Sinclair Lewis, Walter Damrosch, Edna St. Vincent Millay and others who have passed from the scene, is that recognition comes to them early enough in life to affird them years of its enjoyment. Five of the ten are in their 40s, four others under the age of 54.

Only one can be accounted old, and that is Everett Shinn, now 74, a native of New Jersey. His paintings are in leading galleries throughout the country, including the Metropolitan. He was one of "the eight" who fought the academicians nearly half a century ago, but was elected to the National Academy in 1942. However belated it be, he can wear this new honor well.

Written Treasure

In the course of a few weeks, two American universities have become the beneficiaries of great literary estates. Yale, under his will, is to get all of Sinclair Lewis' manuscripts, books, papers and pictures. Princeton has received the manuscripts and letters of F. Scott Fitzgerald, and now Booth Tarkington's widow has sent to Princeton, in accordance with her husband's wish, similar material.

There is a special sentimental significance to these gifts, inasmuch as the three authors were undergraduates of their respective colleges. Insufficient time has elapsed since the death of Lewis for his collection to reach New Haven. Therefore its nature and extent is unknown. But Tarkington and Fitzgerald were indefatigable savers of their manuscripts, correspondence and other memorabilia, so what Princeton has received is of the widest scope and volume.

These are treasures not so much in the financial sense, as for their present working value for students. To see how successful authors wrote, changed, reworte and put in final shape their stories cannot fail to be instructive. The manuscript is more enduring than the printed word. The writing accomplishments of the three donors will be held in pride and honor at the two universities which gave them so much.

Power Road Projects

Government spending, and taxing, for defense will have the effect of drastically curtailing new [illegible] projects this year. High cost of labor and materials—if not actual shortages—will be insurmountable obstacles that will cause cancellation of many plans for new roads and rebuilding jobs.

Many states had made plans for [illegible] highways copied after the Pennsylvania Turnpike, a toll road which bisects the Keystone State, and similar modern highways. Few of these will be undertaken this year. More noticeable to the average motorist, however, will be a slackening in repair work on present roads. Some are not in condition and will get worse.

A Colyumist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear Mr. W.: Wasn Sugar Ray Robinson thrilling? You shoulda seen it on television! Don't miss the kinescope. He will surely be, Dan Parker told me, one of the greatest middleweight champions of all time . . . Sugar was so proud to be named part of The Runyon Fund Committee. When called to the microphones the first thing he talked about was The Fund's latest $25,000 check to U. of Chicago. The plan to have him present it to the university representatives (just before the fight) went awry. Don't know who "stopped" that—but what matter? . . . Mr. LaMotta had us all very worried for eight rounds. I kept thinking how he was losing for 15 rounds in his fight with Villemain —to win in the final moments with a kayo. Whew! . . . The Champ will be in Miami March 1st.

Tommy Manville phoned. If he said, he goes to Las Vegas (as planned), he couldn't make a settlement on his 8th wife. To pay her anything, she must divorce him. Otherwise its a gift and gets all involved with taxes. They are getting a legal sep. this wk. and she has started to move out of their New Rochelle shack. He is paying alimony pending any abrogation.

Michigan florists angry with you for announcing "no flowers, please" for Eddy Duchin's funeral services. Ignoring the fact that thw widow requested it and so advertised in obit columns before you ran it. Ignoring, too, that you invented "Orchids to You!" (decades ago), which enriched florists everywhere. . . You can deny the rumors that Lou Ruppel is leaving Collier's. The circ is up over 100,000 since he took over, and last week he got a substantial raise. Says he's never been happier.

Post Publisher Dorothy Schiff amused over the two sets of initials wooing her. Says she's never been anywhere with J. H. but always found W. A. most chomming. She chuckled that no beau in years has asked her to marry —and that you didn't get the initials of the one suitor she may wed.

The Kefauver hearings in New Orleans the other day failed to uncover a piquant story about the way the Costello crowd moved in there in the first place. . . . Huey Long was being blackmailed by a gal and couldn't straighten it out. . . . Prof. Costello fixed up the Whole Thing with a phone call and The Kingfish said Frank Costello could have anything he wanted in Louisiana. . . . The newspapers still don't know what the Kefauver pipple asked Mr. C. . . . They keep saying it was "the $64 question". . . The big query was: "How much money have you?"

I think you should make clear why Howard University got only $10,000 from The Runyon Fund this time while U. of Cal. and U. of Chi got $25,000 each. It is Howard's 2nd allocation (the other being a $25,000 check) and many others haven't been given their 2nd allocation yet. We are not very far from the $5,000,000 mark, you know, and this is only Feb. of the 4th year!

Boston critics (all of them), raved about Marc Connolly's revival of "The Green Pastures." The opening night mechanical failures, said E. N., "marred it" but it "glowed with wonder and beauty," etc. . . The Herald Trib. moved up its announcement of Howard Barnes' resignation when it found out its well kept secret was known to you. . . In the B'klyn bookie scandal (you can safely say) I am told that at least 50 will be jailed when the lid is blown sky high next week or sooner.

she was honored by the French Resistance Group (The Maquis) for concealing their fighters (in the underground) during the Nazi occupation. Giving them money, etc. And did not own any night club during the occupation, as Salvador's mgr. Bernheim viciously cabled. She married a resistance captain in 1946, and this (says Sam) would not have been possible without them all being satisfied that she was a true French patriot. Also that M'seer Salvador (for whom Bernheim his mgr., speaks) probably was, too. But Salvador (says Sam) never had a chance to prove that, having spent the entire war in So. America as an entertainer. also that she appeared with Salvador on radio programs in France recently — so what's this hokum now disowning her? How low can some people get?

Interesting twosomes around town: Betty Betz and Arnold Gingrich, the mag biggie, and Arthur Goldsmith (currently Pegler's current Bete Noir) and Tobe of the fashion set . . . The town's music and magazine world is howling at the Life and Time stories on Herr Bing of the Met-opera. The legend is that Henry Luce ordered the big whitewash. The fact is the two hits at the Met this season so far (as performances) had nuttin' to do with Bing. Patrice Munsel was one star Bing ordered dropped from the roster until various impresarios personally pleaded for her. The other great hit, Siepi, was a replacement when the Bulgarian basso, Christov, couldn't get a visa . . . Life's piece fails to mention "The Flying Dutchman" one of the great Mr. Bing's costliest flopasettics. It fails to say, too, that attendances have been way off (for "Don Carlos"), despite the fact that Life calls it a success.

Eddie Cantor gets his 9th article in three months soon via Esquire . . . A must-get is RCA-Vic's great "Treasury of Immortal Performances" with Caruso, Ponselle, McCormack, and other greats . . . S&S phoned. Said you'd be thrilled learning the total sales on the four pocket-size books by Runyon since June '42. The total: 2,910,000! "We will never see his like again," postscripts Max Lincoln Schuster . . . He also says you contracted with them in 1927 to write a book and you ain't very punctual. Just, I assume, punc. (joke over) . . . Query: Is Cleveland Armory's next devastating expose to be about Palm Beach . . . Elmer Rice had "Not for Children" in his trunk since 1934— so he is revising it now

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

ANOTHER TANGLE IN THE WEB

It would seem that no more is the question of loyalty raised than up comes a tangled web of intrigue to keep things quiet and off the record. The Tydings committee was used for that purpose in spite of the fact that Senator Tydings and his counsel, Edward Morgan, had all the facts of the Amerasia case.

I happen to be a lover of the navy and as such, I want to protest against the utilization of the fine name and great character of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz as a cover-up for disloyalty. It must be obvious from what will follow that the president's commission on internal security and invididual rights is doing just that. And I shall quote from Admiral Nimitz establishing the fact.

I am quoting from a report in the "New York Herald Tribune" by one of its Washington correspondents, Robert J. Donovan. It seems that the "Herald Tribune" Washington bureau telephoned to Admiral Nimitz, who was in California, to inquire about this new commission which was organized to run interference with the McCarran committee of congress.

Now, it appears from what Admiral Nimitz said that Donald S. Dawson, assistant to the president, is really in charge of this commission, hiring the staff, including, I assume, the counsel. There are rumors afoot that it is intended to employ as counsel, Edward Morgan, who served the Tydings committee, which did such an outrageous whitewashing job that Senator Tydings was defeated in his campaign for re-election last November on that issue alone. Edward Morgan was also related to the whitewash of those really responsible for Pearl Harbor.

Donald S. Dawson is in a lot of trouble, having been named as one of the operators in the use of undue influence in relation to the reconstruction finance corporation which Senator Fulbright is investigating. While he is in the president's office, his wife, Alva Dawson, is acting as in charge of the general files of the RFC. The Fulbright committee deals with this development in the RFC since Jesse Jones was forced out of there after doing magnificent service for his country. It is to be recalled that Jesse Jones advocated the abolition of the RFC.

About Senator Fulbright's investigation much will be said, but it is to be expected that a government employe is loyal not to Harry Truman or to the Democratic party but to the United States of America.

When the name of Admiral Nimiz was used to give this commission a good front, it was suspected in many quarters that the president feared the consequences of a first-rate investigation by Senator McCarran.

But nobody assumed that the organizing of the commission was being done in the White House and by Donald S. Dawson, who is himself under investigation by the Fulbright committee.

Admiral Nimitz was apparently informed over the telephone of the various suspicions concerning his commission. Of this, he said:

"That is outside my field. I assume that something like this endeavor is necessary because it was ordered. If I am given a job to do, I go ahead and do it."

That might be all right for a shavetail; it is not a correct position for a man of Admiral Nimitz's stature. Millions of Americans believe in him, as they believe in General Ike Eisenhower. They trust these men because they have sacrificed themselves and risked much for their country. It is assumed that they are, by nature and vocation, non-political and that they have no personal ambitions other than to serve their country.

Therefore, when such a man is used to front for a job that is actually being done by Donald S. Dawson, who is being accused by Senator Fulbright's committee of bringing politics and favor into the RFC, it is not in the public interest.

Why is Dawson in this at all? We know from experience with the Nye committee and the La Follette committee that improper counsel and improper investigations can so confuse a situation that the big men who sit behind mahogany desks and bang gavels do not always know what evils are committed in their names.

So, this commission on loyalty is in the White House and is being run by Dawson, and Admiral Nimitz is in this because he is "given a job to do."

That ought not to be good enough for Admiral Nimitz. Certainly, it is not good for the American people.

New York Day By Day

New York—Billy Seeman, the White Rose food packer who also owns a nose-cure called Airwick, got lonesome in "21" Club recently, picked up a phone and put in a shore-to-ship call for his tennis pal Frank Hunter who was deep-sea fishing from Dan Topping's boat. As usual, said radio-call was overheard by all vessels at sea, and reception was especially clear to their mutual buddy, Leatherneck Maj. Harry Dash, who was at the wheel of his own yacht then chugging along the Jersey coast.

Said Seeman to Hunter when contact was established: "Frank, I got nobody to talk to here. Tell me that story about the U. S. marine and the mermaid again."

Major Dash let go of his yacht's controls, grabbed the radiophone and yelled to Hunter hundreds of miles away: "Frank, Frank, holy cats, don't tell that—story over the air, or the—FCC will be looking for you." Thus Major Dash, who got so worked up trying to caution his friends about their language is wondering whether the FCC is now looking for him.

Forward Passes—to Judy Holliday: Hard-headed movie businessmen are now playing hunches. Chief reason your "Born Yesterday" was premiered in Broadway's Victoria Theater—is that Columbia's Academy Award winner last year, "All The King's Men," got its first N. Y. unreeling in the same theater. . . . To Noel Coward; Doubleday is looking for someone to dramatize their new Thorndike-Barnhart Dictionary—so they can have a play on words. . . . To Drama Editors: Gene Tierney and John Lund contribute so much enjoyment to Paramount's forthcoming "The Mating Season," that I felt like sitting through another preview of this "sleeper." It's excellent.

Perjurers Rate: Two alarming facts failed to surface for public notice throughout perjurer William Remington's trials:

(1) When Elizabeth Bentley first indicated her suspicions of Remington, the latter was at that moment in charge of material priorities for Russia on an important Washington committee; and

(2) During the FBI's investigation of his loyalty, Remington was working inside the White House on Averell Harriman's European reconstruction program.

Of course, everybody now knows where the infamous Alger Hiss was all that time.

Short Circuit: Frank Reilly, renowned artist and professor for New York's Art Students League, that favorite study hall of talented giants like James Montgomery Flagg, Dean Cornwell, Otto Soglow, Norman Rockwell, et al., guided his water-color class to a park meadow the other day for some landscape daubing. Noting how badly the scene was littered with peanut bags, he suggested that his understudies could improve matters by "picking up aything in sight that wasn't growing." As two jesting pupils feinted in the direction of a beauteous bobby-soxer that chanced by, Reilly topped their joke with: "That's still growing." . . . The Bicycle Institute of America tapped Margaret Newman's "Venetian Blind" skirt as milady's best of the year for bike-pedaling. It can be raised or lowered by novel string-pulling, and look especially fetching on Betty Grable with the "shades up" for dancing.

BASCOM TIMMONS

At a time when Communists and ex-Communists are ducking and dodging pointed questions as to their present and former affiliations, it is interesting to find one here who while holding a responsible position, has inspired such confidence in his associates that they give him a large share of the credit for the selection of Michel I Di Salle, mayor of Toledo, as director of the office of price stabilization.

Such a man is Eddie Cheyfitz, one time Toledo union official, for some years an assistant to Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America. Johnston is now on loan to the U. S. government as head of the economic stabilization administration.

"Sure I was a Communist," says Cheyfitz. "I quit the party when I found out what sort of a deal I'd gotten into. When the house committee on un-American activities called me on the phone to ask about my party affiliation I told them all about it, and that it was completely washed up. I suppose the FBI checked me too. But neither of them gave me any trouble. I guess they were satisfied that I was telling the truth."

He was at one time president of the Die Casters' Union in Toledo, where Mayor DiSalle, one of the more forward looking city heads in the U. S., set up the Toledo management conference to iron out the serious differences between management and labor in that highly industrialized area. Cheyfitz was having his own difficulties in C. I. O. He had tossed in his Communist party card in 1937 but he knew what the Commies were trying to do in C. I. O., and he worked with DiSalle to resist their efforts. It wasn't easy, for Toledo at one time had 90,000 people on relief. War contracts revived the city's production, and its factories are now back on a normal production and employment schedule.

William Hard, a veteran writer on labor and economic subjects, now on the staff of Readers' Digest had encountered Eddie Cheyfitz, on numerous occasions, regarded him highly and told Eric Johnston about him when Johnston was seeking an adviser to help him with the labor problems of the movie industry. So Cheyfitz came to work for Johnston several years ago.

When the present emergency developed and President Truman was beating the bushes for a price stabilizer, he turned to Johnston urging the movie czar to accept the job. But Johnston didn't want it. Cheyfitz said he could recommend a good man and mentioned his old friend, Mayor DiSalle. That is how the roly-poly little administrator came to Washington.

That was only the start. Charles E. Wilson came in as director of the office of defense production and clashed with Alan Valentine, then director of the office of economic stabilization and Valentine quit. Wilson's main idea was to set up a harmonious group to direct our productive facilities and economic stabilization was a key job. DiSalle was one of those who urged him to call on Johnston, and this time Johnston gave in.

So for "the duration" the Motion Picture Association which represents one of the country's biggest businesses, will be run by Eddie Cheyfitz, Joyce O'Hara, former U. S. Chamber of Commerce official and Cecil B. Dickson, former Texas newspaperman.

Cheyfitz's story presents a gratifying contrast to that of the "fellow traveling 11", the group of screen writers from Hollywood who have either been sentenced to jail for contempt of congressional in-

TROOP COMMITMENTS

Consistent with sound military strategy and security regulations, majority editorial opinion favors some practical and continuing policy of congressional and executive collaboration on Atlantic pact troop commitments. A considerable minority of editors favors an open and definite congressional limitation on the sending of troops to Europe. While a slightly larger minority argues that any deployment of troops, especially under the Atlantic treaty, is an executive responsibility requiring no congressional approval, or, at most, only a general approval of the basic policy involved.

Wichita (Kans.) Eagle (Ind.): "Senator Taft's insistent demands that the number of troops the United States sends to western Europe must be determined by congress are made in defense of the constitutional right of congress to have the last say in matters pertaining to war or preparedness for war. He contends that the matter should not be entirely in the hands of the president, but should be left to the final, and perhaps better, judgment of congress itself. . . . Ratio of American and European troops is the matter to be determined, Taft insists, before the United States goes all out . . . to rearm western Europe."

Charlotte (N. C.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "It is within the president's constitutional prerogatives to move troops about, and he must be free to do so according to the dictates of military strategy and tactics. . . . Senators Taft, Knowland and Ferguson, leaders of the fixed ratio campaign, are seeking to dictate a basically military policy. . . . This newspaper has confidence in the nation's military leadership, and especially in General Eisenhower. We prefer to leave this matter in his hands, and we rather suspect that most Americans feel the same way."

Peoria (Ill.) Journal (Ind.): "It is easy to see that a definite restriction upon the number of soldiers this country would supply might be dangerous in the event of a sudden emergency. . . . We do agree with Senator Taft, however, the congress should have more to say about our entry into foreign entanglements. . . . The United States needs a better guarantee of stability in our foreign affairs than we can get from President Truman and Secretary Acheson. . . . Congress should insist on a greater voice in the extent to which we become involved . . . in Europe."

Columbia (S. C.) Record (Ind.-Dem.): "The deployment of troops either to win a war or to prevent one is a military problem and the president will commit no troops to Europe without the advice of the military commanders. And by the same logic the congress should not attempt to invade the field of military strategy. The problem of the congress is simply to determine whether American ground and other forces shall be sent to Europe, to decide whether the basic plan is sound and then to leave the details of its operation to the military leaders."

Chicago Tribune (Ind.): "There is no slightest reason to believe General Eisenhower when he says now that the American contribution of troops will be relatively small. . . . The token army . . . the principal spokesmen for this administration . . . now talk about is the prelude to the huge American army they intend to send into the colossal war they expect to fight. The only remedy lies in the adoption of the Wherry resolution which says that no American foot soldiers may be sent to

Mile-a-minute melodrama with an Italian background that should win applause from action fans. . . . Fair: Columbia's "A Yank in Korea" (Lon McCallister-William Phillips). A formula war picture, better done than most. . . . Warner Brothers' "The Groom Wore Spurs" (Ginger Rogers-Jack Carson-Joan Davis-Stanley Ridges-James Brown). Added proof that a contrived, uninteresting story can outweigh the abilities of a top-flight cast. . . . Low Bridge: "Hue and Cry" (Alastair Sim-Jack Warner-Valerie White). A boresome British-made offering that should have been scuttled in mid-Atlantic. . . . Best performance: Jane Wyman in "Three Guys Named Mike."

Here's a little "situation" that should appeal to those of you who have a taste for irony. Some years ago a young actor named George Duryea enjoyed a brief success in dramatic roles, then, having been inactive for some time, decided, very reluctantly, to hide his identity under the name, Tom Keene, and try his hand at cowboy heroics. As Tom Keene, he starred in a number of horse operas. With his bank account replenished, his dislike for westerns became overpowering and he decided to set-up shop again as a dramatic actor. And again he changed his name, this time to Richard Powers, in an effort to "live down" his connection with the class of films he had been making. Now comes the irony. Those old westerns have been purchased for television, and "Tom Keene," the cowboy star, is a decided hit with TV fans. Richard Powers, despite a few good performances, is having very tough sledding as a dramatic actor.

Time was when Hollywoodites returning from Europe, had interesting comments to make about things encountered there. That was before Ingrid Bergman took up residence in Rome. Now, every picture worker who has spent a few days in Italy, seems to feel duty-bound to give Hollywood columnists a first hand report on Ingrid's appearance. According to one, she's thin and unhappy; according to the next she's just the proper weight, looks years younger and radiates happiness. And all of the reports seem to find their way into print. Personally, I'm getting awfully bored with the matter of Ingrid Bergman's appearance.

According to a Hollywood trade paper, Peter Lawford, locationing in Australia, was asked how many Commies there are in Hollywood, and promptly answered: "About as many as there are idiots." I think a line of reassurance is in order. Actually, things aren't nearly that bad here.

Looking Ahead

IN WASHINGTON

Washington—John L. Lewis is understood to be considering withdrawing from Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson's labor advisory committee on the ground that labor has been sidetracked in defense planning.

The miner's chief is not represented on the wage stabilization board or on the united labor policy committee which the A. F. L., C. I. O. and railroad unions have created.

Peace, Sort Of

Washington. —AP— Treasury and federal reserve officials have effected a sort of guarded truce in their fight over interest rates while trying behind the scenes to get at least a working agreement that will end public feuding.

Now some officials who are parties to the truce are saying the agencies aren't so very far apart and that it should not be hard to get some understanding before May, when the next decision on DBT-refinancing is due.

Used Cars

Washington —AP— The administration's proposal to boost the manufacturers' tax on new automobiles from 7 to 20 per cent raises the question of a tax on the sale of used cars at retail.

If the cost of a new car to the purchaser rises several hundred dollars, used cars will seem more attractive, but there would be an obvious enforcement problem in attempting to collect a sales tax from thousands of used car dealers—let alone on private man-to-man swaps.

Rail Union Split?

Washington —AP— There's a chance that one or more of the railroad operating unions locked in bitter dispute with the railroads over a 40-hour week, wage increases and operating rules may split away and make a separate agreement.

Behind the scenes there is considerable friction among leaders of the four unions.

Transportation Czar?

Washington —AP— Defense Mobilizer Wilson is wrestling with the problem of whether to get himself an adviser on transportation or to use a committee representing government agencies such as the interstate commerce commission and civil aeronautics board (CAB.)

The advisory job, whether by one man or a committee, will cover warehouses and other storage as well as transportation.

D. W. Rentzel, CAB chairman, is mentioned for the job along with Maj. Ben. Philip B. Fleming of the maritime commission.

Fox-Hole U.

Washington —AP— The U. S. armed forces institute hasn't noted much of an increase in applications for its correspondence courses but expects one as soon as draftees finish their basic training and have a little time to call their own.

Long-Haul Jets?

Washington —AP— First indication of really long range in a jet fighter is a report that the air force has ordered "pulsating" seats installed in the Republic F-84-E Thunderjet.

This all-purpose fighter is going to European countries through mutual assistance programs as well as being used in Korea, Europe and the United States.

Pulsating seats relieve pressure for pilots who must remain in one position for a long time.

Rugged

Washington —AP— Four senate investigators became G. I. recruits—and not by choice—when they were rushed down to Lackland, Tex., air base to prove complaints of overcrowding, lack of uniforms, shelter and other things.

Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D.-Tex.) of the senate preparedness subcommittee had the four draw GI clothing, sleep outdoors in unheated tents and eat every meal at a different mess hall.

The result is a sizzling report to be released tomorrow (Monday). The investigators were Mark Galusha, Horace Busby, John Connaly and Lyon Tyler.

Wage Board Woes

Washington—AP—The wage stabilization board may soon fall victim to Washington's perennial space crisis.

The board, planning to double its size from nine to 18 members soon, is finding itself squeezed out of the hard-worn "temporary E" building of World War I by the even faster expanding office of price stabilization.

The wage board is quietly dickering with Secretary of Labor Tobin's staff for a floor in the much handsomer labor department building.

Airman Hayward

Washington —AP— People who think the air force has enough glamor may wonder at its decision to hire Leland Hayward, producer of such Broadway hits as "Mr. Roberts" and "State of the Union," as a public relations consultant.

But Hayward has been extremely active in aviation as a director of Trans World Airlines, chairman of Southwest Airways and an official of organizations that trained thousands of pilots during the war.

Hayward has agreed to advise the air force on a part-time temporary basis, reportedly without pay.

New Air Command

Washington—AP—Along with the general speed-up in mobilization, the air force high command has moved forward by at least two months the date to put the new air research and development command into operation.

The step was originally scheduled for around mid-May, but a recent order calls for separation from the air materiel command to take place by March 1.

A headquarters site for the new command is still undecided, but the Washington area appears to be a good bet. James H. Doolittle, a reserve lieutenant general, heads a board studying the site problem.

Savings Bond Leader

Washington—AP—Las Cruces, N. Mex., in the area where new rocket weapons are tested, is slated to become the first "treasury flag city" of the current defense period.

A treasury banner is to be hoisted at Las Cruces on Washington's birthday to signify that more than 90 per cent of the town's business concerns have installed payroll savings bond plans.

TV Tragedy

Washington —AP— One big city newspaper correspondent is opposed to televising future congressional hearings.

He sat through one reading a magazine, expecting to rewrite the wire service reports in his office later.

His boss happened to see the TV program and hid all the wire service accounts.

It was unpleasant, but all survived.

French Crisis?

Paris —AP— Another French cabinet crisis is a strong possibility for the end of February.

Rene Pleven's coalition cabinet wants a new election law to freeze out the Communists. But one element in the coalition, the Catholic popular Republicans, has shown a tendency to vote with the Communists against the election law.

Marine Pfc. Johnie Lee Patrick, Sr., 29, son of Willie A. Patrict, General Delivery, West Monroe, La., was promoted to his present rank when he was graduated from "boot camp" on Jan. 24, 1951.

Patrick climaxed his recruit training by winning the marksman medal on the rifle range when he fired a score of 209 out of a possible 250 during his weapons training.

During the past eight weeks of recruit training, as a result of field experience and classroom lectures, the new marine has become well versed in such military subjects as precision drill, first aid, hygiene, and field tactics. In addition to firing the famed Garland rifle for qualification, Patrick fired other infantry weapons such as the .45 caliber pistol, carbine, and Browning automatic rifle. He also witnessed demonstration firing of the machine gun, mortar, and flame thrower.

Boston (Mass.) Herald (Ind.): . . . The great responsibility for military strategy must rest in something less cumbersome and public than congress. Even so broad a matter as the number of troops to be committed to Europe must be determined and redetermined on information that cannot be safely revealed to 531 members of congress. And it may have to be redetermined quickly, too quickly to permit recourse to parliamentary processes."

Washington (D. C.) Post (Ind.): "The administration should not be expected to go to congress for a new law every time an adjustment of our national forces . . . appears to be desirable. . . . We think the question of committing troops to the Atlantic pact army should be candidly discussed with congressional leaders and that a meeting of minds should be earnestly sought. Anti-Trust Suit Is Dismissed

Shreveport, La. Feb. 17.—(AP)—The $4,393,660.65 anti-trust suit of Jack Coast against the Hunt and Ohio Oil companies was dismissed today in U.S. district court by Judge Ben C. Dawkins.

In an opinion filed today Judge Dawkins sustained a motion by defendants to dismiss the action for failure of the complaint to state a cause of action or facts upon which relief could be granted.

The judge ruled that Coast had no right to sue either in his own behalf or for the partnership since he was not joined by the other partner in the partnership composing the Coast Oil Co. The other part was Justin R. Querbes, of Shreveport.

Nato Move Seen

London—AP—The political part of the north Atlantic treaty organization may move from London to Paris when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower returns to Europe soon.

Americans and others are said to favor the move to get everything near military headquarters. Britain wants to keep the present office "to emphasize the Atlantic character of the organization." Eisenhower's views, unknown here, are expected to carry great weight.

By the light of the Refrigerator Bulb—Because President Truman dines out frequently this winter, his secret service entourage inconveniences people in all sorts of ways.

Recently he was a guest in a residential hotel which a number of congressmen make their Washington residence. One of them is the only Independent in the house, Rep. Frazier Reams of Ohio, who defeated both the Republican and Democratic candidates in his district.

Mrs. Reams had just prepared their dinner when a fuse blew out in the kitchen of their apartment. Representative Reams called the manager, who said he would send a man up right away. But when the man started up with the new fuse, secret service men, who were all over the place, wouldn't let him up the backstairs, or past the dining room to the elevator.

So Representative and Mrs. Reams ate their dinner by the light of the bulb in the refrigerator, which operates on a different electrical circuit.

13-Year-Old Boy Gets Fill Of U. S. Army

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Thirteen-year-old Private George Raymundo of Brooklyn, about to be mustered out of the army after three weeks of posing as an 18-year-old says, he found he doesn't like army life anyway.

He was at Aberdeen today when reporters accompanying President Truman found him.

How did he like army life?

The youngster said:

"It was no good. You have to get up too early in the morning, you march too much, you have to wash floors. The next time they'll have to draft me."

He said he talked his way into the army because "I wanted to see what it was like."

He is going back to grade 9A in his school at Brooklyn.

Did he have any trouble with the truant officer before he went into the army?

"Yes, I played hookey when I had to take my physical examinations," said the boy.

DIPLOMATIC BLAST

and perhaps drive a rift between the western powers during the still-budding negotiations for a new big four conference.

Setting out painstakingly to "refute in the most formal manner the unfounded allegations" in the Soviet note of Jan. 20, the British foreign office listed 14 points charging Russian obstruction, lack of cooperation, subversion, threats, breach of faith and support of aggression in the postwar era.

"It is in the light of all these circumstances," the note said, "that his majesty's government, like the other governments of the west, have been obliged in pure self-defense to set about strengthening their defenses and considering the participating of German units in the defense of western Europe."

Taking a look at the record, Britain charged Russia:

Supported in the UN the "unprovoked aggression" of North Korea and the subsequent intervention of the Chinese Communists.

"Applauded" the action of Communist Rebels in British Malaya and elsewhere and openly supported then in Indo-China.

Violated the Yalta agreement by assisting "Communist minorities to seize power" throughout Eastern Europe.

"Aided and directed" Greek Communists in their civil war.

Vetoed a UN investigation of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia in 1948.

Waged a "campaign of vilification and subversion" against Premier Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia.

Violated the Potsdam accord by sealing off the Soviet zone of Germany, attempting to prevent the economic recovery of West Germany, breaking up the Allied control council in Germany by withdrawing its representative, setting up the Berlin blockade and thus preventing the economic and political unification of the country.

Turned down the Marshall plan and made her satellites follow her lead.

Organized the Cominform, whose "first manifesto made clear its purpose of organizing and directing every possible form of agitation and action designed to defeat the recovery of Europe."

Sought to stir up "strikes and social unrest" through various Red fronts.

Either refused to join or withdrew from various international and United Nations bodies.

Abused the veto power in the Security Council and "refused to accept plans regarded as reasonable by the vast majority" for the control of atomic energy and reduction of armaments.

Tried to keep her people 'isolated from the outside world, in ignorance of the true facts and inspired with hatred of the western nations."

Prevented conclusion of an Austrian peace treaty.

Built up a military force in fast Germany, contrary to four-Power accords to demilitarize the country, rebuilt military forces in the Russian satellite countries and maintained forces of her own "far superior in numbers to those of all the western powers yut together."

Is now attempting to "mislead world opinion as to the true causes of world tension by a campaign of so-called 'peace propaganda.'"

These facts, the British said, "proved to the peoples of the free world that Communist imperalism will not stop at agitation, threats and subversion, but is ready to use force to obtain its ends by conquest."

Britain, "slowly and unwillingly" has come to the conclusion that Russia's aim is to undermine the independence of free nations and to build up a coalition to undermine the United Kingdom, the note said.

KILL-AS-YOU-GO

alone from Jan. 25, through Feb. 16.

That's 4,637 Reds killed, wounded or captured each day on an average.

The new technique was adopted after the Allies had been rolled back from the first assault by Chinese Communists. It coincided roughly with the time Ridgway took command of the Eighth army after the death of Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker.

But the current strategy is based on plans prepared by both generals.

Ridgway looks like the commander who would order his troops ahead at all possible speed in the manner of the late General George S. Patton. He's a husky, dashing combat man who darts restlessly around the front wearing hand grenades taped to his chest.

Walker, a diminutive bulldog of a man, looked more like the infantry general. But he had been Patton's spearhead in Europe—the commander of the famed 20th armored, known as the "Ghost Corps." He used break-and-run tactics whenever the situation permitted.

Walker's goal five months ago was territory. His armor raced toward the Yalu river, bypassing North Korean Red units not already cut to pieces in the breakout from the Pusan perimeter and the sideswipe landing at Inchon.

The belief was this: The North Korean army, its back broken, would present only mopping up problems once the entire Korean peninsula was under UN control.

This plan probably would have worked. But the Chinese entered the conflict and created another war.

Ridgway's current tactics are standard for infantry and proven by time.

They employ the full range of weapons—from bayonet steel to massed artillery and battering tanks.

His forces across the peninsula are linked. One flank is not permitted to extend itself until the rest of the line can also advance. The reason: Minimize the chance of having a spearhead cut off by swirling Red infantrymen.

Air power constantly is on the prowl over Communist forces adding what General MacArthur has called an "almost astronomical increase" to the Red casualty toll.

Ground troops and air power are swiftly mobile, ready to shift to any threatened area. When the allies punched to the Han river and the doors of Seoul in the west, they also were ready to meet the Red assault that came on the central front.

The Reds still have numerical superiority. They have succeeded in cutting off some UN units. But this is no longer the danger it was. Supplied by air, allied troops have fought free from each of these recent traps.

With the Korean war in an indecisive stage, U. N. forces are concerned only with inflicting the severest punishment on the enmy with minimum losses to themselves.

Allied advances probably will be slow—if they continue at all—for the present. The aim is to wipe out everything within range of Allied weapons.

stated that they may not, as a matter of principle, become members of the United Nations command, nor may the league of Red Cross societies donate supplies to the common pool, but that they must operate as a separate Red Cross organization and that Red Cross - donated supplies must be distributed separately under their supervision.

"In this period of critical combat operations, in a war of maneuver, when limited storage and transportation facilities which are available in Korea must be utilized to the maximum efficiency for both military and civilian relief purposes, it is wholly impractical to establish a multiplicity of supply channels and distribution agencies for the civilian relief of the Korean people.

"Other equally-deserving private welfare organizations, who have desired to establish their separate supply and distribution channels, have recognized the necessity for this unified effort and have fully cooperated. It is sincerely hoped that the league of Red Cross societies will join in this great effort of the United Nations wholeheartedly, in accordance with procedures which the current military situation dictates as necessary, if the maximum benefit is to be given to the Korean people."

walled tires, and directed them to make fewer types of tires and other rubber products. The purpose: to save natural rubber. The supply of tires to the consumer was not expected to be affected.

2. The same agency permitted owners of hotels and office buildings to undertake more alterations than before.

3. The office of price administration (O. P. S.) has not issued many orders in the last few days but may get rolling again next week. In the office are (A) ceiling prices for cotton, (B) an order unfreezing the retail prices of non-food articles and freezing instead the retailer's "mark - up" and (C) "mark-up" regulations for food retailers and wholesalers on the pattern used by the O. P. A several years ago. The markup is the difference between what a retailer pays and what he receives.

In the labor squabble, Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson apparently was ready to accept an important labor leader as one of his assistants. There was a new flurry of bitter words on that topic today. It happened this way:

Yesterday a spokesman for Wilson told reporters that Wilson had three times invited labor leaders to name one of their number for the job, and that in the third invitation he had dropped his previous insistence that the man chosen must rid himself of all union connections.

Pasture Specialist Agriculture's Man Of Year In Miss.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 17.—(AP)—W. R. Thompson, pasture specialist with the state extension service at Mississippi State College, has been named agriculture's man of the year in Mississippi.

The award was made by the magazine Progressive Farmer.

Thompson, who has been nicknamed "the pasture man" because of his interest in that phase of farm crop diversification, worked in Tunica and Holmes counties before joining the state service.

"His way of telling farmers how to have good pastures was so inspiring that he was the evangelist' of good pastures," the magazine said in announcing the award.

Previous Mississippi winners were the Rev. James W. Sells, the late Ransom Aldrich, the late Dr. W. F. Hand, Prof. J. S. Moore, owen Cooper, George McLean and J. Oliver Emmerich.

JES' RAMBLIN'

belonged to another man and he had it only in custody.

He proceeded to the Ouachita National Bank where he placed the billfold on a ledge near the window and proceeded to cash a ten dollar check. Receiving this sum from the teller, he left the institution and started to the gas companys office to pay his months gas bill. When there, he looked for his billfold. In amazement it was not in his pocket. He felt a sudden frenzy. What had happened had he been robbed? Then he pondered over what he had done and where he had been. He recalled he had the billfold at the bank and that had comprised his only stop prior to going to the gas office. Then he knew. He had placed the billfold on a ledge at the teller's window.

Bolting to the bank he dashed to the telier's window, almost fearful of what he would be told.

"Had there been a billfold found here?" he blurted out.

And to his amazement he was told that it had been returned by a colored woman, name unknown, to the cashier's window. Like lightning, Lock dashed to the window indicated and instantly reclaimed his property. He opened it and found all the money as he had left it.

Lock told the cashier that he would gladly give a reward if he knew the name of the colored woman, for there is certainly one who is honest, he assured.

He expressed deepest thanks and hopes she may see this story in Jes' Ramblin'. If she does, she is likely to be rewarded by grateful Mr. Lock.

Over last week end, Ferriday was privileged to entertain Jan de Graaff, of Gresham, Ore., internationally famed for his work with hybridizing lillies. He has been given extended publicity in the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines, such as "Better Homes" and some garden publications.

In his trip south, he was accompanied by his wife and during their stay were guests of the U. B. Evans at Haphazard plantation. Mrs. Evans writes a garden column for a Natchez daily.

The visitors were guests for Sunday dinner at the Lucerna plantation in Vidalia and Mrs. S. H. Lambkin entertained at a buffet supper over in Natchez. The guests reciprocated by showing slides of their flowers at the Sunday night entertainment.

Ruth Montgomery writing a column from Washington declared in her daily contribution to the press the other day that the wife of the baby lawmaker in the upper house (Senator Russell Long, 32) just "isnt living in this world."

She made the statement after the following experience became known. Senator Long took his wife to New Yorks 21 Club for lunch. As they wended their way through the room, a much bejewelled hand tapped the senator on the shoulder.

"Your face is familiar," she declared, "aren't you the son of Huey P. Long?" she asked.

The senator admitted the relationship, and exchanged felicitations, after which he went to the table where his wife was then seated. "Do you know who that was?" he asked his spouse, "why" he continued, 'that was one of my constituents from the smallest town in Louisiana! She is a native of Elizabeth, and to think of running into her way up here!

Then Mrs. Long declared: "Do you mean to say you did not know her until she had introduced herself?" Why thats Faye Emerston!'

And then the husband declared innocently, "well who is Faye Emerson?"

urday night they now had "restored" their lines.

The remnants of the North Korean second corps, estimated still to contain 8,000 to 10,000 men, was attempting to move southeast towards the Chechon front from the hills east of Wonju.

The Korean Red movement was undoubtedly coordinated with the big Chinese offensive which the Allies smashed north of Wonju in the Chipyong - Hoengsong area two days ago, the American officer told Waugh. The two apparently had intended to move together.

"We have given the Chinese a helluva beating," the officer said, "but I don't think the Wonju fight is over."

While Chechon is an important supply hub the Allies intend to hold, if it were to fall "all it would do is embarrass us," the officer added.

He speculated that the North Koreans in the drive were being used by the Chinese as "sacrificial lambs" to protect Chinese forces farther back, and declared:

"The main battle is going to be between American and Chinese troops."

The American counter-drive that threw the Korean Reds back was behind a mighty artillery barrage and under a record flight of Fifth Air Force fighter - bombers. However, Waugh said its purpose was "limited" to blunting the Korean threat to Chechon.

Chechon is 20 miles southeast of Wonju and about the same distance southwest of Pyongchang. Pyongchang was abandoned yesterday by United Nations forces, who withdrew all along the right shoulder of the front.

East of the Wonju - Pyongchang-Chechon triangle, the badly-beaten Chinese Reds had disappeared. They had failed in a five-day attempt to penetrate the United Nations central front.

Allied patrols, operating north of the Wonju-Chechon line, advanced two to thre miles into enemy territory without contacting any Reds.

Monday through Friday, the U. S. eighth army official estimate of Red casualties inflicted by ground action alone was 26,545, mostly lost in the vain Red effort to cave in the central front.

Red casualties by ground action alone since the eighth army's offensive began Jan. 25 are officially estimated at 106,666, with Saturday's toll still to be added, and not allowing for air-inflicted casualties.

Fifty air force planes flew a record of 711 sorties Saturday. Pilots estimated they killed at least 800 enemy troops, destroyed 161 enemy vehicles, and damaged 37.

Pilots used a new secret "vehicle-locating" device, which they said could find enemy trucks no matter where hidden.

On the extreme western end of the United Nations front, AP Correspondent Jim Becker reportd he had been riding over Inchon harbor for two days and that south Korean troops were going ashore in LST's.

Inchon, the port city of Seoul, was regained Feb. 10, by elements of the United States' 25th division, but until Friday no effort had been made to begin putting the port back into operation.

A bright half moon lighted the snow-coated western front from Inchon to the mountains east of Seoul Friday night and Becker said a whomping artillery duel rocked the countryside.

American artillerymen were firing an estimated 10 shells to the enemy's one.

A few shells landed on Allied-held Kimpo airfield, 15 miles northwest of Seoul, but did no damage. The once busy airport so far has not been put back in use.

Finally driven into headlong flight late Thursday, the Chinese were reported still moving north away from the Chipyong-Wonju sector Saturday.

Only one Allied patrol was able to flush a small pocket of Reds. All others reported "no contact."

The enemy withdrawal from the Wonju-Chipyong front may be to make room for a fresh Chinese army to move into the lines, U. S. intelligence officers theorized.

Associated Press Correspondent John Randolph reported from the central front that three different Chinese groups were seen moving north. One was from the center of the line, a second was from north of Chipyong and a third was pulling out of a pocket southeast of Chipyong.

American troops in the Chipyong perimeter have counted 1,476 bodies, Randolph said. It is estimated that some 4,000 were killed in action in that small sector alone.

But in the east the Korean Communists were still trying hard.

According to a U. S. tenth corps spokesman, the enemy penetrations down the valleys between Wonju and Pyongchang began even while the Chinese attacks on Chipyong were still in progress.

Corps intelligence officers estimated 5,000 north Koreans were attacking in the triangle between Wonju on the northwest, Pyongchang on the northeast and Chechon at the bottom center.

A division headquarters north of corps headquarters said, however, the troops inside the triangle were only the advance columns of between 15,000 and 20,000 Reds southeast of Wonju.

Flaxseed production soared in the U.S. during the war because imports from Argentina were cut off.

DRAFT CHALLENGE TO STALIN'S AIM

U. S. Maps Western Move To Determine Sincerity In Desire For Peace Talks

Washington, Feb. 17. —(AP)— The U. S. has proposed to Britain and France a new diplomatic move designed to test whether Prime Minister Stalin will approve a Big-Four foreign ministers conference with power to dig into the real causes of east-west conflict.

Notes from the three western nations, aimed at bringing the long negotiations over Big-Four talks to a climax, are expected to go to Moscow next week if London and Paris finally approve the draft completed here yesterday.

Meanwhile, a direct challenge of Prime Minister Stalin's declaration last night that Russia is devoting its resources to building up peaceful industries was being informally talked about by some officials here. Their idea is to get the UN to challenge Stalin to demonstrate the truth of his statement by lowering the iron curtain and letting a team of UN observers freely tour Russia.

Some responsible officials objected to the idea. They believe that Russia, instead of promptly rejecting the proposal, might stall along in long-drawn negotiations, thereby tragically misleading some people into hoping that a truly peaceful Russia could be opened up to the world. These officials believe Russia never would permit any real inspection because they are convinced Soviet military preparations are on a vast scale.

Another facet of reaction here to Stalin's interview in Pravda was that the Soviet leader may have been laying a basis for eventual withdrawal of the Communist bloc from the UN. He bitterly assailed the U. N. having become an instrument of British and American aggression. State department officials said it was the first time he personally had made such a charge although it is not new in Russian propaganda.

One big question about the Stalin statements was being asked by officials here today: Why did Stalin—who is assumed to control the questions as well as the answers of his Russian Pres interviews—have nothing to say about Germany?

Two possible answers were suggested. One and perhaps the most likely is that Stalin wanted to focus attention on the Far Eastern situation and related UN issues. He warned the west that peace in Korea could be had only on Red China's terms and some authorities saw in this a threat of more open Russian support for the Chinese Communist forces.

The second possible answer was that German demilitarization was at the heart of the negotiations for Big-Four talks and it is just possible that Stalin did not want to complicate those negotiations just now. If that was so, officials here were inclined to regard it as a piece of diplomatic formality because the whole tone of the Soviet leader's remarks was one of unyielding determination to stick to established policy lines.

State department officials thus see little reason in Stalin's statements to take a more optimistic attitude about the Big-Four talks. But they still believe they probably will be held although none will know for certain until after the next round of notes is exchanged.

The U. S., Britain and France have been conferring on the draft of their next notes throughout the week. Their problem has been to put no unnecessary obstacle in the way of a meeting yet to avoid being trapped by the Soviets into a session in which they would only be able to talk about Germany.

Last November the Russians called for a Big-Four foreign ministers meting on German demilitarization. The western powers replied no, unless the Russians would agree also to discuss the real sources of world tension. The western notes said bluntly that these real sources were the aggressive policies of the Soviet Union together with its satellites.

Russia has never formally agreed to take up these broader subjects; the west has never firmly agreed to the German demilitarization project. Meanwhile they have said that if there is to be a foreign ministers' session it should be preceded by a meeting of their representatives in Paris to map out a program.

The western powers, in the note now under consideration, are prepared to suggest that if a preliminary meeting is to be held it might be set for March 5. But the whole thing is conditional and there is yet no firm agreement to meet on any date. The condition which the United States wants to attach is that it would be understood that in sending a representative to the preliminary session Russia had agreed to talk about the real cause of world tension.

If the Russians object to this there would be no basis for talks and Stalin as the responsible director of all Soviet policies would stand subject to criticism that he was afraid to have Russia's forces and policies discussed with other nations.

CLUB FIRE

McKing and Ernest Bowman. The fifth victim was not immediately identified.

Scores of residents had narrow escapes. David Cosner, 47, who lived in a fourth floor room, told of opening his door after hearing the alarm bell.

"All I could see was smoke," Cosner said. "I grabbed some clothes and ran back to the hall. It was almost too late. Right in front of me was a ball of fire. I decided my only chance was to run through it. I reached a fireproof stairway. I was plenty lucky."

Carl Barnes, 38, had a similar experience. He fled with an overcoat. "While I was running down the hall, I saw the overcoat was on fire. I dropped the damn thing and kept running."

Robert Davis, a porter, said he was setting up tables in the gymnasium for the affair to celebrate opening of a new addition to the athletic club. He said he noticed some electric wiring short and then paper decorations along the walls and ceiling flashed into flame.

A cook, Tommy Roach, was peeling potatoes in the fire proof kitchen next to the gym. "The first we knew of the fire was when we saw a metal door on the gym was red hot." Roach said the other cooks fled out the windows.

An elevator operator, D. B. Sanches, 74, was among the heros. Placing a wet handkerchief over his face, Sanches kept the elevator running for an hour after the fire broke out at 3 p. m. (Mountain Time).

Firemen said there were about 100 persons in the building when the fire started.

The interior of the old structure, built 65 years ago, was nearly a total loss. The upper floors were burned out and those below the third floor were damaged by water.

The first U.S. coin was a cent dated 1787.

L. S. U. TO MAP LA. MARSHLAND

$73,000 Project Will Begin Next June On 15,000-Acre Area

Baton Rouge, La. Feb. 17.—(AP)—Louisiana State University begins a $73,000 project next June—mapping 15,000 square miles of Louisiana's coastal marshlands.

The mile - by - mile survey, financed by the U.S. office of naval research, was assigned to the L.S.U. school of geology. Research crews plan to go by airplane, automobile and boat to chart landforms, navigable streams and bayous.

Originally planned for four years the navy now wants the timetable cut to two years, according to L.S.U.

Dr. Richard J. Russell, L.S.U. graduate dean, is in charge of the study. His assistants include geology instructor James Morgan and Dr. Fred Kniffen, geography department head, as well as graduate students.

Louisiana's coastline was selected, L.S.U. said, because it duplicates coastlines and beaches of many parts of the world. One question the study is expected to answer bears directly on the military. It is:

What types of military vehicles can be used on which kinds of soil formations

Such knowledge is expected to be applied to beach landing operations in practically any part of the world.

Navy photographers are scheduled to begin photographing the area from airplanes within the next few weeks.

DO YOU KNOW PIANOS?

Consider carefully the following question (and weekly questions to follow) before you select your new piano. No matter how attractive a piano may LOOK, it is the HIDDEN musical and mechanical qualities which make it a fine instrument, or an unsatisfactory one.

Q. Do all pianos require the same amount of tuning and service?

A. No. The more lasting quality built into a piano, the less tuning and service it will require. All pianos should be tuned periodically, but a piano that has been scientifically voiced and regulated at the factory will normally need no other adjustment for many years.

Q. Isn't a cheap piano good enough for my child to learn on?

A. Children learn faster on a piano that is musically right. Their pride in having a new, attractive, and high grade piano is a big factor in faster progress.

SELMAN HOLDS FOUNDERS' DAY

Mrs. Wilson Relates History Of Parent-Teacher Organization

Mrs. F. T. Smith, Jr., acted as program chairman, in the absence of Mrs. Floyd Humble, at the Founders' Day celebration of the Selman Parent-Teacher Association, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. G. B. Wilson gave a brief history of the movement, both state and national. She said in part—"The history of Founders' Day celebration dates back to 1910, when Mrs. Mary Grinnell Mears proposed and carried out the idea of commemorating the birthday of the national congress of parents and teachers and its founders.

Founders' Day is an occasion, not only for commerating, but for re-dedicating ourselves to the promotion of the ideals and purposes of the parent-teacher movement. This great work was the dream come true of Mrs. Alice McLellan Birney and her co-worker, Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst. These good women worked hard and long overcoming all types of obstacles to organize a movement wherein children come first. Our own beloved founder, Mrs. Frances Fowler, worked diligently in the state, giving wholeheartedly of her time and energy until her death. She was a member of the state board of managers at the time of her passing." . . . In conclusion Mrs. Wilson read the peom "To Our Founders," by the national president, Mrs. Anna H. Hayes.

The highlight of the program was the acrostic dramatization—Our Founders: Birney-Hearst which was carried out as follows: B-Mrs. Joseph Petch; I-Mrs. T. W. Humpheries; R-Mrs. Chester Roberts; N-Mrs. W. W. Throne; E-Mrs. Paylor; Y-Mrs. Wayne McDonald; H-Mrs. F. T. Smith, Jr., E-Mrs. L. Cox; A-Mrs. Oreleane Boyd; R-Mrs. Shelby Thorne; S-Mrs. M. Nelson; T-Mrs. J. M. Hines.

Mrs. J. H. Alford, president presided during the business hour. The delegates elected to represent the Selman P.-T. A. at Georgia Tucker, district meeting of fifth district in March are: Mrs. T. W. Humpheries, Mrs. J. H. Alford, Mrs. W. W. Thorn, Mrs. Chester Roberts, and Mrs. J. M. Hines. The nominating committee elected to nominate officers for the coming year, is composed of Mrs Wayne McDonald, chairman, Mrs. Floyd Fisher, faculty representative, Mrs. Joseph Petch, Mrs. Parker Humble and Mrs. F. T. Smith, Jr. Miss Martha Turnley's third grade won the room award for having the greatest number of mothers present. The room mothers of the two fifth grades were hostesses during the social hour. They served coffee with the birthday cake which was beautifully embossed with the P.-T. A. colors bearing the inscription 1897-1951.

Disclose Evidence That Russia Contributed Funds To Pacific Relations Group

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Evidence indicating that Moscow contributed $2,500 to the Institute of Pacific Relations was reported by Senator Mundt (R.-S. D.) today.

He said the evidence was in documents which were at one time part of those seized by senate investigators in a raid on a Massachusetts farm.

IPR Secretary - General William Holland said in New York that such a contribution would be an "entirely logical' thing to find in the institute's records.

The $2,500, he added, was "undoubtedly" one of the yearly assessments paid by the Russian council of the international institute some time between 1934-39, when the Soviet council was affiliated with the IPR.

Mundt based his statement on what he called "sample" institute papers he said he and Senator McCarthy (R. - Wis.) examined. This was before an agent of the senate judiciary subcommittee investigating anti-subversive activities grabbed thousands of IPR documents last week from a barn near Lee, Mass.

The South Dakotan described the material he and McCarthy studied as "not necessarily significant, but it certainly could be."

"It will take a month or more for the subcommittee to analyze the records and find out what story they tell," Mundt told a reporter. "If the samples we saw are typical, the other records should shed a lot of light on the connection between the IPR and the state department's ill-advised policy toward the far east."

While senators examined the documents, there were these other developments:

1 — The house un-American activities committee denounced the proposed "peace pilgrimage" to Washington March 1, as a "project intended to promote treason against the United States." A committee statement said the Communist Daily Worker newspaper had issued a call for 3,000 persons to march on the capital under the auspices of the American peace crusade. The committee referred to the 3,000 as 'fifth columnists.'

2 — The house committee decided tentatively to inquire into Communist infiltration of labor unions in major defense industries. Chairman Wood (D.-Ga.) also said the committee undoubtedly would go back into some phases of its investigation of Communists influences in Hollywood.

3 — The peace information center of New York and four of its officers pleaded innocent to an indictment charging failure to register as foreign agents as required by a 1938 law. Trial was set for April 2, by Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts.

The IPR mentioned by Mundt was organized around 1925 by American and other national councils with the announced aim of studying methods of improving relations among the Pacific nations. It figured in last year's senate inquiry into McCarthy's charges that Communists were in high government places. The Wisconsin senator asserted some IPR officials were Communists and others followed the Moscow line.

Though neither Mundt nor McCarthy are members of the senate judiciary investigating group, Mundt explained how they figured in the case. He said Don Surine, an investigator on McCarthy's payroll, discovered the "sample" papers some time ago, obtained about 50 exhibits, and turned them over to McCarthy.

McCarthy showed the papers to Mundt, a former member of the house un-American activities committe, and the two examined them. McCarthy finally went to Chairman McCarran (D.-Nev.) of the judiciary group and a subpoena was issued for the rest of the papers, location of which was known to Surine.

Mundt said the samples showed among other things:

A "vast amount" of correspondence between Russians and the IPR - Russians who apparently worked for the Soviet government.

"Many of the same characters who figured in the Amerasia magazine case of 1945 also were active in the IPR." This case concerned alleged theft of hundreds of secret government papers.

"Plenty of correspondence between the IPR and Frederick Vanderbilt Field," rich New Yorker who declined last year to tell a senate committee whether he ever was a Communist. Field was cited for contempt and was recently indicted.

"There seemed to be a lot of corerspondence between Lattimore and Jessup" This was a reference to Owen Lattimore, far eastern affairs expert who once edited an IPR magazine, and Ambassador Philip Jessup, adviser to Secretary of State Acheson and an IPR member.

During last year's senate inquiry McCarthy charged that Lattimore was Russia's top spy in the United States He also asserted Jessup had "an unusual affinity" for Communist causes. Both men denied the charges.

Commenting further for the IPR today, Secretary - General Holalnd said it could be the institute's files show quite a bit of correspondence with Russians. He said:

"One - time Russian membership in the IPR would account for that. Also, it is quite possible —though I don't know for sure —that the files included voluminous correspondence which Edward Carter, the former secretary - general, had at the time he was president of a Russian war relief group in the United States, along about 1942-45."

Carter owns the Massachusetts farm where the IPR papers were found by the senate investigators. Holland said the papers were there to avoid storage costs, with the idea that they might be used later to write a history of the institute.

Holland said the FBI, at the institute's invitation, sent a team of at least a dozen agents who spent six or seven weeks going over IPR records both in New York and at the Lee, Mass., farm. This, he said, was about a year ago after McCarthy had criticized the institute.

'MOST WANTED' MAN IS CAUGHT

Alert Mobile Jeweler Leads F. B. I. To Arrest Of Townsend Taylor

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 17. — (AP) — A tip supplied by an alert Mobile jeweler led to the arrest here today of Sourtney Townsend Taylor, one of the FBI's ten "most wanted men.'

The burly 42-year-old Taylor, described by the FBI as a notorious check passer and confidence man, was picked up by a Mobile traffic policeman in front of a downtown jewelry store.

John K. Mumford, agent in charge of the Mobile FBI office, said Taylor was in the midst of a check-passing spree at jewelry stores here when nabbed.

After vigorously protesting his arrest, Mumford said Taylor broke down and admitted his identity. The FBI agent said he wasn't very talkative, however.

A search was under way here for a confederate seen making the rounds with Taylor Mumford said.

The FBI said Taylor had passed more than $88,000 worth of bad checks during the last seven years.

Phillip Gabriel, owner of a Mobile jewelry store, said he recognized Taylor when the latter bought a $15 sliver necklace at his store and cashed a $63 check drawn on the Prince Albert division of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

"We had received an FBI notice on the man about three months ago and we had been on the lookout for some of the checks, Gabriel said.

"He identified himself as Rodney S. Hickson, and showed us complete identifications.

"When I spotted this check, I gave him his change. As soon as he walked out I called the FBI, and told one of my clerks to follow him. We saw him meet a confederate on the corner and continue on down the street."

As Taylor prepared to enter another jewelry store on Dauphin street, Mumford said, Patrolman Jack Nelson grabbed him and FBI agents ran up to assist.

He was taken to the FBI office in the federal building for questioning.

Taylor, heavy-set with a blonde mustache and ruddy complexion, was wearing a sports shirt at the time of his arrest.

Last Jan. 11, the FBI office here warned southeastern law enforcement officers to be on the lookout for Taylor, saying he was headed south from a tour of passing bad checks in northeastern cities.

Taylor, who uses numerous aliases, had been convicted for breaking and entering, auto theft, mail theft, forgery and issuing bad checks, FBI records show.

Mumford said he stayed in leading hotels and traveled by plane most of the time.

The FBI holds three outstanding warrants for his arrest. Two are for passing fraudulent checks and one for parole violation. He was indicted last September by a federal grand jury at Miami, Fla., on one of the bad check charges.

Dewey Would Be Happy To Appear

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York wired Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) today that he would "be happy,, to testify in Washington on the "arms-to-Europe" issue.

Connally, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, had invited Dewey to appear before a joint meeting of the foreign relations and armed forces committees, possibly next week.

James C. Hagerty, Dewey's secretary, said Dewey had sent this telegram to Connally:

"Will be happy to accept your invitation to appear before joint committee on foreign relations and armed services and to work out agreable date with you."

Dewey, 1948 GOP presidential nominee, has urged the raising of an army of 100 divisions and all-out help to western Europe to rearm.

BELL ARGUES FOR HIGHER RETURN

Contends Deterioration Since 1948 Makes Higher Return Necessary

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A Southern Bell Telephone Co. official testified today that deterioration of the Bell System's credit since 1948 makes necessary a higher return on its investment in Mississippi.

The official, R. R. Stubbs of Atlanta, asistant vice-president in the company's finance department, told the state public service commission the firm now needs a 7.25 per cent return on its total investment here.

That investment is figured at $35,000,000.

Stubbs testified in support of Southern Bell's petition for a $2,400,000 boost in telephone rates. The increase, the company says, would bring its earnings to the 7.25 per cent level.

Stubbs told Assistant Attorney General James Kendall the credit deterioration and an increase in operating risks forced the company, to raise its earnings rate from six and two thirds per cent.

The latter figure was the one requested when Southern Bell received its last rate increase in 1948 — the third since the end of World War II.

The higher earnings level is necessary, he explained, in order to attract sufficient capital investment to continue the company's expansion program. Its present earnings now approximate four per cent, he said.

Southern Bell has spent approximately $7,500,000 on rural telephone expansion in the state since the end of the war.

R. L. Henley, inventory and costs engineer, from the firm's Atlanta office, told the commission it would cost $71,175,314 to replace present Southern bell facilities in the state, including labor costs. Present book value of the facilities before depreciation is set at $56,120,000 he said.

Stubbs, replying to a question by Southern Bell Attorney Jeff Davis, said the recent excess profits tax law passed by congress last December exempts telephone company profits until they reach seven per cent on the investment.

The hearings, which began Tuesday, were recessed today until the commission's March meeting.

In cross-examining Stubbs, Kendall charged that American Telephone and Telegraph Co., parent of the Bell system, buys Southern bell stock with money on which it pays only three per cent interest.

In turn, Kendall went on, Southern Bell stock pays American Telephone and Telegraph Co., a higher interest rate.

"So, if A. T. & T. is obtaining capital at three per cent and these proceeds are used by Southern Bell A. T. & T. is paying $3 per $100 and receiving $10 per $100 on the earnings of Southern Bell," he said.

"I think the statement is mathematically correct but distinctly misleading," Stubbs answered.

Colombia To Send More Men To War

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Colombian Ambasador Eduardo Zuleta Angel said today a hand-picked battalion of 1,080 Columbian officers and men will leave his country about the first of March to fight in Korea.

The ambassador added in an interview that the men are new being trained in Bogota in modern American methods and weapons by a U. S. miliary mission.

Zuleta Angel said, the 1400-ton Colombian frigate Almirante Padilla will leave on Feb. 20 from San Diego to join U. N. naval forces in the Korean area.

The ship, the best in the Colombian navy, was outfitted in a private shipyard at San Diego with new guns. The Colombian government, he said, paid all the expenses.

The ambassador said Colombia has promised further military assistance by offering to equip and train an army division and make it available to the United Nations to fight "if, where and when needed."

The delay in getting the battalion overseas, he said, was due to the fact the Colombian army's rifles and other equipment were Czechoslovakian and thus useless in Korea.

New equipment had to be bought in the United States and the men trained in their use.

Zuleta Angel said Colombian officials have asked this country to make arms for the full division and to set up facilities for Colombia to pay for them.

Soviet Envoy To Arrive In Argentine

Buenos Aires, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Grigoric Resanov, newly appointed Soviet ambassador to Argentina, will arrive here tomorrow aboard the Italian liner Conte Grande, to fill a post which has been vacant more than two years.

Resanoy, who gained Latin American experience at Bogota, before Colombia broke off relations with Russia in 1948, succeeds Mikhail Sergueev, who left here the same year, when Russo-Argentine trade negotiations collapsed. Since then the embassy has been headed by Charge D'Affaires Igor Budarin. Relations have been correct if not friendly.

Top Race Gambling Man Is Before Crime Investigators

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The top man in a race horse gambling outfit testified today he had paid $200,000 income tax in a "good year" and that his office phone bills alone had run $3,500 a month. He said he was worth just over $100,000 net.

The witness, Louis Rosenbaum of Cincinnati, together with a couple of his track bet handlers, took senate crime investigators behind the scenes in the operations of a bigtime "betting commissioner."

Rosenbaum, a plump man neatly dressed in brown, called himself a betting commissioner and said his main business was taking "lay off" bets from book makers of others. This is a means whereby a bookmaker who has taken heavy bets on a race spreads the risk with other betting men.

But Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.) had another name for Rosenbaum. The peppery senator called him the "king-pin in a big gambling organization."

A short time later, Rosenbaum declared he had quit the "commission" business and "from here on out I'm going to be out at the race tracks betting."

The two bet handling employes were "come-back' money agents." Their job was to place bets at race tracks for Rosenbaum. The two, Richard Remer, of Miami Beach, Fla., and Fred Cogan of New Orleans, told of receiving telegraph money orders from him or $1,000 and more. Remer said his bets ran as high as $2,500 on a race.

Remer told how he had operated at the Bowie, Md., track.

He said he had used a phone in the office of Richard Pending and got Rosenbaum's betting orders over it.

Pending was described by Downey Rice, associate counsel of the senate crime investigating committee, as manager or superintendent of the track.

Remer said he maintained an account by leaving $3,000 or $4,000 with the track cashier, who would keep a record of his wins and losses. They would settle up at the end of the meet.

Both Remer and Cogan said they operated at a loss. In effect, it was explained at the hearing, the job of a come-back agent is to protect against heavier losses.

The agent steps in just before a race is run with bets on a long shot which has been given a heavy play with the bookies. Rice said this drives down the odds and helps "balance the books" for the bet takers.

The attorney gave this example: A big bookie may have taken $20,000 worth of bets on a horse at 10 to 1. If the horse won at that price, the bookie's loss would be $200,000.

So the gambler has a come-back agent at the track bet $5,000 on the horse. This may force the odds down to perhaps 3 to 1.

If the horse wins at 3 to 1, the bookie has cut his loss to the bettors, and has collected on his own bet. If the horse loses, the gambler pockets the $15,000 left from the bets.

Commissioner Rosenbaum said he tried to keep come-back agents at every big track during racing season if he could get them. He did not say how may he hired besides Remer and Cogan.

"You feel stronger if you can protect yourself. . . . You can lay off with a track when you can't with a bookmaker," the witness added.

Rosenbaum felt Tobey's sharp tongue when he said he knew nothing about contract arrangements for five phones in an office he used until recently at Newport, Ky., which is across the Ohio river from Cincinnait.

Snapped Tobey: "You're the kingpin in a big gambling organization and you—you're to dumb to answer a simple question. We'll find out from the telephone company and let you know."

Rosenbaum had testified the phones were there when he rented the office last spring.

Rice said, however, that Morris Miller, whom he termed a Rosenbaum brother - in - law, had signed a contract for the phones in July under the listing of "Northern Kentucky Hospitalization Insurance Agency."

Rosenbaum conceded he sold no insurance, but denied there was any fraud in the listing.

"There's no fraud," he explained. "If I sold hospitalization, it would be a fraud."

Rice said telephone company records indicated Rosenbaum recieved 1,053 collect long distance calls in one month.

Commented Rosenbaum at one point:

"Listen, I get so many telephone calls I'm dizzy. I got telephoeitis."

Rosenbaum said his business extends to breeding horses, buying and selling them, and trading in stocks and commodities; and "I handle commissions."

"Is that a euphemism for bet?" Rice asked.

"Yes, I handle bets," the witness replied.

Rosenbaum said he couldn't recall his income last year but that it was "a whole lot" less than $50,000.

After testifying about the $200,000 tax in 1947, he was unable to guess his tax or income in subsequent years.

As for his net worth, he put it at "a little over $100,000," but said he didn't really know the exact figure.

He said he hires a bookkeeper, whose brother handles his tax returns. Two of his own brothers, Dave and Harry, were in the betting commission business with him, the witness said.

Rosenbaum said he had been in the business about 20 years, operating in Chicago and Elmwood, Ohio before going to Cincinnati.

Remer, a small, grey-haired man of 50, said he had worked for Rosenbaum two years, placing bets for him at six tracks in Maryland and New Jersey.

Remer was paid about $100 a week. He said Rosenbaum would tell him horses to bet on. He said he had bet as much as $2,500 on a race but that the average was between $500 and $1,000.

Remer estimated Rosenbaum had to send him $6,000 to $7,000 to keep him in business at a big track over a 10-day period.

Neither Remer nor Cogan could recall ever having a winning race meet.

U. S. ADMITS CZECH FLIGHTS

Assures Prague Government Steps Will Be Taken To Avoid Repetition

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The United States admitted in an apology to Czechoslovakia today that two American jet fighters flew over Prague Feb. 7.

The U. S. embassy tendered the apology to the Czechoslovak foreign ministry, which had protested against the flights in a note Feb. 9.

The American note said the jets had come here from Germany by mistake and gave an assurance that steps were being taken to prevent any similar trespassing.

Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs drew up the note. Acting counsellor Alexander Schnee left it at the ministry. Schnee talked to no authorities at the ministry and reports could not reach competent spokesmen for Czechoslovak comment.

The embassy's note said the jets "inadvertently crossed the border of the United States zone with Czechosolvakia on Feb. 7, when they became lost on a training mission and, mistaking the Praha (Prague) beacon for the Mammendorf beacon, flew to the vicinity of Praha."

"This mistake is regretted and appropriate corrective action is being taken at once," it said.

Prague is some 80 air miles from the U. S. zone, but jet planes could cover the distance in a matter of minutes.

Many persons saw the two jets over the city, flying first northeastward and then southwestward.

The Czechoslovak note said they were seen over Letnany airport, just north of the city limits, and had American markings.

That night the embassy issued a statement declaring no American jet planes in Germany answered the descriptions given in the note and suggesting that the aircraft were Czechoslovak.

The note today said that "corrective action" included special instructions to all American pilots in Europe to take great care not to cross the Czechoslovak border without authorization from the Czechoslovak government.

It noted that high-speed pilots had standing instructions to stay at least 10 miles away from that border.

Czechoslovakia started the current series of notes last July 10, when she charged American planes had dropped Colorado beetles in this country to ruin the potato crop.

The U. S. rejected this accusation and hit back with charges that Czechoslovak planes had violated the German border nine times in July.

Czechoslovakia has not replied to these charges.

Calcutta Has Her Biggest Fire Yet

The last four weeks are spent in a training company where the students put into practical application the methods of leadership they have learned in the classroom.

T-Sgt. F. J. Foster, 6162nd Supply Sq., and Fighter wing, Johnson A. F.-B., Japan, returned home last week from overseas because of the illness of his mother, Mrs. Mary Foster, of Oak Grove. He has a 30-day furlough.

Families Of Train Victims Will Get Over $1,160 000

Washington, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Families of those killed in the Pennsylvania railroad commuter train wreck Feb. 6 at Woodbridge, N. J., will receive a total of at least $1,160,000 in eventual social security insurance payments.

Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing released this figure today. He based it on the average social security wage account and family status of 20 of the 73 victims who had such federal protection. Eighty-four persons died in the wreck, but some were not covered by social security.

The first 20 survivor cases are now being processed for speedy payment by the Asbury Park and Perth Amboy, N. J., field offices. Ewing said families of the other 53 persons known to have been insured have not yet filed claims.

The social security administration estimates that the average monthly benefit payment will be $45 to widows and $44 to children. In the 20 cases being processed only 11 of the 18 widows have minor children.

Ewing said the $45 widow and $44 child benefits are close to the maximum now payable and reflects the generally high earnings credited to the social security accounts of the insured victims.

He said payments to all of the insured survivors will reflect the increased benefit rates provided by the recent amendments to the social security act. Thus the average family payment to a widow with two children will be about $133 a month "and may total as much as $28,000."

Ewing said two cases of dependent parents are included among the early insurance claims, and one widow and her infant may be getting payments for the next 17 years.

Youth Admits Robbery Tour

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 17. —(AP)— A young Sanford man told officers today that he made a five-months tour of the south, breaking into autos, stores and apartments as he went along.

Detective Malcolm Beard said Donald Sharp Hubbuch, 23, confessed to a long series of thefts reaching to Louisiana.

Beard also said that Hubbuch related he had induced a pretty Orlando brunette to run away with him before he started his tour.

The officer said Hubbuch will be held in jail on charges of investigation until Monday when other charges will be placed against him. He said no charge will be made against woman who sat by in the police station as Hubbuch talked to detectives.

Included in the thefts which he admitted, Beard said were $10,000 worth of government bonds taken from a store at Breaux Bridge, La.

Austrian Reds

Vienna—(AP)—The Communists are likely to have no candidate in Austria's May 6 election of a president to succeed the late Socialist Karl Renner.

The Russians have called the election "illegal," but the Communists' real reason is thought to be a desire to conceal loss of prestige after their abortive general strike.

REDS CONCERNED OVER CASUALTIES

British Reporter Writes That Korean War Draining Heavily On China

New Delhi, India, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Heavy casualties in Korea are causing concern to Red China's leaders, a British correspondent reported today after a visit to Peiping.

Arthur Moore, corerspondent for the Hindustan Times, wrote that Manchurian hospital facilities have been unable to care for the wounded, and that the war has drained Peiping and Tientsin of their gasoline supply.

"The war in Korea, though waged on a very limited scale, is already somewhat of a surprise to the Chinese," Moore reported.

"Casualties are much greater than they anticipated. Hospitals in Manchuria are unequal to the influx. Hospitals in Peiping are heavily denuded of their nursing staffs as they have gone to the front.

"Though Chinese manpower may be inexhaustible, new China's statesmen are not inhumanly indifferent to the sacrifice of their soldiers.

"The gasoline problem is the major one. Peiping and Tientsin are gasoline-dry. In Peiping only top service (military) trucks and the diplomatic corps get gas. In both cities there are stray charcoal taxis and buses,....but men harnessed with ropes, poines, donkeys and oxen do all the haulage."

Moore is one of the oldest British journalists in India. He is believed to be the only non-Communist newspaper correspondent allowed to enter Peiping since the Chinese intervention in Korea. He sailed to Tientsin from India without prior Communist permission and, with the backing of the Indian ambassador, was permitted to go on to Peiping. He wrote his dispatch, datelined "At sea off the China coast," after his departure

He said Chinese-Soviet relations were still "consistently cordial." The recent Soviet announcement that dismantled Manchurian factories and the Manchurian railroad were being returned to China well ahead of the requirements of the Chinese-Soviet treaty, he wrote, "produced an outburst of gratitude to Russia in the Chinese press."

Nats' Pitchers, Catchers To Start Work Tuesday

Orlando, Fla., Feb 17. —(AP)—Washington pitchers and catchers will report to Manager Bucky Harris at Tinker Field here Tuesday, but the Senators' much publicized Cuban delegation will be missing with permission.

"Our Cuban boys have been playing winter ball and they're in pretty good shape already, so they'll show up on March 1 with the rest of the club," expalined Harris.

Unit Will Discuss Parish Fish Law

Clyde Nash, president of the recently organized Ouachita unit of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, last night said a special meeting of the unit has been called for Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the ballroom of Hotel Virginia.

Nash said the purpose in calling the meeting is to discuss the "forgotten fish law" which came out for an airing yesterday with the announcement by District Attorney Fred Fudickar that an enactment of 1943 banning fishing during the spawning season in certain Ouachita parish waters is enforceable.

Soon after the law went into effect it ceased to be enforced on the presumption that fish would help relieve a wartime meat shortage. Since the war, the enactment still was not enforced although still a parish ordinance.

Fudickar says he intends to enforce the law as long as it is on the statutes of his parish.

Argentine Still Leading In Mexico National Open

Mexico City, Feb. 17. —(AP)— Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo stayed out in front today with a par 72's in the Mexican National Open Golf Tournament.

The Argentine open champion has a total of 207 strokes for the three days play so far.

Vic Ghezzi is in second place with 211, on the basis of his 69 today. Tony Holguin, the defending champion, shot a 70 today for 212.

Jimmie Demaret carded 75 for a 214 total. He is tied with Agustin Martinez, the highest Mexican in the tournament.

Demaret, talking in the locker rooms later, threatened to sue the U. S. Professional Golfers Association "for everything they've got" if he and other U. S. players are suspended. The P. G. A. ordered its members not to play in the Mexican tournament this year, saying it was not a major tournament and conflicted with the Harlingen, Texas, Open. The P. G. A. may fine or suspend the players who disobeyed the order.

Ray Robinson Promises Miami Match In March

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Middleweight Champion Ray Robinson's next fight will be in Miami, Fla., in March, said Manager George Gainford today as offers poured in for Sugar Ray's services.

Gainford said Robinson would pick one of five opponents to be selected by Miami Promotor W. W. Peebles. The champ, who was to have fought Bobby Dykes under Peebles' promotion, was given permission to put off the bout so he could fight Jake LaMotta.

Robinson and Gainford put up a $3,500 forfeit to guarantee Ray's appearance, Gainford said.

St. Paschal's Parochial School of West Monroe is a relatively newcomer to high school basketball cricles, but followers have been greatly impressed by Janette Daigle, 17-year-old senior (above), who stands only five-feet-one yet is the school's outstanding forward. Playing only two seasons, Janette stole the show in the recent Northeast State College tournament although her team was beaten by three-time state champion Baskin. Against the high-geared Baskin team, Janette scored 23 points, practically and on long shots that broke up Baskin's zone defense, something few teams have been able to do recently. She got 20 points in the first half, but was checked only when Ruth Ragsdale, six-foot-plus guard was tagged to stop her. (Staff photo by Leon Noland, Jr.)

Loss Of Outstanding Backs Means Malone Must Rebuild Backfield

Spring training gets a delayed start in the camp of the Northeast Louisiana State Indians here tomorrow afternoon as Coach James L. Malone begins working toward the building of a machine capable of traveling in four-year company next fall.

The spring work has been put off for the past couple of weeks because of weather conditions, Coach Malone said, but equipment was issued the past week and the grid prospects given physical examinations.

"From the looks of things now, we'll have to rebuild our backfield, except at quarterback, and out line stands intact except for one position," Malone said.

Pat Mornell, star tackle who is transfering to Tulane, is the only loss in the line.

"Losing these boys will hurt us plenty," the Indian war chief declared, "and it will take lots of hard work and the appearance of some good new recruits on the campus to rebuild near the strength we were showing at the end of last season."

Several junior college transfers and some good boys fresh out of high school have already enrolled for this semester, but Malone said he is in no position to state their qualifications, but he "feels certain some of them will make mighty good additions since they have already been screened for their academic work and athletic ability."

Still a hanging question is whether Malone will continue with the "T" formation or revert to his old single wing style of play. He wasn't saying yesterday. Malone's finest teams here have been with the single wing, and the "T" is a Johnny - come - lately here. Maybe the show in the big bowl games last January 1, when single wing machines were unanimous in stopping, "T" formation foes may carry some weight in swinging Malone back to his old style.

M. FURGOL LEADS HARLINGEN OPEN

Moves Two-Strokes In Front Of 'Chuck' Klein; Max Evans Third

Harlingen, Tex., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Lean, lanky Marty Furgol of Long Beach, Calif., shooting for the cash he needs so badly, turned in a blazing six-under-par 65 today to shoot into the lead of the $10,000 Rio Grande Valley Open with a 54-hole score of 200.

Furgol came from a tie for second place to overtake Charles (Chuck) Klein of San Antonio, leader at the end of 36 holes yesterday.

Klein fired a two-under par 69 over the windy, barren 6,095-yard Harlingen Municipal course today to make his score 202. He slipped to second place.

In third place as the field looked toward tomorrow's final 18 holes and the $2,000 first money was Max Evans of Detroit, who carved out a 66 this afternoon.

A stroke back at 204 were Al Brosch, the red-head from Garden City, N. Y., and Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, the pre-tournament favorite. Brosch shot a blistering 66 today while Mangrum had a 69.

FLORIDA CLAMPS ON RACING NEWS

Orders 20-Minute Delay In Transmission Of Turf Results

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A 20-minute delay in transmission of race results from Florida tracks was ordered by the state racing commission today as an intended blow at gambling racketeers.

Attorney General Richard Ervin pleaded for the embargo in a two-hour hearing, declaring it would help state authorities in their fight to cut off the flow of information "which is the very life blood of the bookie.

A short time after the commission adjourned, Chairman Leo Edwards told turf writers in the press box at Hialeah that "information over the Associated Press wires for some reason ultimately has been going into illegal hands."

Edwards had no proof, but said he understood this was the main reason for putting the embargo into effect.

For the past year, Florida officers have been campaigning against illegal off - track betting, but Sheriff Tom Kelly estimated only this week that 500 bookies still are operating in the Miami area. Only pari-mutuel betting at the tracks is lawful in Florida.

The 20-minute rule, effective Monday, applies to both newspapers and radio. Only results of the last race each day and the feature race on Saturdays may be sent out immediately after official results are posted.

Ervin declared that "the Associated Press flashes instantaneous, accurate, printed race results to newspapers all over the country almost as soon as they appear on the tote boards."

"Nobody is claiming that the legitimate wire services serve the bookies," he said. But he added that the delay would "remove the temptation" for bookies to filch the legitimate wire results somewhere along the line.

Edwards said the rule was adopted unanimously and would "be given a thorough trial to see if it accomplishes the desired purpose. If not, we can rescind it at any meeting."

The commission will make a close check, he added, to determine whether the embargo has any effect on bookie operations.

Turf writers of Maryland, New York, Michigan and New England, here to cover the Hialeah meeting, adopted a resolution protesting the delay. They said they had been "insulted" by the suggestion that information to bookmakers was originating in the press boxes.

Going Away Scores Win In Miami Beach Handicap

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Going Away, one of the major reasons why Brookmeade was the top money winning stable in 1950, spoiled Chicle 2nd's chance to make racing history today by flashing to a length and a half victory in Hialeah Park's $10,000 added Miami Beach Handicap.

Chicle 2nd, Palatine's bargain Argentine gelding which never had tasted defeat in a turf race in Florida, was moving fast at the end of the mile and one-half turf race but finished a neck behind Cherry-Oca stable's Cuore for third money.

Going Away paid $5.80, $3.30 and $2.40 for $2 and earned $8,650.

Clair Bee Makes Apology For His Blast At Referee

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Coach Clair Bee of Long Island University's basketball team apologized today to W. H. Kisner, Jr., the referee he sharply criticized after L. I. U. lost to Arizona at Tucson Jan. 29.

Bee issued the public apology he said, at the request of Kisner, who threatened possible legal action.

Bee said the "potential defendant is as broke as the average basketball coach" and added:

"I hereby apologize to Mr. W. H. Kisner, Jr., for any quotation, direct or indirect, twisted, distorted or exaggerated, attributed to Clair Bee which has led or will lead anyone to believe that the said Mr. Kisner was or is dishonest, or questionable character, or was guilty of collusion with any person for the purpose of actions or deeds leading to the defeat of the L. I. U. basketball team."

After the 62-31 defeat by L. I. U. on Jan. 29, Bee criticized what he termed "bad officiating" and he singled out Kisner for particular rebuke. He was quoted as saying Kisner was "a dictator, antagonistic, dogmatic."

TULANE SWAMPS VANDY, 90 TO 55

Green Wave In Surprising Form To Beat S. E. C.'s No. 2 Team

New Orleans, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Tulane went on a big scoring spree tonight to smother Vanderbilt 90-55 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

Vanderbilt, second ranking team in the S.E.C. was figured to give Tulane plenty of trouble, but it turned out just the opposite.

Vanderbilt, defeated only by Kentucky and Tennessee in the conference, was no match for the accurate passing, ball hawking Tulane five.

Tulane did vary its offense some from its fast break to control ball against Vanderbilt, but the final score certainly doesn't indicate this change

Tulane Forward Mel Payton was the high point man in the game with 24. Ralph Pederson was next for Tulane with 22 and then Don Holt with 18.

Guard Jack Heldman was Vandy's high point man with six field goals and four free throws for a 16 point collection.

Lotowhite Wins At Fair Grounds

New Orleans, Feb. 17.—(AP)—T. G. Benson's Lotowhite won the $10,000 added A. B. Lolellier Memorial Handicap at the New Orleans Fair Grounds track today, closing strong to take the race by a length and a half.

Lotowhite ran the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:47 and returned the backers $5, $3.60 and $3.40. Lotowhite was coupled as an entry with T. P. Morgan's Thwarteu, which ran third.

Thelma Berger, the winner of two $10,000 races here this season, was second.

Bolingover took an early lead and held it until the head of the stretch, when Jockey Mel Peterson, aboard Lotowhite, made his move and took command. He won drawing away.

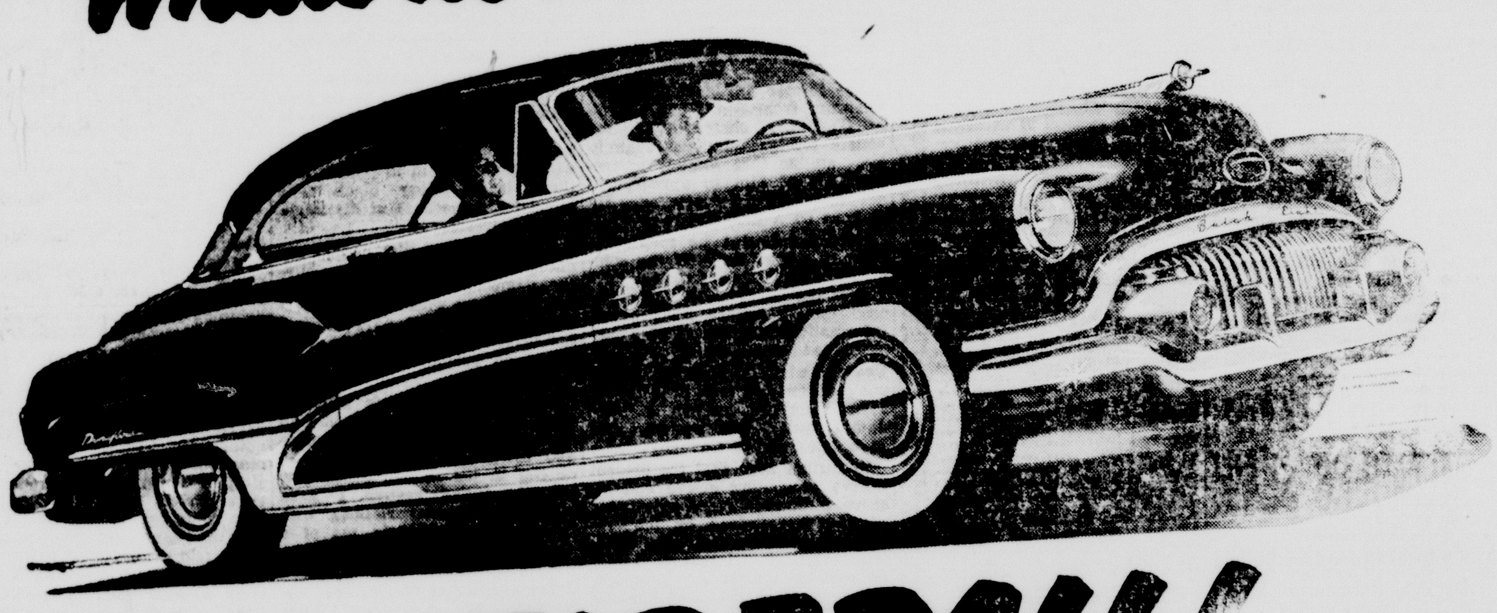
What's its Power?



FIREBALL!

(Only Buick can make this statement)

BEND an ear to the deep baritone song of this marvel motor, and you'll know we aren't fooling when we call it Fireball.

Mister, that's Power, with a capital P.

What happens beneath that brawny Buick bonnet happens in no other car in the world.

Years ahead of the rush to high-compression valve-in-head engines, Buick was in there pitching for more power from every drop of fuel.

The result was—and is—a spectacular engineering phenomenon that makes itself felt the instant you touch toe to gas treadle.

You command a rapid-fire sequence of tiny tornados, letting loose their pent-up power every five inches that a Buick travels.

If you could look inside that Fireball engine, you'd see the reason. Instead of the flat-topped pistons used in other cars, Buick uses a turbo-top piston, contoured like this:

So the inrushing fuel whirlwinds into a compressed ball that adds a super-urge to the downstroke of the piston.

And you get the thrill—and thrift—of this Buick "first" in every mile you drive.

More than that, you get an engine tried-and-true—an engine that's been polished and perfected in every detail up through the years.

Again and again, compression ratios have been stepped up to keep pace with advances in fuels. Self-setting valve lifters contribute to silence.

Micropoise balance and Hi-Poised engine mountings add two more Buick exclusives.

And the silken might of this Fireball's power has been made more beautifully obedient by still another "first"—Dynaflow Drive.*

So we list as a prime reason why "smart buy's Buick" this Fireball power plant—and a host of happy owners will say "Amen."

Better see your dealer soon, to find out what you've been missing.

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

By Richard Fiske

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Business and industry kept production wheels turning as best they could this week in a welter of confusion and dissatisfaction over price and wage controls.

As quickly as one problem was solved another cropped up. Strikes and raw materials shortages forced or threatened idleness on tens of thousands of workers.

Industries were just beginning to recover from the crippling walkout of railroad switchmen when the C. I. O. Textile Workers Union pulled 70,000 workers out of the woolen and worsted mills in a wage dispute.

It was the T. W. U.'s first industry-wide strike in its 11 years and it involved about half of the nation's wool and worsted workers.

It closed plants that have millions of dollars of defense orders. The plants included the American Woolen Company, world's largest maker of woolen and worsted fabrics.

Only a matter of hours before the strike, Emil Rieve, T. W. U. president, and the two other labor members of the wage stabilization board walked out on the public and industry members of the group.

The walkout was a protest against a formula that placed a ten per cent ceiling on wage increases between January 1, 1950 and next July.

It appeared that a rubber shortage would throw other thousands out of jobs.

The rubber industry has been hit hard by numerous government orders reducing the amount of rubber available for civilian manufacture.

B. F. Goodrich Company said because of the shortage it will start laying off 1,500 workers at Akron, O., next week.

The textile market was near a standstill as the New York cotton exchange remained closed another week awaiting clarification of the government's price freeze order.

Alexander Smith and Sons Carpet Company and C. H. Masland and Company said they felt the pinch of controls.

They withdrew all Smith and Masland carpets from sale pending relief from the price control order. They said with wool prices soaring and without a price increase "we find ourselves in an impossible situation."

Specific dollar and cents ceilings were placed on cotton seed, soybean and corn oil prices to prevent a boost in margaine prices.

Eric Johnston, economic stabilization director, hinted a plan was just about worked out to hold down food prices.

He said it was designed to equalize and stabilize both farm prices and industrial wages but he didn't give details.

Meanwhile, wholesale food prices continued their four-month climb and retail food costs took a larger bite out of the housewife's budget.

Many a consumer cocked an inquiring eye at stories of the sailing of the Italian line's steamship Saturnia from New York.

She had 1,300,000 pounds of American butter in her hold purchased from the commodity credit corporation at 17 cents a pound.

As the big vessel headed down the bay butter was bringing 70 cents a pound in the wholesale market in New York and was selling from 95 cents a pound upward in New York stores.

Consumer incomes remained at a record high and good weather sent store sales up to their familiar high levels after a sharp decline the previous week.

The big mail order house, Montgomery Ward, reflected the January buying splurge with sales 44.1 per cent over January, 1950.

The Savings Bank Association of the state of New York said dollar withdrawals exceeded new deposits in January. This, the bank said, might reflect the heavy buying of that month and the fact that many older depositors withdrew interest dividends to meet current expenses.

Industry went ahead with its expansion plans despite all obstacles. Minneapolis - Honeywell Regulator Company planned a new plant to double its aronautical production facilities. Chrysler Corporation's airtemp division blueprinted expansion to make range finders for the armed forces.

Industry was busy with research to save critical materials. New types of steel were being designed to stretch the short supply and new solders were being developed in which silver replaces 50 per cent or more of the tin normally used.

The steel industry itself was adding facilities. Industry observers said steel companies would have to use about 10,000,000 tons of steel to keep their own expansion programs moving during the next two years.

Business loans were at record high for the 20th week, an indication that business and industry was borrowing to expand and build stocks.

Carloadings improved as the effect of the rail strike lessened. Cold weather cut into crude oil production. Warmer weather cut down electric power output.

In many of the categories the latest figures were a week behind and did not truly elect current conditions.

But automobile production bounded back as rail shipments moved toward normal to bring output to the highest figure since last November—174,467 units.

Although using no live actors, a puppet show in television generally requires a production staff of a dozen, plus a studio staff of 15.

SEEKS RETURN ON GAMBLING LOSSES

Mississippi Woman Claims In Suit That Her Husband 'Being Enslaved'

Brandon, Miss., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A Rankin county woman today sued for the return of $17,399 she claims her traveling salesman husband lost gambling in a night club on the county's well known "gold coast."

Chancery Court Clerk Bryan Duncan said the suit was filed by Mrs. Bernice B. Mechatto against Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Steed, Rankin County Sheriff Troy Mashburn and his bonding company, Maryland Casualty Co., and J. W. Bradley, owner of the night club property.

In her bill of complaint Mrs. Mechatto charges her husband Jimmie was "fed free whiskey and became a habitual gambler" at Steed's place, which she identified as the Eastside Club.

During 1949, the complaint said Mechatto gambled away $10,000 of his own savings and drew $7,399 from his wife's account without ever winning a single time.

Mrs. Mechatto demanded a permanent injunction padlocking the club and barring Steed from operating a gambling place "anywhere in Mississippi."

She asked it, the suit explained, because her husband "has become an habitual gambler and if he gets the opportunity will again gamble and if Steed continues to operate the Eastside Club my husband will become enslaved to gambling."

Sheriff Mashburn was named as a co-defendant, the bill of complaint went on, because he "knew Steed is operating gambling devices, including dice tables and horse betting, but that Mashburn closes his eyes to such operations and wilfully neglects to enforce the law."

She added that Rankin county is "infested with gambling."

The gold coast, directly across the Pearl river from Jackson, has become notorious for its long lines of drive-in stands where liquor is openly sold in violation of the state's prohibition law. Several night clubs operate in the district.

The sheriff's bonding company is named, the suit added, because Mrs. Mechatto claimed "agents of the company condoned the attitude of the sheriff by staying on his bond where they knew or should have known by the exercise of reasonable care that he allowed illegal gambling."

Duncan said the bill of complaint was filed with him this morning but that he would not serve process in the suit until next week.

THREE QUARTET MEMBERS SLAIN

Fatally Shot In Hail Of Bullets During Rehearsal In Lady's Island

Beaufort, S. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Three members of a white male quartet died in a hail of bullets today on picturesque Lady's Island.

As they rehearsed their old songs in an automobile several hours before dawn, a figure approached.

"What are you folks doing" a voice inqured.

Other words followed, then an argument, and the three got out of the car. Shots from a .45 automatic rang out. The three slumped. The fourth, who remained in the car, was not hurt. He summoned help.

Officers sped to the scene. Others from Columbia, some 125 miles from this southeastern coastal town, brought bloodhounds. But before the dogs arrived, Smith Harvey, an Island Negro, had been taken in custody. The dogs later followed a scent to Harvey's home, the officers said. Harvey said he was innocent.

The dead, who lived in this town across from the island, were Wilson Lee McAlhaney, 21, telephone worker; Jadie Aubrey Godley, 29, telephone lineman and father of four children; and Lonnie Godley, a carpenter, who was Aubrey's brother.

W. C. Swain, a garageman on the island, remained in the car.

He later told his story to Coroner Roger Pinckney and Sheriff J. E. McTeet. The officers rushed the Negro to the state penitentiary at Columbia, although they said there was no indication of violence against him.

The coroner said he was told the slayer quickly produced his weapon and fired almost pointblank. He wouldn't say whether Swain told him that. Aubrey Godley had taken refuge under the car but a bullet found him there. His brother died later in a hospital. McAlhaney was mowed down at the start.

Officers wouldn't say whether Swain recognized the man with the gun. They said only that it was very dark at the time.

Harvey lived nearby. He was found at home. But officers said they did not find the death weapon.

It is estimated that 1,500,000,000 baby chicks are hatched annually in the United States, the majority of them in spring.

U.N. FORCES CHECK RED ASSAULT

U.N. troops, defending a 20-mile front (A) between Wonju and Chipyong, have checked Communist attacks against their lines in Korea. Near Seoul (B), held by the Reds, more than 1,000 Communist troops were reported killed in an attempt to gain a foothold on the south side of the Han river. Above the 38th Parallel, South Korean Marines captured two small islands commanding the Wonsan harbor (C). (AP Wirephoto Map).

HOOVER REFUSES TO BE PRESENT

Won't Appear Before Joint Committee On Sending Troops

Key West, Fla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover declined tonight to appear at present before a joint hearing of senate committees on sending American ground troops to Europe.

The former president, said a telegram from Sen. Tom Connally (D.-Tex.), chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, stating that some congressmen wished him to appear, did nc' constitute an invitation. He is here on a fishing trip.

Hoover indicated he might appear at a later date "if the committees themselves wished it" and if the committees first gathered "much further fundamental information and opinion of experienced and independent men."

Hoover, who has said he would not send another man or dollar to Europe until it erected a "sure dam" against communism, said in a telegram to Connally:

"I further urge that the present orders preventing active and reserve military officers expressing views not approved by the defense department should be forthwith removed and that such men be assured against any reprisals.

"Congress should have the full advice of these men. Further former ambassadors and civilians of experience in Europe should be called before the committees."

Referring to Connally's "courteous telegram" Hoover said:

"As this is not an invitation from the committees and as my views are already in the Congressional Record, it seems to me that before I can be of help to the committee some further action by them is necessary."

Hoover said it was particularly urgent that "the committees develop much more information and experienced independent opinion."

He added that he was making his reply public because "notice of my appearance before the committees has appeared in the press."

State Printing Bids Considered

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Louisiana's division of administration today took under advisement bids of nine companies on 19 classes of state printing for fiscal 1951-52.

Bidders included:

Enterprise Publishing Co. of Bogalusa; King-Hannaford Co. of Morgan City; Thomas J. Moran and sons of Baton Rouge and New Orleans; Ortlieb Press and Printing, Inc., both of Baton Rouge; Franklin Printing Co. of New Orleans; the Shreveport Engraving Co., Styron Engraving Co. and Standard Printing Co., all of Shreveport.

By law, state printing contracts are awarded to the lowest responsible bidder for an entire fiscal year. Bids are based on estimated requirements.

DeWitt Mackenzie

MacKenzie's Column

Secretary of State Achesons' statement to the senate foreign relations committee that he hopes Spain can be linked into the Atlantic community's defense plan, will be received with mixed emotions both at home and abroad.

There can of course be no question about the defensive value of Spain as an ally. This is true both because of her highly strategic position and because of her military strength.

However, there also can be no question that it will be long before Generalissimo Franco is forgiven for accepting Nazi and Fascist aid during his revolution which brought him to power. And there is a heavy black mark against him because of his totalitarian government.

Democracy and dictatorship are uncomfortable associates. Still, the democracies long have been doing business with totalitarian regimes (which need no identification here) and so there would seem to be no special reason for excluding Spain.

Speaking of Franco's relations with Nazi Germany, I ran into an interesting statement sometime ago by a German who was an official in the foreign office during the Hitler regime. I askd him about Spains rlations with Germany, and he told me of a meeting he witnessed between Hitler and Franco during the war.

The two dictators met near the Spanish - French frontier. Hitler asked Franco to permit German troops to cross Spain and establish a base near Gibraltar.

Franco refused, my informant related. Hitler begged and then raged, but Franco stood firm. Finally the Nazi chief, furious and white of face, turned his back squarely on Franco and stalked away. That was the end of this momentous conference.

However, Franco did have aid from Germany and Italy and therefore in many minds remains tarred with the Nazi-Fascist brush. Naturally the question of including Spain in the Atlantic treaty isn't a matter to be decided by America. It is an international problem.

The Latin American countries generally would be for resumption of normal relations with Spain. However, Britain probably would be considerably embarrassed because of anti-Franco feeling among her people. The same would be true of France. And naturally all Communist sympathizers are against Franco Spain because the Spanish Republican government which Franco overthrew had a decidedly Red tinge.

Still, all things considered, one would expect that the democracies would try to get Spain into the Atlantic alliance in due course—perhaps sooner than later. Should Franco agree to this, he would bring to the alliance great strength, both because of his army, which is one of the largest in Europe, and bcause of Spain's strategic position at the gateway between the Mediterranean and the Atlantic. Secretary Acheson summed the position up like this:

"The importance of the assistance of Spain in the defense of western Europe is clear. The relations of this country and other countries with Spain, I hope, are entering a new phase."

RED BIRDS ARE NIGHT OWLS

St. Louis—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals should change their name to the Night Owls. Out of a total of 77 home games the Cards will play only 12 daylight contests during the week. They will play 12 other Sunday games in the afternoon. The remainder of their 54 home contests will be played at night.

The Red River of the North, which crosses the U.S.-Canadian border, is so called to distinguish it from the Red River which forms part of the Texas-Oklahoma line.

TRUMAN SEES BEST WEAPONS

Says 'We Are Putting Forth All These Efforts For Peace'

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., Feb. 17. —(AP)— President Truman saw the army's finest weapons at work today and remarked:

"We are putting forth all these efforts for peace and not with any idea of destroying any other nation or any other government."

Whether Mr. Truman meant this to be a reply to Prime Minister Stalin was not stated. However, the president's remarks followed closely on the accusation of Stalin yesterday that the United Nations "is becoming a weapon of aggressive war."

Mr. Truman sat through a bleak winter rain to watch the big guns perform. The experts at this 75,000-acre ordnance testing and development center snapped through their full routine for the commander-in-chief.

Heavy weapons shook the earth. A new eight-inch motorized weapon rolled into position and began firing within three minutes. The army paraded its T-41 light tank, billed as "the world's best," just starting in production.

The president saw two experimental infantry arms in action:

An ultra-light weight 30 caliber rifle which fires both single shots and at full automatic rate, and a 60 caliber machine gun.

Before going to the firing "front," Mr. Truman received a high speed lecture in the ballistics laboratory. An artillery captain in World War I, the president nodded and grinned when a lecturer pointed out new developments in artillery firing tables.

In an impromptu speech at lunch later, he said that because of his own war training he could understand "to some extent" what "those highly educated gentlemen were talking about."

Mr. Truman had lunch with the enlisted men. His host was Master Sergeant William G. Zitzmann of Irvington, N.J., a reservist on duty here since last October. He introduced the president and sat at his left during the meal.

Mr. Truman carried his own tray through the chow line and to the table where he chatted with the men around him. In his speech he said the visit had been "very satisfactory." He recalled he had last visited the center in 1943 with a group of congressmen inspecting new weapons of that mid-war period.

After lunch he witnessed a demonstration of the army's highly complex electric brain computor—called "eniac"—which performs scores of militarily important lightning calculations.

The president's reaction: "How long does it take to train a man to operate this?"

The answer: Six months—and the man has to be a mathematical expert at the start.

Then Mr. Truman went to witness some highly secret demonstration from which reporters were barred.

It apparently involved some form of heavy explosive, since officers said the president would witness the demonstration from a concrete underground bomb shelter, seeing the test through a periscope.

This, of course, promptly revived rumors of an atomic artillery shell demonstration but considering the comparatively small size of this proving ground and the closely built up communities in the vicinity it appeared unlikely that an atomic charge would be detonated.

Mr. Truman left Washington for the inspection tour after an early breakfast with his daughter, Margaret, at his Blair House residence. He planned to be back in the capitol tonight in time to observe Margaret's birthday at a family dinner.

LOCATION

The owner's are leaving town and would gladly take this home with them if it were possible. They will think often of the 14x22 living room as well as the cozy pine paneled den. They will remember, too, all the nice meals prepared in the light and airy kitchen and served in the large dining room. In fact they just hate to leave this home with the two bedrooms and 7 closets, plus the attached garage and graded yard, all on paved street and in an excellent neighborhood.

Who will be next to enjoy this attractive brick home? The price is only $15,750.

QUESTION OF 38TH PARALLEL DEBATED

Lie Says Matters Of Military Policy Under Constant Consultation

Lake Success, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The question of the 38th parallel and all matters of military policy in Korea are subjects of constant consultation between the U. N. command and all members taking part in the fight against aggression, Secretary-General Trygve Lie said today.

The top U. N. secretariat official told his first news conference of 1951 that, no matter how unfavorable the prospects may seem to be at any given moment, the U. N. must stick to its fight against aggression and its attempts at peaceful settlement "with sanity, patience and steadfast purpose."

Lie knew questions would come on the current controversy whether Gen. Douglas MacArthur should cross the 38th parallel, the old boundary between Communist North Korea and the South Korean government sponsored by the UN. He knew also that Prime Minister Attlee of Britain had said there must be consultations on that question by all interested governments and that President Truman had said that crossing the line was a strategic matter in the hands of Gen. MacArthur.

So Lie read the following brief statement:

"I have been informed that constant consultations are taking place between the unified command and all member nations participating in UN action in Korea, with regard to matters of military policy, including any questions regarding the 38th parallel."

He refused to budge from that prepared statement and referred all later questions on the parallel back to that one sentence.

The situation regarding the 38th parallel issue in the UN briefly is this:

1. A UN directive allowing Gen. MacArthur to cross the parallel, approved last October, stands unchanged. MacArthur crossed the line once under that authority and it has not been withdrawn.

2. Some delegates attach great political significance to the 38th parallel and they want the UN forces to halt there for a month or so at least to see if the Red Chinese would make any moves toward negotiations for a settlement. These delegates, especially some from India, have maintained Communist Chinese fears of invasion caused them to pour into Korea last fall.

3. Other delegates say that MacArthur has the authority now and he should not be handicapped by political discussions on a subject already decided. The question is expected to break into the open whenever it appears the UN forces can cross the parallel but it is generally recognized here that such talk now is, as MacArthur says, "academic."

Lie told the reporters that the UN has been pursuing two lines of action. He said one has been the "unswerving" fight against armed aggression in Korea. He said 26 countries have offered military assistance, including field medical units, transport and material which are either in action, en route, or accepted for use.

The secretary-general said some quarters lacked patience with three months of talk they regarded as a waste of time while men were fighting and dying in Korea.

"That is not a fair, or a correct view," Lie said. "Actually the United Nations forces in Korea all this time have been imposing the most severe and effective military sanctions against the Chinese and North Korean forces.

"These sanctions have been imposed by a truly international army, almost half of whose members are American, it is true, but of which 52 per cent are from Korea and a dozen member countries. These men have been and are fighting with great gallantry and skill between their American and Korean comrades."

GROWTH OF THE KINDERGARTEN

Job, Drinks, Romance Is Offered In Ad

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The newspaper ad said: Wanted, sec'y, cocktails at five; employer guarantees husband in six months.

Getting secretaries in this world defense capital sometimes comes hard. But the ad, placed in the Washington Post by the American employment board was flooded with calls — at least 300. The ad was withdrawn but the job seekers carried on until the swank men's shop (Kneesi and Adler) which wanted a secretary hired tall, handsome Elenore Nelson, formerly of Minneapolis.

She got the job, she said, because she can type, take dictation and is wiliing to try her hand at selling. For the past four months she's been a navy department clerk.

She was only mildly "interested" in the fact that the shop serves cocktails everyday at five and is frequented by some of the towns most eligible bachelors. The three secretaries who preceeded her were married within a year, her bosses explained.

But, they added hopefully that Miss Nelson told them she "really isn't anxious to get married."

Many Changes In Children Of Kindergarten Age Shown

By Yvonne Britt

"The world changes, and so must the children who inhabit the worl says Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal of the Georgia Tucker Grammar school.

Miss Rodgers in comparing the kindergarten classes of 1923 and 1950-51 says that viewing pictures taken of the two groups one can plainly see the marked change that has resulted in children.

Children are more alert and understanding today because they have had more experience. The world has become smaller, due to extensive means of travel, so as to give many children an opportunity to travel and examine the world in which they live.

Youngsters in '23 were less concerned with what was going on outside their individual lives. They were far more carefree of the standard rituals of every day life than are our present kindergarten students.

These mannerisms all add up, but the direct contrast comes with clothing as worn then and that as worn today. hTe litle boys came barefoot to school, and most wore quarter length trousers. The high-top shoe with long stockings were worn by many young gentlemen when the weather was too cold for them to do without their shoes.

The young "Miss" of the day was wearing the fashionable "bob" with bangs. Her dress ensemble took many steps in fashion, but the principal display was that of the "blousie apron with long sleeves." Being a pert little "Miss" she rarely went without her hightopped shoes and long stockings.

When one walks into a kindergarten class today they find the young men wearing full length trousers, like that of his father, and either sandals or quarter length oxfords. The ever popular "T" shirt is always on display. But, with spring and warm weather in the air one rarely sees the shoe discarded for the freedom of barefoot, as his father had done.

The young "mademoiseille" as seen in the kindergarten classroom is wearing an ensemble which greatly resembles that of her mother's. The hair style is not restricted to a short bob, but is allowed either long or short to fit the individual.

The overflowing number of children who are eligible for the kindergarten grade have filled to capacity the school facilities alloted for them.

At the present time the Monroe City School Board is planning to enlarge the facilities of the grammar school. Mrs. Betty Cummings, kindergarten teacher, divides her grade, which consists of 66 students, into morning and afternoon classes, so as to give each child the individual attention which he needs.

Mis Rodgers attributes the growth of the undergrade to two factors. These are: The increase in population, and the encouragement and teacher training which has been adopted so as to express general application.

Also a large majority of parents have seen the advanced kindergartens in many communities and are eager for their children to have the training.

The principal stated that she wished to stress the fact that the program followed in 1923 is to a large extent the same as it isvbg same, but specialization has br abou many new teaching methods,' said Miss Rodgers.

Teachers follow a program of instructing kindgergarten students in readiness, adjustment, writing, music, living, art, and many other interesting subjects.

Planning Private Garbage Contract

New Orleans, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The New Orleans commission council planned today to have private contractors haul away garbage and trash accumulated during a three-day strike of sanitation and parkway commission workers.

The council authorized the taking of bids for the work today after replying to a union request for arbitration of a wage raise demand in these words:

"We will not negotiate, discuss or arbitrate this matter with the sanitation and parkway workers unless they first return to work . . . and then only in the light of other city employees.'

The 800 striking sanitation workers and 180 parkway workers are members of Local 282, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (A. F. L.). They are asking for a wage raise of $1 a day. Sanitation truck drivers now make $190 a month, the others $175.

Parkway workers failed to report for work today despite a city warning that those not reporting would lose their jobs. Tomorrow is the deadline for return to work of sanitation employees.

Joan Richards And Charles Lyle Cormack United In Marriage

Impressive Ceremony Solemnized In First Methodist Church In Lake Providence

Of widespread social interest throughout this area of the midsouth is the marriage of Miss Joan Richards and Mr. Charles Lyle Cormack, which was solemnized the evening of Saturday, February 10, at 6, at the First Methodist Church in Lake Providence, La.

The Rev. A. A. Collins heard the vows in the double ring ceremony. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ludwell Cormack, of Muskogee, Okla. and Mrs. Lawrence Harold Richards and the late Mr. Richards, of Lake Providence. The groom's grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Cormack of Muskogee, Okla., and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Webb, of Stigler, Okla. The bride's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Stephens Hill of Lake Providence.

Seven branched candelabra and floor baskets overflowing with white gladioli were effective against a background of Southern smilax, and made a picturesque setting for the candlelight service.

The prelude music on the organ played by Mrs. Herman Schwartz included "Oh! Promise Me" "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Schwartz accompanied Mr. Earle Kitts, soloist at First Methodist Church, Little Rock, Ark., who sang "Yours Is My Heart Alone" and "Because" as prenuptial numbers and "The Lord's prayer" at the conclusion.

The processional was the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" by Wagner. The recessional was the wedding march from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn.

The tapers were lighted by Miss Peggy Schwartz, wearing a gown of orchid net and satin, with buttoned moulded bodice fronted with a wide folded shawl collar which began with narrow erect collar at the back and widened to the front to circle an inset of net. The bouffant skirt was of net. An arrangement of canary gladioli adorned her golden tresses.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother Mr. Lawrence Harold Richards of Tulsa Okla., was beautiful in a gown of bridal white satin with yoke of silk marquisette framed with wide bertha of rose point lace. The fitted waist was buttoned down the back with a sentinel row of self covered buttons. The fullness of the skirt cascaded into a handsome train.

From a satin cloche a finger tip veil of illusion created a mist about the bride's face. A strand of peals was the bride's only jewelry.

Her bridal bouquet of American Beauty roses gave charming contrast to her white wedding dress.

Miss Eleanor Hill of Dallas, Texas and Little Rock, Ark., cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor, and Miss Elna Mitchell of West Monroe, La., and Miss Alice Wrenne Clapham of Little Rock Ark., were the bridesmaids.

The bridal attendants wore identical models of satin and net with satin bodices shirred to the figure and fronted with wide folded collar which began in narrow depth at the back and widened toward the front, and framed an inset yoke of net. The bouffant net skirts, over taffeta, fell floor length. Miss Hill's gown was of ice green and Miss Mitchell and Miss Clapham's were in American Beauty shade, and each carried a colonial bouquet of canary gladioli mixed with maline, with wide satin streamers of matching shade falling knee length. Similar flowers were attractively arranged in the hair.

The groom had his father as his best man. The ushers were Gale Willis of Hutchinson, Kans. and Wendell Evanson of Smackover, Ark.

RECEPTION

Following the marriage ceremony a reception was given at the Legion Home on Bayou Tensas.

Mrs. Richards, mother of the bride, chose a caramel crepe formal, with bodice designed in black threaded ostrich plumes. An overskirt side drape cascaded to the hemline. She added a green straw calot and shoulder corsage of cypripedium green orchids.

Mrs. Cormack, mother of the groom, wore a black sheer with matching turban fronted with pink tulle over which vari hued jewels had been sprinkled. She wore an orchid as a shoulder corsage.

The guests were greeted at the French doors of the lounge by the bride and groom and the bridal attendants, Mr. and Mrs. Cormack Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hill and Mrs. L. H. Richards.

The lace-laid bride's table was centered with the three-tiered wedding cake, with each tier supported by a group of fluted confectioned columns and was topped with miniature bride and groom standing beneath an arch of lilies of the valley. Five branched candelabra burned at either end, and the bride added her bridal bouquet of red roses for color contrast. Mrs. Edward Fontaine of Ruston and Shreveport, gowned in pink net with self ruching outlining the drop shoulder and wearing a shoulder corsage of pink gardenias, and Mrs. Heiman Cohn wearing an early spring model of aqua organza embroidered in white floral pattern, with chevron insets of white lace, and shoulder corsage of white gardenias presided at the punch bowl and bride's cake, respectively. Mrs. Arnold Rosenzweig and Mrs. Malory Walsworth assisted in the serving courtesies.

Miss Laverne Davis of Newellton, La., gowned in light blue satin with petal points forming the bodice and wide midriff furnishing gathered skirt fullness, and wearing matching necklace and bracelet of rhinestones and Miss Phallie Evans, who later caught the bride's bouquet, gowned in decollete model of white banded in insets of embossed gold, presided at the bride's book for guest registering.

After a western wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Cosmack will live in Little Rock.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Mitchell, of West Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Toll, of Little Rock, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Cormack, Muskogee, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. Earle Kitts, Little Rock, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sevier Folk, Tallulah, La., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fontaine, Ruston, La., Mr. and Mrs. Alex S. Hill, Jr., and son Steve, Little Rock, Miss Eleanor Hill, Dallas, Texas, Miss Elna Mitchell, West Monroe, Miss Alice Wrenne Clapham, Little Rock, Ark., Gale Willis, Hutchinson, Kans., Wendell Evanson, Smackover, Ark., and from Little Rock, Jack Sebastian, Miss Jean Marshall, and Miss Donnie Bivens.

Walsworth entertained at a beautiful supper party following the rehearsal Friday evening, Feb. 9, at 7:30 for the marriage of Miss Joan Richards and Charles Lyle Cormack, which took place the next evening at six at the First Methodist Church. The supper guests included the bridal party, relatives and a few out-of-town guests. Chicken spaghetti was served with hot rolls, lemon pie and coffee. In the center of the table, laid with a Maderia cutwork cloth, was a low jade bowl filled with red carnations, and yellow acacia. Tall slim red tapers burned in brass candlesticks, matching those on the buffet and centering the individual tables palced about the room.

Guests included Miss Richards, Mr. Cormack, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Cormack, Muskogee, Okla., Lawrence Harold Richards, Tulsa, Okla, Miss Elna Mitchell, West Monroe, Miss Eleanor Ayres, Dallas, Texas, Gale Willis, Hutchinson, Kan., Wendell Evanson, Smackover, Ark., Steve Hill Little Rock, Ark., Miss Peggy Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Ouachita Public Library Sponsors Statemide Citizenship Project

Are you a ful ltime citizen? That is the question that every citizen in Louisiana is being asked. At a meeting of parish librarians held last August in Baton Rouge it was decided to sponsor a statewide citizenship project during the year 1951. The decision to sponsor and take part in such a program came from a recognition of the apparent apathy of many people in Louisiana to the role of a full time citizen. The Louisiana State Library is sponsoring this project and parish libraries all over Louisiana are serving as clearing houses of information for this project. You may be wondering just how this project is to be organized. There are three phases of the campaign. The first one is to encourage registration and intelligent voting. In Ouachita parish this phase of the campaign has already been adopted as the permanent project of the "League of Women Voters." The second project is to bring about a more complete understanding of and respect for state and national laws; and the third phase is to instill a deeper consciousness of each citizen's civic obligation to join and support movements for community betterment.

It is about time that all of us wake up to the fact that the privileges of United States citizenship—like all things worth having—have a price. If we want the rights and protection of citizenship, we must pay for them with certain accompanying duties. More than just a payment, the duties are essentially insurance on continuance of these rights. We enjoy freedom of speech and religion, the protection of our property, trial by jury the right to choose our work or profession and to decide where and how we shall live.

If we ignore the duties of citizenship, we will soon have no privileges left to enjoy. When we do not go to the polls to vote, for a good candidate, it is just as though we had supported them with our vote. By not respecting and obeying laws in small matters, we weaken legal processes and open the way for greater, more flagrant violations. By refusing to take part in civic planning, we contribute nothing to our community's progress, and we may actually be helping retard progress by letting unqualified or self-seeking individuals take over the reins.

If we expect to continue benefitting from democracy's freedoms, we must conscientiously become full-time citizens, willing to give the necessary time and effort to the duties which guarantee its rights.

One of the ways in which the Ouachita Parish Public Library is encouraging good citizenship is by distributing book lists called "a suggested reading list on full time citizenship." This list was prepared by the Louisiana State Library and contains many very important books which should make every one who reads them a better citizen. Some of the books listed are: "Understanding Politics" by L. M. Young. This book is especially written for the woman voter, but should be of interest to all voters. Another interesting book on this list is "A Time for Greatness" by Herbert Agar. This book is a call to America to rededicate herself to the applications of Democratic ideals of liberty and equality. "This I Do Believe" by David Lilienthal is a sound, sober and thoughtful testament of faith in the Democratic process.

How much do you know about the government of Louisiana. If you are not exceptionally well-informed, you would get much help from "The Government of Louisiana" by Coleman Lindsay. We cannot be good citizens unless we have some idea of the world in which we live. "The United Nations" by Louis Dolivet is a very fine book on this subject. Another phase of good citizenship is the conservation of natural wealth. "Goals For Survival" by Stuart Chase is a plan for budgeting our needs and resources. We hope that every borrower of the library will read at least one book on citizenship during the month of March and resolve to take seriously the duties of being a full time citizen.

Miss Betty Rinehart, Feted Bride-Elect, Honored At Beautifully Appointed Tea

Ed Harper Home Is Scene Of Social Event Planned By Three Hostesses

Beauty and hospitality reigned supreme last Sunday afternoon when Miss Betty Rinehart, bride-elect, was honored at a tea in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Harper. Entertaining with Mrs. Harper at one of the loveliest social affairs of the season were Mrs. Mattie Hamilton and Mrs. T. O. Trawick.

Receiving about three hundred guests calling between the hours of three and six o'clock were the hostesses, Miss Rinehart, Mrs. Roy Brooks, Mrs. A. N. Odom and Mrs. Calvin Fuller. They stood in the spacious reception suite which was banked with glistening magnolia sprays. Floral arrangements featured low containers with camellias and a particularly artistic decor of asters and maiden hair fern. Silver bells and white tulle added pretty notes to the design.

The honoree was charming in a soft pink floor-length gown. It was fashioned with a long lace basque joined to a full marquisette skirt in a scalloped outline of net pleating encircled by rhinestones. The sweetheart neckline was enhanced by similar trimming. Rhinestone earring and a corsage of pink camellias lent additional effectiveness.

Mrs. Harper was smartly gowned in gold crepe, designed with plunging neckline bodice and a long skirt that was marked by soft drapery on either side. Mrs. Hamilton was wearing an olive chiffon gown and gold earrings. A gold-studded neckline accented the waist which was joined to a full pleated skirt. The other hostesses, Mrs. Trawick, chose a turquoise lace dress that emphasized a full skirt of floor length. A rhinestone pin and earrings were smart details of her costume.

Miss Rhinehart's sister, Mrs. Brooks, was wearing a beautiful aqua chiffon dress featuring a pleated skirt. The bodice emphasized the neckline that was encircled by an attractive design studded with rhinestones. She also chose a shell pink marquisette designed with a square neckline basque and a long, full skirt. Those who received wore beautiful camellias.

In the large dining room were attractive floral designs. The buffet was centered with white stock and maiden hair fern, and flanked by silver holders bearing lighted tapers. The fire place glowed with burning logs while the mantel formed a pretty picture with its glossy magnolia leaves and tapers in silver candelabra on either side of an antique clock. These were reflected in the large mirror above.

Tall standards holding greenery and low containers filled with white camellias added festive features.

Centering the tea table was a silver epergne which overflowed with Madonna lilies, white roses and dainty fern. The base of the container also held nosegays of white stock, centered with white roses and tied with satin ribbons. On either side three-tiered silver candlesticks held lighted white tapers. Tea and coffee were served from handsome silver services at the ends of the table by Mrs. H. C. Mize, Mrs. D. I. Hirsch and Mrs. Marie Frazier.

Silver compotes and trays laden with sandwiches, cheese straws, small cakes, assorted nuts and mints embossed in valley lilies were passed among the guests.

Those who assisted in extending courtesies in the dining room were: Mrs. Ralph Reed, Mrs. Herbert Rinehart, Mrs. Malcolm LaFargue, Miss Vonnette Austin, Miss Mary Lou Trawick, Mrs. C. G. Pearce, Jr., Miss Jo Libby Johnston, Mrs. Jack Willis, Mrs. George Austin, Mrs. Pat Hamilton, Miss Irene Depkin, Mrs. Ike Hamilton, Miss Doris Brown.

Mrs. Thomas Gilhula, Mrs. W. C. Feazel, Miss Lallage Feazel, Mrs. Bishop Johnston and Mrs. Sherman Cox. All were formally attired and wore camellia corsages.

Presiding at the guest book was Mrs. Clay Wilson, who was wearing a smart black faille gown designed with a closely-fitting bodice and bouffant skirt, accented by rows of gold metallic trimming. A necklace of pearls and rhinestone stars gave added luster to her attractive costume.

Girl Scout News

At several Girl Scout meetings lately the girls have been very busy with tape measure, measuring waistlines to see how much each girl will give to the Juliette Low World Friendship fund. In other troops girls have voted to give a penny for each year of their ages, a penny for each letter of their full names, or to save a specified sum by self-denial to give to the fund, which is used to spread Scouting all over the world.

This week is a most appropriate time for troops to be planning and carrying out international projects such as contributing to the fund. Thursday is a day known in Girl Scouting as International Thinking Day, set aside for special thoughts for Girl Guides and Girl Scouts. We know it as Washington's birthday, too, but how many of us know that it is also the birthday of both Lord and Lady Baden-Powell, founders of Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements in England. From this came our own Girl Scouting.

Back to the pennies. Members of the girl planning board have decided that each troop will present its Juliette Low gift at the city-wide birthday program on March 11, observing the 39th anniversary of the founding of Girl Scouting in the U. S. A. Members of the planning board are busy helping the program committee of the council with other details of the program.

Appropriate to this month's emphasis on the international field, was the presentation of a United Nations flag by members of the Cosmopolitan Club. The girls will doubtless find many occasions on which to use this flag. Thank you, club members!

It's a good sign when an organization can welcome new members from time to time and we love to hear about those new Brownie Scout troops where girls are learning the ways of Scouting. The newest one is troop 23 at St. Matthews, sponsored by the P.-T. A. with Mrs. R. H. Hofler, Mrs. W. E. Moore, Jr., and Mrs. Glenn Williams as leaders, and Mrs. Albert Theriot and Mrs. Otterstrom as members of the troop committee. the following girls were invested last week as members of the Girl Scout organization and are now proudly wearing their Brownie pins: Elizabeth Brissett, Adeline T. Elias, Henrietta Henderson, Carolyn Ann Herr, Veloncia Hervey, Anita Ann Moore, Judy Kay Otterstrom, Jo Ellington Scroggs, Cora Ann Theriot, Judy Williams, and Romona Martinez.

Now we hope that parents of Girl Scouts and Brownies, troop leaders and council and committee members are planning to make the Girl Scout annual meeting Tuesday evening a real family affair.

Miss Patricia McCoy Becomes Bride Of Frank Harrison, Jr.

Nuptial Vows Solemnized In First Baptist Church In Jackson, Mississippi

A wedding of wide interest to a large circle of friends and relatives in both Mississippi and Louisiana was that of Miss Mary Patricia McCoy to Mr. Frank William Harrison, Jr., of Bastrop and New Orleans, La., Miss McCoy is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Julia C. McCoy and the late Charles Hall McCoy of Jackson, Miss.; and Mr. Harrison is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Harrison, Sr., of Bastrop, La.

Vows were solemnized by Dr. W. Douglas Hudgins, pastor of First Baptist Church, Jackson, Miss., before an altar trimmed with garlands of plumosus, backed by native greens and lighted by myriad pale pink tapers in pyramidal candelabra ranging from the lower level of the auditorium to the height of the magnificent and impressively lighted baptistry. White gladioli and tulips in tall arrangements marked approaches to the altar.

Candles were lighted by Pat Bunter and Reid French; and Mrs. T. A. Middleton, at the console of the organ, rendered a beautifully arranged program of prenuptial music consisting of: Bach's "Jesu of Man's Desiring"; Schubert's "Ave Maria"; "Clair de Lune"; Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Music"; and Bohm's "Still Wie de Nacht." Miss Estelle Hawkins, soprano, beautifully and artistically sang: Grieg's "I Love Thee" and "Through the Years."

Miss Doris Ann Moss was maid of honor, and Miss McCoy's sister, Mrs. Stone Smith, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were: Miss Elaine Comfort, Miss Josie Dean Castle, and Mrs. Lucille Yarbrough, also a sister of the bride. Ushers were: Mr. Tex Jackson, Summit, Miss.; Mr. Pat Hunter, New Orleans, La.; Mr. Reid French, Lake Charles, La.; and Mr. John Dale, Bunkie, La.

Bridesmaids and ushers, entering in pairs from the rear of the church, to strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, passed down the long isles and, crossing before the altar, took their places; four on the rostrum, a bridesmaid on each of the 'wo pairs of steps leading to the rostrum from the front, and two ushers on the altar level, while the maid of honor waited near the alt ar. The maid and matron of honor and all bridesmaids wore identical models of pink nylon net over taffeta, fashioned wifh fitted bodices, stoles of softly draped net, caught in front with pearls, and with billowing double-tiered skirts of graduated lengths. Haloes of pink tulle, twined with tiny pearls, were tied at the back of the head in an effect of soft veiling. Each bride's attendant carried an egg-shell white satin heart edged with pink tulle and with cascading satin ribbons, each heart bearing a fragrant bunch of violets mingled with pink sweetheart rosebuds.

Mr. Harrison, with his best man, Mr. Carl Turpin, of Bastrop, La., awaited his bride before this background of Valentine loveliness.

The bride, entering on the arm of her uncle, Mr. E. E. McCoy, of Meridian, Miss., who gave her in marriage, was radiant in a traditional wedding gown of candlelight duchess satin and French lace. The bodice, fitted to the waistline, was of lace, with long sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. The yoke of nylon illusion, edged in a scalloped fold of satin, was complemented by a single strand of baby pearls, gift of the groom. The full skirt of richly gleaming ivory satin fell into a long formal train. Her handmade cap was of imported French illusion appliqued in heirloom lace, with a finger tip veil. The bride's bouquet was artistically designed of slightly opened creamy white Joanna Hill roses and stephanottis in garlands arranged in semi-circles with white satin ribbons and streamers.

During the ceremony, Mrs. Middleton softly played Handel's Water Music; Caprice Vennois, by Kreisler; and Theme from Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony. At the conclusion of the vows Miss Hawkins sang "Benedictus Nuptialis," a composition of the bride's mother. The wedding march from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" was used for the recessional.

After a honeymoon in Monterey, Mexico, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison will be at home at 3339 St. Charles avenue, New Orleans, La., where Mr. Harrison is employed by the Union Producing Company as a geological scout.

Reception

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, Jr. were honored by a reception given by the bride's mother at her home on Ridgeway street.

The living room was lovely in the soft glow of pyramided candles reflected in a mantel mirror and with garlands of greenery mingled with Frenched carnations and other small white flowers.

Young Arthur Smith, nephew of the bride, greeted guests at the door and they were received by Mrs. McCoy who had chosen for her daughter's wedding a teale blue formal gown with beaded bodice and V-shaped neckline, with which she wore a corsage of talisman rosebuds. Mrs. Harrison, Sr., chose a plum colored crepe with square neckline and self-colored beading, with which she, too, wore a corsage of talisman roses. Others receiving with Mrs. McCoy and Mrs. Harrison Sr., besides the bride and groom were: Mrs. Stone Smith, Mrs. Lucille Yarbrough. Misses: Doris Ann Moss, Josie Dean Castle,and Elaine Comfort. Mrs. E. E. McCoy, of Meridian, gowned in turquoise blue crepe, and wearing a corsage of pink carnations, stood at the end of the receiving line and invited guests into the dining room.

The bride's table was covered with a linen cloth of Italian cutwork and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake iced a delicate pink, with decorations in white, and topped by a floral nosegay of stephanottis and candytuff. Silver candelabra held lighted pale pink tapers at each end of the table. The buffet featured a fan-shaped arrangement of shaded pink gladioli and light pink candles in silver candelabra. At an antique marble-topped table on the side, punch was served by Mrs. Bris Higman and Mrs. Dick Farr Jr. from a handsome cut glass punch bowl surrounded by pink camellias. Miss Shirley Smith, niece of the bride, dainty in a long dress of blue nylon net over taffeta, banded in pink satin folds, passed salted pecans and pink and white mints. Petit four cakes, iced to match the bride's cake, were served by Misses: Betty Jean Holler, Dorothy Singletary, and Roberta Whitfield, all of whom wore wristlets of sweetheart roses on velvet bands to harmonize with their formal gowns. Mrs. Ruth Maddox and Miss Frances Hunter assisted in the dining room and invited guests into the hall where Miss Betty Clifton Conner, Columbia, Miss., cousin of the bride, presided over the bride's book and pointed the way to the gift room. Mrs. Beatrice Boyette, lovely in brown velvet, with a corsage of talisman roses, presided in the gift room and graciously bade goodbye to departing guests.

For traveling Mrs. Harrison wore a navy blue spring suit, dusty rose hat, and navy accessories, with a white orchid corsage.

Rehearsal Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. McCoy of Meridian, Miss., uncle and aunt of Miss Pat McCoy, bride elect of Mr. Frank W. Harrison of New Orleans, La., entertained handsomely at Fagan's Parlors on North State street in Jackson at a rehearsal dinner honoring their niece and her bridal party on Friday evening, February 2.

The parlors were tastefully decorated with traditional bridal colors of white and green, featuring white roses in the north and south parlors and an artistic floral arrangement of white snapdragon, gladioli, and carnations centering the beautifully appointed long dining table which was covered with an embroidered Irish linen cloth and was graced at each end by tall white candles in silver candelabra. Place cards featured dainty white bridal slippers and favors were small gold ornamental slippers. A delicious menu was served to:

Miss France Leigh Ritter Bride Of John Edward Reardon

Couple Exchange Nuptial Vows At High Nuptial Mass In St. Matthew's Catholic Church

One of the loveliest weddings of the season was that of Miss Frances Leigh Ritter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen oseph Ritter, when she became the bride of John Edward Reardon, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Reardon.

The marriage was solemnized at the Saint Matthew's Catholic Church Saturday, January 27, at en o'clock in the morning with the Monsignor J. C. Marsh, officiating.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive doublering service before the altar which was beautifully decorated with a profusion of white calla lilies and fern. Branched candelabra held a myriad of slender white cathedral tapers.

Mrs. Florence Zeigler Albritton, organist, rendered several selections of prenuptial music and accompanied Mr. Charles Biggar soloist who sang "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus." The traditional wedding marches from Wagner and Mendelssohn marked the beginning and end of the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was beautiful in her wedding gown of bridal satin, fashioned with a deep set yoke of nylon marquisette and embroidered with seed pearls. The long satin sleeves coming to points over her hands, were fastened with covred buttons, which also adorned the back of the tight fitting basque waist. The full skirt extended into a cathedral train.

Her veil, of finger-tip length was of imported silk illusion, and fell from a coronet embroidered with pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley centered with a yellow orchid with stephanotis and cascade streamers of white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Gene Ritter was matron-of-honor and Miss Peggy Frantom was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Alice Rolleigh, Miss Mary Agnes Rizzo and Miss Marion Huckaby. They wore identical models of pink imported nylon net over taffeta with tight fitting bodices of lace. The matron of honor was wearing blue imported nylon net identical to the bridesmaids. Their mittens were lace and they were wearing bonnets of matching taffeta with spring flowers on one side. They were carrying taffeta muffs and nosegays of mixed spring flowers.

Mr. Pat Reardon served his brother as best man. The groomsmen were Mr. Gene Ritter and Mr. Michael Ritter, brothers of the bride, Mr. William Crowe and Mr. James Watkins.

Mrs. Ritter, mother of the bride, was striking in a blue suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white gardenias. Mrs. Reardon, the groom's mother, was wearing a suit of plum color and accessories of navy with a corsage of pink camellias. Mrs. Charles Parry, sister of the bride, was lovely in a moss green suit with accessories of brown and hat of toast satin.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's family for members of the two families and close friends.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mr. Ritter. In the receiving line in the adjoining reception room were the bride and groom, their parents, and members of the wedding party.

Mrs. Charles Parry, Mrs. E. L. Covin an Mrs. Wayne Huckaby assisted as hostesses.

Attractive arrangements of snap dragons, blue iris, painted daisies, and candytuft were placed at vantage points throughout the reception suite. The mantel held a bouquiet of mixed spring flowers flanked by branched iron candelabra with burning white tapers surrounded by magnolia leaves.

The bride's table was covered with a beautiful white linen cloth and centered with the three tiered wedding confection embossed with lilies of the valley and topped with a miniature bride and groom. The Review Club Meets In The Home Of Mrs. DeWitt Henry

The Review Club met Monday, February 12, with Mrs. DeWitt Henry at 2301 Jasmine.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Durwood Griffin presented a short article, "The American Porposition," taken from the Febraury issue of Fortune magazine. In the article, the editors of Fortune reaffirm the proposition — "not as an academic exercise in eighteenth century philsophy, but as it applies to the men and nations of our time." They attempt "to define the American proposition as we understand it and as we wish to advocate it." Mrs. Griffin brought out that the article emphasizes the individual who "must be entitled to live by the laws of God, not just by the laws and directives of men." In summary, it is brought to our attention that "we cannot by ourselves reach these higher aspects of freedom; we can reach them only if the proposition is accepted as universal and if we can learn to share it with other peoples of the earth for it belongs to all mankind."

Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Jr., educational chairman for the Review Club, gave an interesting report on one of the most controversial questions in present day educational methods. The question was concerning the teaching of religion in the public schools. Mrs. Mitchell said in part: "We have a right to demand that each public school student shall come out with a more acute sense of right and wrong, higher ideals, a more independent and manly character, a higher conception of his duty as a citizen, a more laudable ambition than when he entered. The noblest ideals of character are to be found in the Bible — to emulate these is the supreme conception of citizenship."

The review for the afternoon was given by Mrs. Frank Breese. The book was "Down Cape Cod" by Katharine Dos Passos and Edith Shay. The authors skillfully blended a comprehensive guide to the seventy-two miles of seawardstretching land and a narrative with plenty of background flavor. Cape Cod, primarily known for its fishing and allied industries, is also renowned as a haven for artists. Mrs. Breese brought out the fact that the first Little Theatre was established in this section of the country. The book includes sections dealing with all phases of Cape Cod life from architecture to recipes of cod fish muddle. For natives of the Yankee coast or for anyone planning a visit to that section of the country the book would be interesting and informative . . . However, Mrs. Breese said that she did not recommend it for an evening of light

The following members enjoyed the social hour that followed: Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Mrs. F. V. Barnett, Mrs. C. B. Braun, Mrs. Fank Breese, Mrs. J. K. Brothers, Jr., Mrs. Ben Cobb, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., Mrs. Durwood Griffin, Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Mrs. Sam Smith, Mrs. Lea Thompson, Mrs. Corbin Turpin, Mrs. L. N. Waddell and the hostess, Mrs. DeWitt Henry.

BOOKS and MUSIC

THE JAZZ AGE In Books

It may be the uncertainty of a war-weary world, or the unconscious clinging to a racy, reckless past. It may be morbid curiosity. Whatever the reason behind the astounding fact, the astounding fact is that once again the high-and-heavy Twenties have come back for a whirl and a fling.

The epitome of this era was Novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald, and it was he who named it "The Jazz Age." And none in all the world of those flappers and speakeasies so personified the Jazz Age as did Fitzgerald himself.

The return-to - Fitzgerald mania which is sweeping the nation today had its birth in last year's novel, "The Disenchanted," in which Budd Schulberg described the last days of an author-gone-to-the-dogs, and so resembling Fitzgerald that he was too close for comfort. Schulberg wrote a powerful, beautiful novel . . . and the Fitzgerald boon was on!

Editions of Fitzgerald's first novel, 'This Side of Paradise," a promising novel that had the country buzzing, were out of print, but publishers have rushed them back to machines. Calls for the two novels for which Fitzgerald will be most remembered, his challenging "Tender Is The Night" and provocative "The Great Gatsby" have created an avalanche. And now Arthur Mizener has written a biography, "The Far Side of Paradise," which readers and critics alike are taking to best-sellerdom.

Scott Fitzgerald was one of the most feted writers of the Twentieth Century. He was also one of the most neglected. Now, when the age he pictured is but a glittering reminder, he enjoys the final triumph of the greats. He wrote one near-perfect book, the unforgettable tale of Gatsby. Such short stories as "Crazy Sunday" have never been topped. But what Scott Fitzgerald left was more than a few fine works: he left a legend, an unmistakable tragedy, and the final chorus of what Budd Schulberg has deemed, "an American roller-coaster hell."

In Records

The race is really on. The roller-coaster days have seen no timelier backward glance than Columbia's narrative album, "I Can Hear It Now," the third in a series which covers the years 1919-1932 (in albums 33, 45, 78). Written and edited by Fred W. Friendly and Edward R. Murrow, and narrated by Murrow himself, this re-creation on record of the Fitzgerald era can be played while you read "The Great Gatsby," and the entire story of a people and an age racing headlong to their own destruction hits you full-wind in the face!

The Murrow narrative takes us back through the trying days of Wilson and the League, through the scandals of Harding and Teapot Dome, through the speakeasy madness of Coolidge and prosperity. Along the way there's Al Capone surely Gatsby knew him well) and Sacco and Vanzetti and Dempsey and Tunney and prohibition and the fatal '29.

And side by side with Murrow's script is Columbia's "Carnegie Hall Jazz Concert," another testimony of the return to flapperdom. Here Benny Goodman, Harry James, Gene Krupa, Cootie Williams and a host of other names re-establish such 1920 gems as "The Man I Love," "When My Baby Smiles at Me," and "Shine." Again, the glitter and glamour abound.

In Sheet Music

But the return to the glitter and glamour has not been left merely to the publishers and the record companies. It has found its way ummistakably to the American home and piano. Even the bobby-soxer, a 1940-50 creation, has begun ordering such sheet-music portfolios as the Feist Company's "Cavalcade of Song Hits," which publishes the music and lyrics of the popular songs from 1914 to the beginning of the 1940's. Accompanying the songs are the historic events of those years, told in a swift-paced narrative that brings the Fitzgerald era to the world of home-made song.

And the music? 1924's "I'll See You In My Dreams;" 1928's "Ramona" and the dreamy, carefree tunes of the years between and representing the heighth of Jazz Age philosophy in popular music was "Sleepy Time Gal." Again, in such portfolios as "Cavalcade," it is being sung and remembered. "Sleepy Ti. . Gal, when all your dancing is through. . . ." In those lines themselves is a minor key to the times that produced it.

And what was the essence of this age of jazz in which such stellars as Zelda Fitzgerald (Scott's flapper wife) guzzled champagne and danced on the tables to the music of "Sleepy Time Gal?" Perhaps it is not for us to say. Fitzgerald himself told it all too well. In the final breath of his "This Side of Paradise," he reaches the core of that alcoholic era!

"Here was a new generation, dedicated more than the last to the fear of poverty and the worship of success; grown up to find all Gods dead, all wars fought, all faiths in men shaken."

In that is the Age of Jazz.

Miss Betty Jo Henry Weds Mr. Charles Allen Oxford

Impressive Double-Ring Ceremony Solemnized In Home Of The Bride's Parents

Of considerable affectionate interest to numerous friends in this section is the marriage of Miss Betty Jo Henry and Mr. Charles Allen Oxford which took place Friday evening, February 9, in the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Henry, West Monroe. Mr. Oxford is the son of Mr. A. Carlisle Oxford of West Monroe.

The Rev. R. H. Staples, pastor of the First Methodist Church, West Monroe, was the officiating minister and read the double ring service in the presence of members of families of the two contracting parties and a group of close friends.

The young couple stood beneath an improvised altar which was entwined with southern smilax, the cluster of wedding bells directly overhead caught with airy illussion bows. White gladioli overflowed from side baskets and tall white tapers burned in branched candelabra to provide the soft light for the ceremony.

Mrs. Jack Willis played wedding music while Mr. Bruce Landis, cousin of the bride lighted the candles, thus enhancing the effectiveness of the service. Mrs. Willis used the traditional marches to begin and end the ceremony.

Mrs. Bruce Landis of Winnsboro preceded the bride to the altar and was becomingly attired in a tailleur of blue light weight wool, complimented by a corsage of pink rose buds.

Mr. Lake Oxford served his brother as best man.

A picture of girlish lovliness was presented by the bride as she walked to the altar on the arm of her father. Her becoming suit of beige was in perfect harmony with her hat and shoes of a slightly-darker shade.

She carried a white Bible surmounted with a single purple orchid with tiny white satin streamers caught with valley lilies, and which she later wore on the wedding trip.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Henry home when the bride and groom cut their wedding cake before leaving on a honeymoon trip to Jackson and other points in Mississippi.

An Italian cut work cloth covered the bride's table which was centrally appointed with a silver epergne of white stock and candytuft, with slender white tapers supported by silver holders at either side.

At one end of the table, Mrs. B. S. Landis, Jr., of Winnsboro, presided over the silver coffee service, while the beautiful wedding confection, surrounded with valley lilies, was placed at the other end.

Assisting in the serving courtesies were Miss Mary Lee Frost, Mrs. Lake Oxford, Mrs. Bruce Landis and Mrs. John P. Lewis.

The bride was graduated from Neville High School, Northeast State College and received her B. S. degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, and is a member of the faculty of Claiborne Elementary School. The groom received his early education at Piedmont, Missouri, and was graduated from Ouachita Parish High School, and is a graduating senior at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, majoring in business administration.

The young couple will be at home to their friends at 108 Austin avenue, West Monroe.

MRS. CHARLES MITCHELL IS HOSTESS AT MEETING OF LOUISIANA COLONIALS

The members at large of the Louisiana Colonials residing in Monroe and vicinity met with Mrs. Herbert C. Parker, honorary president and registrar of the New Orleans Louisiana colonials, at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell Saturday afternoon February 10.

Mrs. Mitchell introduced Mrs. Parker who spoke on the objects and purposes for which the Louisiana Colonials were formed. She said in part:

"Perpetuating the memory and spirit of the men and women who were identified with the colonization of the original Louisiana province before its cession to the United States of America, April 30, 1803; by collecting traditions and memoirs, and by investigating, preserving and publishing authentic records of the Colonists, as well as assisting to preserve historical buildings, documents, relics and works of art of that time. Any person who can show at least one of his ancestors to have been a Louisiana colonist is eligible and is cordially invited to join this organization. Though one ancestor only having lived in Louisiana as defined at the time of or prior to its cession in 1803 is sufficient for eligibility in this organization, nevertheless, as a matter of interest, it is desired that as complete a record as possible be filed, as well preserved and authentic records of ancestry, may at some time be of inestimable value to members, or to their descendants.'

In speaking of the membership Mrs. Parker said that it was a great honor for a person, either a man or woman, to be a member of this organization, as both men and women were eligible. In speaking of the emigrants to Louisiana during both the French and Spanish colonial periods, she said that they were mostly drawn from the younger sons of the nobility who came to this country on adventure as officers in the army, soldiers or officials, their elder brothers having to stay at home to perpetuate their lines. She said that the membership would necessarily be limited as it would be drawn from those families who settled the land grants, whose descendants became the planter class of Louisiana.

She spoke of the fine work to be accomplished amongst the school children in preserving authentic historical colonial records, that legend and heresay should be substantiated by the proof. There is no need for legend as the Louisiana colonials of New Orleans have a fine library at the Cabrilbo and something pertaining to all colonial families is preserved there, both historical and genealogical; however, each family should endeavor to secure all the old Bible records pertaining to their family and place them in a fire-proof place to preserve them for future generations. She said that she hoped Monroe would form a permanent organization at this time and turned the meeting over to Mrs. Mitchell, the organizing president.

The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Albert C. Sanders, 2nd vice-president, Mrs. John W. Collens, recording secretary, Mr. Samuel Charles Scott, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ruby Oakland Warner, treasurer, Mrs. John M. Breard, registrar, Miss Mary O'Kelly, historian, Miss Marie Filhiol; librarian, Miss Olivia Scott; archivist, Mrs. L. D. Vaugh. Members of the board: Mrs. Darwin G. Nichols, Mr. Robert Hanna, Jr., Mr. Lucien N. Larche, Mrs. Robert Hanna, Sr.

After the meeting adjourned Mrs. Mitchell served tea to the members and guests. She was assisted in serving and extending courtesies by Mrs. H. Flood Madison, Jr., who presided over the tea table, Mrs. David L. Garrett, Mrs. Thomas G. Easterling, Mrs. Gladys Sperry, Miss Anita O'Kelly and Mr. Charles M. Mitchell. Mrs. T. Loring of New Orleans was an out-of-town guest.

CENTRAL P.-T. A. HOLDS MEETING

Interesting Program Is Presented At Founder's Day Observance

The February meeting of Central Grammar School P.-T. A. was opened with prayer by the president, Mrs. J. C. Liles after which the group joined in giving the pledge of allegiance to our flag. Following the report of the treasurer the president announced that the P.-T .A. carnival which was postponed due to the inclement weather will take place on Friday, February 23 in the school building.

Members of the nominating committee for the selection of officers for the coming year were elected.

The district P.-T. A. meeting to be held in Georgia Tucker School March 7 was announced.

The president again urged larger attendance at the Twin City council meetings the first Thursday in each month.

The second grade of Mrs. Edna Andrews was awarded the prize for having the largest number attending.

As a preface to her "Story of the P.-T. A." Mrs. Dale Martha invited the group to join with her in singing "The Bicycle Built For Two" typical of the nineteenth century during which the P.-T. A. was founded. She illustrated the continued growth and effectiveness of parent-teachers work by two stories which contrasted the working relationship between school and home prior to the founding of P.-T. A. and at the present time. She told many interesting facts regarding its beginning and gradual development and closed with the twentieth century song, "God Bless America."

A social hour followed during which the P.-T. A. birthday cake and delicious punch were served the guests from a beautifully arranged table by Mesdames J. R. Moore, Hugh Murray, J. E. Brennan and J. C. Liles.

Hardwood Mill To Undergo Repairs

Jonesville, Feb. 17.—(Special)—The Mississippi Valley Hardwood Mill here will shut down within the next two or three weeks for repairs and changes will be made in the boilers in an attempt to eliminate cinders.

An engineer will discuss with Mayor Dee Brown and members of the town council the work to be done to prevent cinders from the mill's smokestack flying over several blocks of the nearby residential area. There have been repeated complaints from residents of cinders settling on everything in the neighborhood from wash on the line to sheets on the beds.

DOROTHY DIX

Reader Says Man's Cheating Is Always Wife's Fault

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Women are always complaining about their philandering husbands, but I want to tell them that no woman ever lost her husband if she really and truly loved him. I am a middle-aged man and I know of what I speak. Wives take love too lightly. They think that if they make a comfortable home for their husbands they have done all that is necessary. They do not realize that men crave affection just as much as they do and when they get it at home they do not seek it abroad. That is why I believe a woman who really loves her husband and shows him that she loves him can never lose him.

A. W. B.

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: I think you are right to a certain extent, but not entirely. One-way love does not make a happy marriage any more than one swallow makes a spring. No woman can keep her husband faithful to her by loving him if he does not love her in return.

TOO MUCH LOVE

All of us know too many broken-hearted wives who have lost the husbands they worshiped, and who go on worshiping them even after they have found out that their gods not only had feet of clay but were made of mud, to believe that a woman can hold a man just by loving him. There are too many men who are incapable of any deep passion; too many men who are just rovers by nature, who must always have change in women, just as they must have change in environment, and who could not be faithful to any one woman.

But I do agree with you that the great majority of women who lose their husbands do so through carelessness or ignorance. Wives are forever complaining about their husbands, expecting them to take their affection for granted and never paying them any compliments or showing them any appreciation. How few women ever show their husbands any affection! How few wives ever tell their husbands that they think they are the handsomest and smartest men in the world and the most interesting talkers! How few wives ever show their husbands any appreciation and let them know they thank God for getting them for husbands!

DEAR MISS DIX: Five years ago I met a young man and fell in love with him. We had a terrible quarrel—it was as much my fault as his—and separated. A few months later we made up. Then one night we came home from a party and he has never spoken to me since. This happened three years ago. I have seen him every day since and he never speaks. It is about all I can stand. Now a young man who would make a good husband has asked me to marry him, but should I marry him when I love another?

PUZZLED

ANSWER: Evidently the young man does not love you and has no intention whatever of making up with you. He is hopeless, so far as you are concerned, and I should think your pride and self-respect would cure you of your infatuation for a youth who treats you so coldly. If you will just quit thinking about this boy and dreaming romantic dreams about his coming back, you can cure yourself of your love for him. But you will keep it alive as long as you encourage it by baseless hopes.

I think it is a most dishonorable thing for a girl to marry one man when she is in love with another, so don't add crime to your folly. And don't think you can make a man you don't care for and whom you marry only for a meal ticket happy by marrying him. You will ruin his life as well as your own by doing it.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

No Second Meld In Same Rank

One of the favorite questions of my readers for the last year or so has concerned the question of making two melds in the same rank. Here is a typical case:

"I held four kings and four deuces. Needing 120 points, I put down K-K-2-2 and then another identical meld of K-K-2-2. Was this a legal meld of 120 points?"

Until now, that meld has been legal. From now on, that meld is not legal. The new Canasta laws are very clear on this point.

You are never allowed to make a second meld in the same rank. The moment your side melds kings, for example, any other kings that you meld must be added to that original meld of kings. You may never start a second meld of kings.

This is not affected, of course, by the melds of your opponents. If your opponents meld kings, that doesn't stop you from melding kings also. The rule merely says that the same side cannot have two melds in the same rank.

What happens if a player accidentally starts a new meld in a rank that has previously been melded by his side? The new meld is simply added to the old meld.

Here we must add a word of caution. You are never allowed to have more than three wild cards in a meld. If the addition of a new meld to an old meld runs afoul of the law on wild cards, you are in trouble.

For example, suppose your side has melded four queens and three deuces. The canasta has been closed, and you happen to forget about it. Now you put down Q-Q-2 as a new meld. What happens?

The two queens are added to your canasta of queens. However, the deuce cannot be added, since the meld already contains the limit of three wild cards.

You may use that deuce elsewhere on the table, if possible. For example, you may add it to another meld. You may put down additional cards from your hand to make a legal meld with that deuce. If you have not already discarded, you may even discard that embarrassing deuce (thus freezing the discard pile, as usual.)

If any of these remedies is adopted, there is no penalty. If none of these remedies is adopted, you put the deuce back in your hand, and your side is penalized 100 points.

Mrs. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Hollywood, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The dear, old (24 years) academy, Hollywood's favorite target, was again under fire this week as its nominations for 1950 awards were announced.

No matter what the acad does, it seems to get criticized. But enough of the sympathy. Let's find out what all the beefing is about.

The main discussion seems to be over the nominees for best picture. They were: "All About Eve," "Sunset Blvd.," "Born Yesterday," "King Solomon's Mines" and "Father of the Bride."

No one disputes the right of the first two to be on the list. "Born Yesterday" is nowhere near a great picture, but, thanks largely to Judy Holliday's performance, it might possibly rank among the top five.

That brings us to "Mines" and "Bride." In discussing them, we should remember the initial purpose of the Academy awards—to raise the standards of film making by rewarding artistic merit.

And how do those two films hold up to that yardstick Granted, both were highly entertaining and are among the top money-makers of all time. But "King Solomon's Mines," however fascinating its backgrounds, was basically hokum. The same plot could have been filmed in New Mexico instead of Africa and it would have made a pretty good western.

"Father of the Bride" was an amusing domestic comedy, but nowhere near the high humor of Spencer Tracy's other film last year, "Adam's Rib." Despite Tracy's nomination for his performance in "Bride," it placed little or no strain on his talents. Or those of any other in the cast.

There were other films of artistic merit which the academy overlooked in its "best picture" selection. What about "The Asphalt Jungle" "The Third Man" "The Men" "Broken Arrow"

The selection of "Mines" and "Bride" makes it appear that the academy is paying heed to the popularity of films, as some of its critics have urged. But others argue that there are plenty of popularity polls and that the academy should return to its original purpose.

One of the popularity polls was announced this week with a big to-do. Photoplay tossed a banquet to proclaim that Betty Hutton and John Wayne were the most popular stars and "Battleground" the best-liked film of 1950.

Best part of the evening came after the show. Emcee Ronald Reagan had told the gathering that acting folk had been slandered by the "irresponsible" press. Afterwards, a few of the working columnists surrounded Reagan to debate the issue.

The actor claimed he meant "certain elements" of the press were irresponsible. "Who are they?" he was asked. "Name them in public." Unfortunately, he said, he could not. . . .

"I wouldn't believe it unless I saw it with my own blue eyes—mobster Mickey Cohen, followed by a hulking bodyguard, walking into the Warners Hollywood to see "The Enforcer." That's the film in which Humphrey Bogart mops up on murder, inc.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. S.

Answer To Question No. 1

1. Sometimes yes, sometimes no. It depends upon the persons—their grownupness and ability to understand human frailties. There are no sure-fire rules about love. I recently read a story about a doctor who divorced his wife and married a patient. His infatuation soon petered out, as it nearly always does, and his old love returned, as it also nearly always does. As a result, he his wife, his children and his second wife were all made unhappy.

Answer To Question No. 2

2. Apparently, yes. Psychologist P. L. Harriman compared two groups of adult women offenders in intelligence and interpretation of right and wrong. Those with an average IQ of 96 understood the significance of rules of good conduct better than those with average IQs of 76. They also had a keener sense of guilt and a stronger desire to reform when released.

Answer To Question No. 3

3. No. A person with a strong mind is more likely to possess strong, well-balanced nerves and brain. Psychiatrist Neil Dayton, after studying 90,000 cases, shows in "New Facts About Mental Disease," that more patients in mental hospitals are average or below average mentally. Highly-gifted children are far more likely than average persons to be poised, balanced, and well-developed physically.

MATERNAL CLINIC IS FAMILY AID

Important Work Performed; Financed By Twin City Community Chest

In these days, as never before, when the importance of more and better health consciousness is being emphasized and programs undertaken by various sources toward this accomplishment, it is well to recall to the public mind the work of a local institution, quietly established, slightly over 14 years ago to render a specific health service and a community need in its parish-wide civic project and which has obtained a marked and outstanding record for good in its field of endeavor.

After a few months of preliminary study and work by its sponsor in the latter part of 1936, the Monroe Maternal & Infant Welfare Clinic became a reality and opened its doors to the public in February, 1937 to those families whose income was so meagre that it was found, in many cases, no medical care had been provided and this, with resultant mortality among the mothers appallingly high in Monroe, West Monroe and in the parish. With the mother gone, the home broken, the father unable to cope with the pathetic situation, too the children were thrown upon the mercy of the community and became a public charge. No agency existed at that time to alleviate such need.

The clinic sponsor, the local court of the Catholic Daughters of America, undertook to help remedy this community situation and began its work by striking at the very root of the trouble: offering and providing good medical care, dietary foods, medicine and other maternal requisites for the mother, layettes and milk for the newborn child.

So great was the need for this type of welfare work—the growth in case load was phenomenal—the sponsor realized it must broaden its program to include emergency hospitalization and a needed increase in finances to meet the new expansion cost became necessary. Two years later, the clinic became an affiliate agency of the newly organized Twin City Community Chest.

The plan and program as carried out daily at the clinic is one designed specifically for those mothers residing in the Twin Cities and Ouachita parish, whose income falls within the lower financial level: those who cannot afford to pay for private care for this much needed medical attention.

In this regard, it might be emphasized, the applicant to the clinic service is required to present a written request from a local physician stating that this service be extended the patient. Under no circumstance is the patient accepted for care at the clinic who has made, or who is able to make arrangement for her care with a private physician. Likewise, the family income is checked and verified for acceptance to the hospitalization program that is also included in the clinic plan for the best in medical care for the mother and infant.

It is a matter of record that during the past 14 years of operation over 3,100 patients have applied, found eligible and received some phase of the clinic's medical and social welfare program. It is also the proud record that but two maternal mortalities, have occurred during this period of time.

This is a well earned tribute to those loyal local physicians who have contributed so much to the work of the Monroe Maternal Infant Welfare Clinic at so small amonetary remuneration to themselves, and have so large a part in the successful operation of this civic institution: Dr. W. L. Spencer, Dr. Fred Marx, Dr. Arthur Miller, Dr. G. A. Varino, Dr. Wood Scott, Dr. Irma Jones, Dr. W. E. Jones, Dr. J. W. Cummins, Dr. H. E. Guerriero, Dr. Morgan Simonton and Dr. Prentice Gray, Jr.

The work of the clinic, which is held each Tuesday and Wednesday beginning at 12 noon is opened to all regardless of race or creed.

The clinic is operated as a co-operative affair and made possible through three contributing factors, each equally vital to its successful operation in offering a complete medical, nursing and hospital care to the less financially favored of our citizenry.

Located in the Health Center, St. John at Grammont, housing, laboratory facilities, nursing service and clinician care is furnished by the local health department for prenatal and postnatal care and this is offered free to those who apply; the St. Francis Sanitarium cooperates in offering a complete hospitalized delivery service to those who desire such, at a very nominal fee; the Twin City Community Chest provides funds for the social welfare: food, medicine, maternal requisites and emergency care for the mother, layettes and milk for the infant, and for the administration, by its social welfare director of this needed civic organization that is doing so much for the health and well being of future citizens of the less financially privileged families among us, and for the community in general, a definite service.

The case load at present time, 396, and there were 29 deliveries in month of January.

Slick Stayman Bid Has Possibilities

By Oswald Jacoby

Many bridge players think that the Stayman Convention is used only to show interest in a major suit. This is not so, however, as Samuel M. Stayman points out in his new book Expert Bidding.

When the hand shown today was played, West knew that North's response of two clubs was the Stayman Convention, asking South to show a biddable major suit if he had one. (By coincidence, North actually had a club suit.)

South bid two spades, naturally enough, and then North went to two no-trump. Clearly, North had no real support for spades, since he did not raise that suit. Hence, if North had any support at all for a major suit, it had to be for hearts.

West had been wondering whether to open from four hearts to the queen or from five small diamonds. When he reasoned that North was likely to have some four-card holding in hearts, West decided to lead a diamond rather than a heart.

Opening lead—♦ 3

The diamond opening lead allowed South to make the contract. He won the ace of diamonds and led a low club towards dummy. West properly played low, hoping dummy's ace would be played.

South had already made up his mind to finesse through West for at least one honor in clubs. Hence he finessed dummy's nine of clubs at the second trick. This won the trick.

Declarer next cashed the ace of clubs and gave up a club trick to West. No matter what West returned, South was bound to make at least nine tricks.

If West made his opening lead in hearts instead of in diamonds, East would take the ace of hearts and would reurn the suit. Now when West got in with the king of clubs, his side could run the rest of the hearts. Four heart tricks and a club would defeat the contract.

Q—With both sides vulnerable the player at your right deals and bids one heart. You hold: Spades K-J-9-5, Heart 4, Diamonds A-K-J-9-8, Clubs K-6-3. What do you do?

A—Double. If your partner bids spades, you will raise with enthusiasm. If he bids clubs, you will pass or bid two diamonds.

EDDIE MARTIN

First Baptist Church, West Monroe

February 18th through March 4th

Eddie Martin, Evangelist

Evangelist Eddie Martin, heralded young preacher is coming to the First Baptist Church of West Monroe to conduct a two-week Evangelistic Campaign starting today. Mr. Martin's ministry was featured recently in a nation-wide Associated Press article telling of the conversion of an entire football team under his ministry in West Virginia.

In his first campaign this year at Hilton, West Virginia, a town of 5,000 over 500 people were converted in 15 days. In several cities he has spoken to the largest crowds ever to assemble to hear an Evangelist.

Reverend Jaroy Weber, pastor of the First Baptist Church of West Monroe, states that Eddie Martin has come here direct from Martinsburg, West Virginia, where he was sponsored by twenty-six churches in the greatest Evangelistic effort ever undertaken by that city.

Here is an opportunity to hear one of America's most successful young preachers. The meetings will continue for 15 days.

Jimmie Davis, Song Leader

Jimmie Davis, song leader for the campaign, hails from Long Beach, California. Jimmie is a tenor with wide experience in Evangelistic work. His recordings are heard on many stations. For several seasons he was feature soloist with the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra. During the campaign he will present several sacred concerts.

Our Children

GOOD BOOKS

Good books are necessities for children. The radio is entertaining at certain times, the television set is amusing, but the time must come when a child needs a book in which to lose himself in wonderment and delight.

The programs offered children are not always what one would prefer. Those sessions before the radio and television must be rationed if children are to be kept in sound mental and physical health, and this is where the good book enters.

There are so many of them today, and at a price everyone can afford. The picture books for little children are marvels of beauty. The stories are so carefully tooled to their needs that there can be no difficulty in finding the right one for the right child.

Nor is there any dearth of good books for older children. They can read adult books (of course, they should be chosen wisely).

The classics are always in order. I know that Pilgrim's Progress is hard reading for an adolescent boy or girl, but I would read pieces of it to them so that in time to come they may find values in it and profit by them almost unconsciously. Robinson Crusoe presents the same difficulty. But The House of Seven Gables, The Scarlet Letter, Silas Marner, Dickens' Christmas Carol, A Tale of Two Cities, can be read by any young person able to read.

I stress these old books because they have values that should not be overlooked. Along with them is the host of books published almost daily. These are in the libraries, and few children are not within reach of a library. The habit of going there for a reference book, for help in research, for lighter reading, is one of the best that children can form. Parents and teachers can encourage this, help to interest the children in the activities of the library and teach them how to make the best use of it.

Leave a few good books about the house. Don't be too anxious about taking care of them. Books whose jackets are fresh and shining do not speak of childish hands and eager use. Let the good book be read even though its back is broken and it pages rainsoaked. The point to consider is that the good book is being used. It should be.

A child's health and happiness are both in your hands. Dr. Patri expresses an appreciation of this grave responsibility in his leaflet, P-26, "A Parent's Prayer." To obtain a copy, send ten cents in coin to him, care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

MARCH OF DIMES GAINS

—Catahoula's contribution to the March of Dimes this year is greater than that of last, according to E. E. Johnson, farm agent, and drive chairman. Final reports are not yet in, with the drive slowed down by the recent freeze, Johnson stated, but $980.62 has been turned in. This exceeds the total collection of $958.42 for last year.

Poor eating habits formed in childhood are often the reason for food preferences and choices that lead to overweight in adult life.

New Rules Strengthen Canasta

By Oswald Jacoby
Written for NEA Service

New York—(NEA)—Two continents have joined forces to tighten the canasta rules.

The Canast.. Rules Commissions of the U. S. and Argentina, in a combined action, revised and strengthened the laws of the South American card game.

Here are the major alterations:

1. Insufficient meld: If you meld 80, when you actually need 90, or make any other insufficient meld, you now have two simple choices. You can add cards from your hand to make it sufficient, with no harm done. Or you can put the cards back in your hand and add 10 points to the amount you need for your initial meld. If you needed 90, you now need 100.

2. Wild cards: From now on, you can only use three wild cards in any canasta. No more adding deuces and jokers to a canasta over that limit of three. This was the original South American rule.

3. Red threes: If the last card in the pack is a red three, the player who draws it simply puts it down. He may neither meld anything nor discard anything. He gets his 100 points, and the hand ends right there.

4. Black threes: You can't meld black threes with a wild card any more. Under old rules, if you go out you could put down two black threes and a wild card. From now on, that's out. Also, if the dealer turns up a black three, he must turn up another card to cover it, just as he does when he turns up a wild card or a red three.

5. Double melds: As of the new rules, you'll no longer be able to have two melds of the same rank. Any time you have two melds of kings, for example, you must join them.

6. Illegal melds: Any illegal meld—such as melding out without a canasta—other than an insufficient meld now requires that you put the cards back in your hand and pay a penalty of 100 points.

OSWALD JACOBY: Legally, the local rules don't count.

There are a few other slight changes, affecting minor irregularities that don't come up very often.

One change that was considered, but not adopted, may be a blow to some people. There are places where they play a local rule about closed canastas. These folks don't allow you to pick up a discard matching a closed canasta. The official rules always said that you could pick up the pack if the discarded card matched one of your closed canastas.

The National Canasta Rules Commission gave serious consideration to that local rule, but decided it hurts the game. So the official rule still stands—pick up that discard if you can; it's legal.

This present rule revision is actually the first official change since the game was introduced. Legally, all the local rules don't count.

The new laws are the result of considerable bargaining between the U. S. and Argentina rules commissions. The seven man U. S. group, of which I was chairman, and the Argentina group, headed by Mrs. Josefina Artayeta de Viel, conferred at great length to standardize play on the two continents.

It was a case of give and take. They changed some of their rules, adopting ours. For one thing, they agreed to use our method of putting down red threes. They'd always put them down at once, before their turn came to play, getting that out of the way at the beginning. From now on, South Americans will do it the way we've always done.

In turn, we agreed to adopt some of their rules, among them the ones mentioned at the beginning. Now, if you go to Buenos Aires, you'll be able to play canasta with the Argentinians without worrying about rule differences.

In preparing corned beef and cabbage add the cabbage to the beef just about ten minutes before serving; this way the cabbage retains its fine flavor and color as well as a maximum amount of Vitamin C.

Korea Winter Echoes Valley Forge Ordeal

HISTORIC PAINTING—Washington at Valley Forge

AP Newsfeatures

American troops in Korea are enduring a bitter and discouraging winter in this year of 1951, but it's not the first time U.S. soldiers have encountered dark days.

It was exactly 173 years ago this month that Americans at Valley Forge under the command of Gen. George Washington, passed through one of the most trying times in American military history. The general marked his 46th birthday with his troops in that snow-swept Pennsylvania camp.

Washington's anxiety was increased when word reached Valley Forge shortly before his birthday that Congress had appointed a new war board, without consulting him. Moreover, he knew that a clique of generals was conspiring to supplant him as commander - in chief.

The Continental Army, which had fought through three years for independence, was at an all time low, American forces under Washington had dwindled to approximately 8,000 ill-fed and half-naked soldiers.

Many men died of pneumonia in log hut hospitals after sleeping on the snow without so much as a clump of straw to put between themselves and the frozen ground. Ohters spent the long nights huddled around meager fires.

Washington reported to the president of Congress that "We have no less than 2,873 men in camp unfit for duty because they are barefooted and otherwise naked."

Less than 25 miles away, in the capital of the United Colonies at Philadelphia, approximately 19,000 British troops were quartered for the winter. British officers were either unaware of the exhausted condition of the American forces at Valley Froge, or they were too comfortably quartered to attack.

One of the greatest tasks facing Washington and his officers was to supply the troops adequately. The supply system set up by the Continental Congress was a mess. Two generals headed the commissary, one for buying, the other for issuing supplies. Their subordinates were not accountable to them, but were directly responsible to Congress. Many purchasing agents made fortunes from fat commissions.

As a result Americans at Valley Forge had to get by on skimpy bread and meat rations. Soldiers had to yoke themselves to makeshift carts and wagons to haul wood into the camp.

Despite the weight of responsibility that rested on his shoulders, and the almost insurmountable hardships he faced, Washington maintained his hopeful attitude and bolstered the courage and spirit of his men.

Soars 42,000 Ft. In Glider

AP Newsfeatures

San Diego, Calif.—The man who has floated higher than anyone (official recognition pending) is William S. Ivans, Jr., of suburban La Mesa.

The instruments on his glider plane showed that he attained an altitude of 42,000 feet Dec. 31, 1951, in a flight over California's Owens Valley. The record of 33,500 feet is held by John Robinson of Los Angeles.

IVANS with oxygen mask and model of glider.

Ivans, an aeronautical engineer, said he manged to glide into an updraft after releasing his glider from a tow plane at 13,000 feet.

The soaring flight, which lasted three hours and ten minutes, was the achievement of an ambition of several years by the young engineer.

His mark has been submitted for official approval as a new record to the Soaring Society of America, the National Aeronautical Association and the Federation Aeronautique Internationale in Paris.

Originally competitors, the radio and the phonograph were first combined into a single instrument about 1925.

Survival Rifle Designed To Save Stranded Flyers

By ODELL HANSON
AP Newsfeatures

Omaha—A light weight "survival rifle" is the latest aid for aviators who find themselves forced down away from civilization.

The weapon, so small when disassembled that it'll fit into the pocket of a flying suit, is being mass-produced for use in survival kits issued to bomber crews of the Strategic Air Command.

Bombers of SAC, the advance striking arm of the U.S. Air Force, range day and night over much of the world on long distance training flights. Survival kits are issued to help keep the fliers alive should they crash land or parachute in wild areas and have to fend for themselves while awaiting rescue.

A 22 With Bolt Action

The survival rifle, .22 caliber with a bolt action can kill small and medium game. This could be the only food supply available.

Ordnance experts and sportsmen hunters of the Strategic Air Command pooled their skills to develop the rifle under the watchful eye of the SAC commander, Lt. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, an experienced hunter himself.

The rifle weighs only 3½ pounds and makes up into a flat package 14 inches long and two inches thick when disassembled. The overall length with stock extended is 33 inches. The rifle holds five cartridges, four in the clip and one in the chamber.

It's Not for Bears

The rifle is not ideal for hunting because of its small caliber but, properly used, can kill small deer, gazelle and antelope, besides small game and fish which are most often encountered. It is fairly accurate up to 150 yards.

A pamphlet packed with the rifle gives tips on aiming and advises against shooting bear and other large animals which become enraged when wounded.

Next time you make a cake with a packaged mix frost it with an orange - coconut concoction. Just cream three tablespoons of butter or margarine with two cups of confectioners sugar and thin with a quarter cup of orange juice until it is smooth. Beat in a quarter cup of orange juice until it is smooth. Beat in a quarter cup of shredded coconut before spreading on the cake. This makes about one-and-one-half cups of frosting.

TEEN TALK

BY VIVIAN BROWN

By Vivian Brown

Kids ought to get back to the soil. Farming can offer fine opportunities to boys and girls who like the outdoors and are willing to learn and work the soil. So says handsome Dick Sprawls, a champion sweet potato grower from South Carolina.

It can pay off, too, says 15-year-old Dick, who raised 32 bushels of No. 1 yams on his acre plot in the annual 4-H contest conducted by Clemson College. Along with ten other young prize winners he recently enjoyed a trip to New York as a reward for his labors as the guest of a chain of food stores. Besides, his sweet potatoes sold at a $2.75 a bushel, putting a nice little piece of change for college in his piggy bank.

Dick wouldn't necessarily suggest you raise sweet potatoes as your first crop, if you do decide to experiment. As a matter of fact, you'd eat your sweet potatoes, by gosh, if you knew all the work a fellow puts in growing them. Says Dick:

"Sweet potatoes like to be planted in a high bed, quite some distance apart. When harvested they must be handled like eggs because they bruise easily. Then they must be put in a heated building at about 5 degrees until the cure begins. They are left two weeks, then put at 50 degrees in another building."

Lots of young moderns who have been baby sitting would be well trained for nursing sweet potatoes along, but it is best to start your farming with a simple vegetable garden, suggests Dick.

Right now Dick, who lives on 450 acres in Barnwell county, expects a hydrogen plant to move in and it is possible he and his family will be looking for another farm. But he'll continue to grow sweet potatoes no matter what.

Will Place Gas Lines In Ground

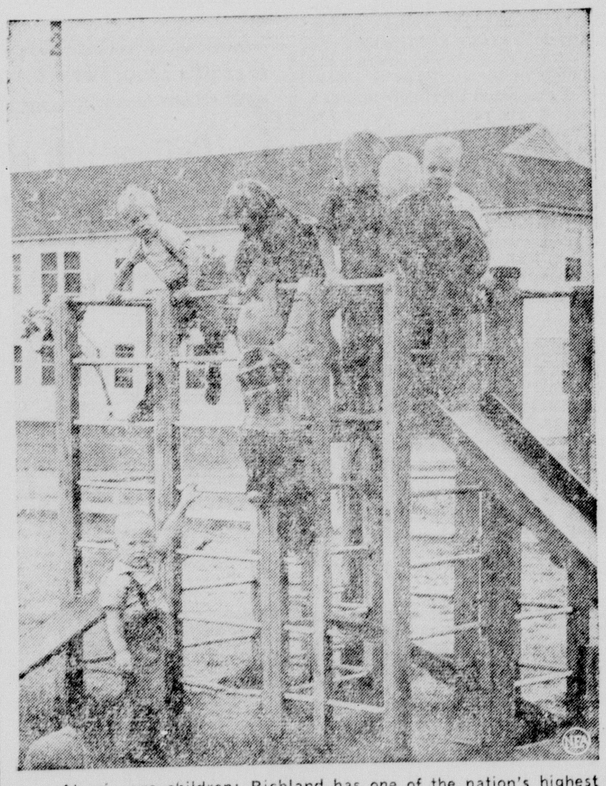
Jonesville, Feb. 17.—(Special)—The natural gas pipeline serving Jonesville and several customers on U. S. highway 84 east of town will be buried in the near future to cut down expansion and contraction from changes in the weather. This was agreed by members of the town council this week, although now formal action was taken.

The pipeline connects the towns distribution system with a trunk line of the Interstate Natural Gas Company near Ferriday. It was placed above the ground on advice of an engineer who said the soil in the area contains chemicals which would quickly corrode the metal pipe. No expansion joints were placed in the line and changes in the weather have caused it to uproot posts from which it was suspended and twice on extremely cold mornings, the line has broken, leaving the town's customers without gas at breakfast time.

Mayor Dee Brown stated that a check valve will be installed to hold pressure temporarily in the distribution system even though the line should break. This would mean that a break in the main line could probably be repaired without the customers in town being without fuel. The line will be well coated with a preservative before it is buried.

Richland---The Town The Atom Built

Street scene in atom town: Richland has grown so fast in seven years it has a trailer village for the overflow. But the town has no slums, and bicycles are the biggest hazard.



Atomic age children: Richland has one of the nation's highest birthrates, but there's plenty of places to play.

By FRED ZAVATTERO
NEA Staff Correspondent

Richland, Wash. — (NEA) — "When I found out I was working in an atom factory, I started packing," said an early employe of the Hanford Works at Richland. "But I missed the bus," he added. "Now it would take an atom bomb to make me leave."

The pioneer plutonium worker's attitude explains why Richland has gone from a "boom town" to a "home town" in seven short years. Nobody wants to leave.

On the Columbia river in southeastern Washington, it is the housing community for the workers their families who operate the Hanford Works. The plant is the only one in the U.S. producing the nuclear fuel, plutonium, on an industrial scale.

Richland has grown from an original polulation of 250 to more than 24,000. But not without some pains; the residents had to be convinced that atomic energy was here to stay and Richland was, too.

The workmen also had to be convinced they wouldn't suffer some weird disease and disappear in a mushroom cloud of smoke. When they were shown that the accident rate in Hanford was lower than in the average business office, most of them lost their fears.

Awesome sights of atom workers dressed in protective clothing have appeared in popular magazines.

"The most dangerous thing in Richland is the bicycle," one clerical worker complains. "Children here graduate from baby buggies to bicycles. It's a wonder they learn to walk."

As prime contractor to the U.S. Atomic Commission, the General Electric Co. took over the operation of the plutonium plant and Richland from E. I. du Pont de Nemours, Inc., in 1946.

But the government owns the 620 square miles where the Hanford Works and Richland are built, and no can own any land or his own home. G. E. acts as the landlord for 6000 government houses, all the land and half the business buildings.

"It's a job we wish somebody else had," one company official complains. "The men don't like to have their boss as their landlord. And G.E. doesn't like to meddle in the men's private affairs.

"During the war, when things were handled Army style, through channels, some of the wives expected the company to bawl their husbands out for getting home late to dinner."

Richland is politically peaceful. It has no elective officials. The city is operated by a Community Manager appointed by the company. A community council, while it has no authority, acts as advisor to the community manager. Chief of Police H. W. Strock's biggest job is enforcing security regulations. "Weve had only a handful of customers for our new jail," the chief said. "And they were only overnight guests."

Only a few native Richlanders are left in the community, but many new ones have joined their ranks since 1943. The city has one of the highest birthrates in the nation—well over 20 per cent higher than the national average.

"This is an ideal place to raise children," one mother said. "They have plenty of room to play and lots of friends. Best of all, there are no slums.

Richlands churches and social organizations have grown and invested in buildings. Sixteen church organizations have started a construction program that will cost more than a million dollars in the next few years. There are more than 300 social and recreational clubs.

"Everybody belongs to something," one commission member remarked. "A few people get too ambitious. One man was president or vice-president of 21 clubs. He almost had a nervous breakdown trying to get from one meeting to the other."

The single workers have not been forgotten. Unmarried men and women live in separate dormitories attractively decorated.

"Nobody seems to stay single very long,' one young stenographer said. "I've had three different roommates in six months. I'm getting married next month myself.'

Many Donate Time For Scout Work

Over 300 Scoutmasters, Cubmasters, and Den Mothers and their assistants each week give from two to eight hours of their own time to the leadership of the Scouts and Cubs of the Ouachita Valley Council. Considering that the average time given to the leadership of boys each week by each of these leaders approximates five hours, the staggering total of over 25,000 hours of such service is amassed each year.

These leaders give this time to the leadership of boys not only because of a sense of duty to their community and to humanity in general, but also because of the pleasure they derive from being of assistance in contributing to the character building and citizenship training of our future citizens.

These leaders are not men and women of leisure who have taken up leadership in Scouting and Cubbing to while away their unoccupied hours, but to the contrary are almost without exception busy business and professional men, or busy housewives with responsibilities of their own homes and families.

Many of these leaders have sons of their own in whom they are naturally interested, but who extend their interest to include other boys. Others do not have boys of their own, but desire to make a worthwhile contribution to the lives of others while their lives are in a plastic stage.

These leaders not only give their time to their own units, but also spend many hours in receiving training and attending group meetings to better prepare themselves to carry out their responsibilities.

Mississippi Boy Hits Paris Jackpot Designing Collection Of Clothes

By Rosette Hargrove

Paris — (NEA) — William (Bill) Underwood, 32, of Bells, Miss. will go down in fashion history as the first American to entirely design and execute a collection for a Paris house.

The couturier giving Bill his great chance is Marcel Rochas, who started in business 25 years ago.

Rochas says he was finding it more and more difficult to concentrate on the creative side of his business because he had become so wrapped up in the administrative end, including a perfume sideline.

"Besides," Rochas adds, "after 25 years a designed inevitably repeats himself, having reached the full cycle."

The fact that a collection represents an outlay of at least 15 million francs ($42,800) apparently gave Rochas no qualms.

"Having seen some of Underwood's sketches," he says, "I needed no convincing that this young man had undeniable talents and I welcomed the opportunity of opening my house to a young creator."

Bill began designing and making clothes for his family and friends in Mississippi when he was in his teens. He tried a year's stint as an engineering draftsman in New York, but still had fashion on his mind. A year ago he came to Paris to study dress designing seriously.

"All along I have felt something like Alice in Wonderland," says the dark, curly-haired southerner, "right down to the looking glass."

So for his first collection, many of his styles are inspired by the herione of Lewis Carroll's famous book.

COTTON-COUNTRY COUTURIER is Bill Underwood, of Bells, Miss. Says Bill: "I have felt something like Alice in Wonderland."

Right now he's concentrating on dusk-to-dawn models. But he's not sticking just to dresses. He's designed the hats to go with them—and an "Alice in Wonderland" idea for hair-dos and makeup, too.

AT THE PARAMOUNT

John Wayne gives the orders in this scene from "Operation Pacific" the submarine epic, opening at the Paramount Theater Wednesday for a four-day engagement. Patricia Neal supplies the romantic interest and in the supporting cast are Ward Bond and Scott Forbes.

'Operation Pacific,' Submarine Film, Due

The great undersea war which raged in the Pacific, bitter encounters between American submarines and enemy surface craft are portrayed in Warner Bros.' submarine epic, "Operation Pacific," which begins its local engagement at the Paramount Theatre on Wednesday.

Co-Starring John Wayne and Patricia Neal, "Operation Pacific" marks Wayne's first film under his new Warner Bros. contract and provides the stalwart actor with the kind of action role he does best. For Miss Neal, the film serves as a change of pace from her "bad girl" role in "The Breaking Point." She is seen as a navy nurse in love with a submarine commander whose devotion to submarines nearly puts his love for Pat up on a reef.

The screen drama takes the spectator right into the compact interior of the deadly "pigboats" and shows how the courageous, highly-trained crews go about their dangerous business, manning sub attacks with their torpedoes, landing contact parties and supplies for underground forces, evacuating refugees and personnel from enemy territory, reconnoitering and preparatory to invasion. Previewers acclaimed "Operation Pacific" one of the finest tributes to our submarine service ever filmed.

In addition, the studio spared no effort in its attempt to make the sea saga as authentic as possible by signing as technical adviser, Vice Admiral Charles Lockwood, U. S. navy, Ret., who was commander of all submarines in the Pacific during World War II.

Ward Bond and Scott Forbes head the supporting cast of "Operation Pacific," which also includes William Campbell, Philip Carey and Katherine Givney.

George Waggner directed the film for Warner Bros.

Dazed and defenseless!—Mala Powers, whose moving performance in the leading feminine role of "Outrage," an Ida Lupino production, has attracted widespread attention. She is seen as the victim of unprovoked attack, the picture tracing the effect of this experience on the girl and her relation to society. Miss Powers and Tod Andrews, both comparatively unknown players, were chosen by Director Dupino for the leading roles in the picture, which RKO Radio distributes.

Diversified Roles Portrayed By Mala Powers, Screen, Find As Heroine In 'Outrage'

Mala Powers, featured feminine lead in "Outrage," The Filmakers' first presentation for RKO Radio distribution, has not only one of the strongest dramatic roles of the season, but one which also displays the character portrayed in an unusually diversified list of occupations. Miss Powers is called upon to operate equipment in a flour mill, to pick and pack citrus crops in an orange grove, to take dictation as a secretary, to act as a bookkeeper and to drive a ranch truck and other motorized farm equipment. As her director, Ida Lupino, remarked: "If her training for this picture sticks, and her acting career should fail, Mala can count on a complement of callings which would stand any wage-earner in good stead." However, there is little prospect of Mala Powers' film career folding, from present indications. So splendid a performance did she register in "Outrage" that even before the picture's shooting was completed Samuel Goldwyn had signed her for a leading role in his forthcoming important production of "Edge of Doom."

"Outrage," which was written for the screen by Producer Collier Young, Malvin Wald and Director Ida Lupino, boasts not only one, but two "screen discoveries." In addition to Miss Powers, who was comparatively unknown when assigned this role, is Tod Andrews, playing opposite her in a featured lead as a young minister, also a film "unknown."

"Outrage' 'shows the after-effects on a young girl who has been the victim of an unprovoked criminal assault, her shrinking from the sympathy, which she mistakes as pity, of her family and associates, her attempt to better her lot by flight, her ever-present fear and recurrent conviction that her past is again and again confronting her—until the crisis, which brings realization that the only way she can solve her problem is to face life and live it bravely. To this end she is helped by the kindly aid of an understanding young minister, the part played by Andrews.

The picture, despite its serious theme, presents nothing abhorrent or forbidding on the screen, but is compounded largely of inviting scenes of family and farm life, of healthy occupation and lovely physical vistas. The important supporting roles fall to Robert Clarke, Raymond Bond, Lilian Hamilton, Rita Lupino, Kenneth Patterson and Jerry Paris. An interpolated song, "Didn't You Know," is contributed by John Franco.

Warner's 'Storm Warning' Soon On Local Screen

"Storm Warning" comes to the Paramount screen today for a three day engagement!

What happens in a little town when a girl accidentally is witness to a murder by a band of hoodlums and then is torn by her sense of justice on the one hand and stark fear on the other, forms the background of the new, widely-heralded Warner Bros. film.

Ginger Rogers, in a sharp departure from previous roles, plays one of the most dramatic parts of her career in this film story. Co-starring with her are Ronald Reagan as the prosecutor, Doris Day as her sister, and Steve Cochran as the latter's husband, an arrogant brute whose act of murder brings to light the activities of the cowardly gang.

Arrived one evening in the "friendly" town to visit her sister, she sees a man shot down in cold blood and she recognizes one of the killers. At first determined to bear witness, she reneges in a dramatic courtroom scene after she has realized that the murderer was the husband of her sister. When later, through her brother-in-law's own lecherous actions, she resolves to reveal the truth, she is kidnapped by the mob and flogged in another climatic scene.

JOY—NOW SHOWING THRU WEDNESDAY

'The Toast Of New Orleans' Will Be Shown At The Joy

In "The Toast of New Orleans," now showing at the Joy Theatre, M-G-M has fashioned a beguiling vehicle for the second appearance of Kathryn Grayson and Mario Lanza, who created a smashing success together as the singing sweethearts of "That Midnight Kiss." The new Technicolor musical also stars David Niven in a romantic triangle involving a glamorous opera star, her manager and an uninhibited fisherman of the Louisiana Cajun country.

Miss Grayson, of course, is Suzeete, the opera star; Lanza, Pepe the singing fisherman; and Niven, Jacques, the impresario who persuades Pepe to train for a career with the New Orleans opera. Together with his disgusted Uncle Nicky (J. Carrol Naish), Pepe gives up the carefree life of a fisherman to become a professional singer and "gentleman." Tutored in the social graces by Suzette, Pepe gradually loses the natural charm and virility which attracted him to her in the first place, with the result that although he becomes a magnificent opera singer he no longer is a man. It takes the combined efforts of the self-sacrificing Jacques, Uncle Nicky, and a couple of Pepe's old Cajun friends to wake up our hero. And in the final scenes, in which he enacts the passionate Naval officer of "Madame Butterfly," Pepe proves to Suzette that he can be both an opera star and a satisfactory lover.

Miss Grayson and Lanza once again prove a captivating team both in their romantic and song moments, and the new picture provides them with a magnificent musical score ranging from romantic numbers and humorous folk songs of the Cajun country to some of the world's most famous operatic arias. David Niven is excellently cast as the suave impresario. J. Carrol Naish wins many of the laughs as the concertina - playing Uncle Nicky and there are other good supporting contributions by James Mitchell, Richard Hageman, Clinton Sundberg and Rita Moreno, whose fiery native dance furnishes a high spot.

Producer Joe Pasternak has taken full advantage of his Techicolor possibilities in setting the stage for this eye-filling production and for the shift of scene from the picturesque Cajun fishing village to colorful New Orleans of 1905 offers a striking variety of settings and costumes. Norman Taurog's direction achieves a neat balance between the story's narrative moments and singing sequences and he has also seen to it that there are plenty of laughs. As a result, "The Toast of New Orleans" comes as a brilliant successor to the first Grayson-Lanza co-starring hit. It is a musical entertainment, spelled with a capital "E".

BUSINESS MIRROR

By Sam Dawson

New York, Feb. 16.—(AP)— Food prices continue to push higher. The harried housewife is being told today: "Courage, things will get better—after they get worse."

Most foods are in abundant supply but most of them are beyond price controls. In the case of the big exception—meat, now selling at record high prices—the effectiveness of stop-gap controls is still being tested.

The housewife's chief hope seems to lie in the assurance that farmers are fattening more livestock than ever, that they plan to plant more acreage than ever, and that the nation's food processing and distributing industry is bigger and more efficient than ever. They add up to some price relief this summer and fall.

So maybe she can hold the family budget together until harvest time, with the help of some new price controls which congress is to be asked to consider.

Some help in the meat price situation is also seen in the lenten decline in demand for meat products. Dun & Bradstreet reports today that retail meat sales declined a little this week. But total dollar volume of retail food sales continued above a year ago, while wholesale dollar sales volume was appreciably above a year ago.

The department of agriculture reports a record number of cattle and calves being fattened for slaughter, the nation's sheep population on the increase for the first time since 1942, and an crease in the spring pig crop seemingly certain. The department estimates meat production this year will take care of all military needs and still provide three pounds more of meat per person for civilians than last year—when they certainly didn't stint themselves much on meat eating.

But the department also announced today it will support corn prices this year at $1.54 a bushel or better, seven cents more than last year. And this will keep the cost of feeding livestock high.

National - American Wholesale Grocers Association members, meeting in Chicago, are told the food situation is favorable, with much better wholesaling and retailing plants than in 1942. But the members are warned that the production costs of food canners will go up at least 10 per cent this season, implying further pressure for higher prices on canned foods.

Hal Boyle's Notebook

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The fate of Korea in the long run depends on G I Kim.

He is the native equivalent of GI Joe and when Joe finally goes home it is going to be up to Private Kim to defend his own country.

Whether he can do it is doubtful. For after nearly eight months of war the stature of Private Kim as a soldier is still in question. No one is sure just what he can do—and can't do—in combat.

Right now a fresh army of 200,000 to 300,000 private Kims is being built up in south Korea. It should be ready for action some time this spring and put new punch into the Republic of Korea's fighting power.

"The big problem with the R. O. K.'s is that they simply won't fight the Chinese on an overall basis," said an American staff officer. "They are scared to death of them. A few units have stood up well against the Chinese, but others just disintegrated completely."

There are many reasons for this. Here are three:

1. The average south Korean recruit hasn't had enough basic training to take the shock of major battle.

2. He knows that for centuries in the orient Korea was known as "little brother" and China as "big brother."

3. The R. O. K. divisions are smaller than American divisions and lack their artillery and tank strength.

What kind of a fellow is Private Kim Generally, he is a rather dazed young country boy who has spent most of his life padding around a rice paddy. He doesn't have much education and knows little about the clash of international ideologies that has made his land a bloody battleground. His chief interest is in his family and his rice crop.

Going into the army was to him a shattering experience. He may have had only ten days of training—fired one clip from his rifle—before he was put into the front lines. He has been told that he is now a soldier, but he doesn't really feel like one. Nobody in his family ever was a soldier. All he feels is lost and lonely and homesick.

Suddenly one night he sees enemy campfires sprout in the distance on each side of his position. That is the beginning of the Chinese strategy of nocturnal terror. Strang sounds ring out—blowing whistles, weird calls, clashing cymbols. Then a bugle calls shrilly. And through the darkness wave after wave of quilt-covered Chinese rush toward him, firing burp guns and screaming at the top of their voices.

Is it any wonder that Private Kim often drops his rifle and heads back full speed in the general direction of the rice paddy he remembers best

But basically he has everything it takes to make a first class fighting man. He is stoical. He can walk 35 miles in a day with a full pack. He knows how to live in the open. And he can endure more hardships and get by with less food than perhaps any other oriental.

Today the new Private Kims coming into the new R. O. K. army are getting the longer period of training they need. They are being taught the battle techniques they should know. And more and more they are being indoctrinated in what they are fighting for—a free country. The war is beginning to have a real meaning to many. They are developing a patriotism they never had before.

And the R. O. K. army itself is now more experienced. It has a core of battle disciplined officers. Some of its divisions are rated at top quality.

The new Private Kim will probably get their best test against the Chinese this spring. On their performance will hinge the real future of Korea.

"These men should be the equal of any soldiers in the world," said one American officer. He added thoughtfully:

"All they really need is the tradition of victory."

But it's up to Private Kim to start that tradition himself.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
Copyright, 1951, by News Syndicate Co. Inc.

TERRY, BOY! IF I EVER GET TO BE A CIVILIAN AGAIN AND MEET UP WITH THE PENCIL PUSHER WHO ASSIGNED US TO SNAPPER BRASSARD'S SQUADRON, I'LL WATER HIS MIMEOGRAPH INK.

THE COLONEL WANTED US ON DECK AT 1500 HOURS, CHAZZ. WE'D BETTER NOT BE LATE.

WE SHOULD SELL TICKETS. THIS'LL BE JUST ANOTHER HUMAN SACRIFICE FIESTA — STARRING US.

WE'VE NEVER FLOWN F-80'S, CHAZZ, AND, AS SQUADRON C.O., THE SNAPPER CAN CHECK US OUT IN THEM, HIMSELF.

IT'S O.K., CHAZZ. THIS WAY WE CAN SHOW HIM WE'RE GOOD ENOUGH TO FLY WITH HIS "FLYING HAMMER" OUTFIT.

GOOD AFTERNOON, GENTLEMEN. I DARE SAY WE BOTH FIND THIS DISTASTEFUL, SO LET'S GET IT OVER WITH... CHARLES, I TAKE YOU FIRST — WHILE I'M FRESH AND IN COMPARATIVELY GOOD HUMOR.

WE'LL USE THIS TWO PLACE TF-80. TAKE THE FORWARD SEAT. FROM THE REAR, I'LL BRIEF YOU ON THE CONTROL AND INSTRUMENT SETUP. THEN YOU'LL TAKE OFF, FLY, AND LAND UNDER MY COACHING.

AND A FEW MOMENTS LATER...

I'VE SEEN BETTER TAKE-OFFS BY A FERRY LEAVING ITS DOCK, CHARLES... NOW, PUT THE SHIP INTO A DIVE. I'M CURIOUS TO SEE IF YOU KNOW UP FROM DOWN.

F-639-1-LB

O.K.! SO HE WANTS A DIVE, EH? WHEN I GET THROUGH WITH THIS JOKER, HE'LL BE WONDERING HOW THE ACORNS GOT IN HIS POCKETS.

NO KIDDIN', ARE YOU GETTIN' YOUR CAR WASHED AGAIN?

AS A MATTER A' FACT, YES.

EMPTY WILLIAMS, YOU'RE EMPTY IN THE HEAD! WHY, YOUR CAR WASN'T EVEN DUSTY!

AS A MATTER A' FACT, IT WASN'T.

THEN WHAT'S THE IDEA?

YOU NOTICE THOSE GUYS USE POLISHING CLOTHS, DON'T YOU?

SURE — THEY USE POLISHING CLOTHS.

AS A MATTER A' FACT, I FIGURE THIS CHAIN OF CARWASH PARLORS USES ABOUT 100 CLOTHS A DAY.

KARL THE CARWASH KING

I THINK I'M BEGINNING TO SEE THE LIGHT, EMPTY.

SURE, WE'VE GOT A TRUCK TRAILER FULL OF DIAPERS. AS A MATTER A' FACT, WE GOT 120,000 OF 'EM!

EMPTY, YOU'RE A GENIUS

AS A MATTER A' FACT, YES.

SOMEBODY OUT HERE WANT TO SEE ME?

YOU'RE "KARL THE CARWASH KING," AIN'T YOU?

THAT'S WHAT THEY CALL ME. I'VE GOT THE BIGGEST CHAIN OF CARWASH PARLORS IN AMERICA. WHAT'S THE COMPLAINT?

AS A MATTER A' FACT, THERE AIN'T NO COMPLAINT.

TELL ME THIS — WHERE DO YOU BUY YOUR POLISHING CLOTHS?

AND IN THE OLD GARAGE.

EMPTY WILLIAMS MUST BE NUTS! TAKE 'EM OUT AND BURN 'EM, I SAY.

YEAH, WHAT CAN YOU DO WITH 120,000 DIAPERS?

MEANWHILE —

WELL, WE FOUND YOUR TRACTOR. THE CARGO AND TRAILER WERE INSURED, SO ALL YOU CAN DO IS SIT TIGHT TILL YOU HEAR FROM US.

THAT'S ONE NICE THING ABOUT THIS HOUSE OF MINE. YOU CAN'T MISLAY SO MUCH AS A SINGLE BUBBLE.

GEE, ALICE! REMEMBER THE TIME YOU MISLAID AN EGG?

BUT I WAS VERY YOUNG AND INEXPERIENCED.

I SUPPOSE YOU FOLKS THINK YOU'RE AWFULLY FUNNY TO HIDE MY HAT AND WATCH ME HUNT FOR IT.. BUT IF I'M LATE TO THE OFFICE AND GET FIRED, YOU'LL LAUGH OUT OF THE OTHER SIDE OF YOUR FACE!

THERE'S NOTHING UNDER HERE BUT A LITTLE LINT.

THIS HAT WAS OUT IN MY KENNEL, BUT I DON'T SUPPOSE IT'S THE ONE HE WANTS.

BUT I TELL YOU, FREDDIE, NOBODY HAS TOUCHED YOUR OLD HAT.. AND YOU'LL FIND IT JUST WHEREVER YOU TOSSED IT THE LAST TIME YOU TOOK IT OFF!

OH, SLUG, I HOPE YOU'RE NOT SITTING ON FREDDIE'S HAT!

ARE YOU SURE YOU WORE IT HOME FROM CLUB LAST NIGHT? YOU DIDN'T BRING YOUR WRIST WATCH OR YOUR CUFF LINKS

WELL, IF I AM, I'D BETTER JUST STAY SITTING.

GOSH, SAMPSON! I JUST THOUGHT OF ANOTHER PLACE TO LOOK.. BUT I'M GOING TO WAIT UNTIL POP OFFERS A REWARD!

GEE WHIZ, MYRTLE! WHILE YOU'RE WAITING, HELP ME OUT OF THIS PIANO! IT'S NOT IN HERE!

I OUGHT TO GET SOMETHING FOR NOT BARKING.

NO WONDER YOU COULDN'T FIND IT, POP! YOU PUT IT UP ON THE CLOSET SHELF WHERE IT BELONGS

WELL, OF COURSE I WOULDN'T PAY YOU FOR TELLING A FALSEHOOD, BUT I COULD FIND TWO BITS FOR A LITTLE GIRL WHO JUST SAID NOTHING AT ALL.

TARZAN

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

FINALLY THE LASHING WAS OVER. THE SADISTIC SKAR LAUGHED, "INCIDENTALLY I BOUGHT GAZEL -- SO YOUR FIGHT IN HER BEHALF WAS QUITE FUTILE."

TARZAN WENT BACK TO WORK, HIS SAVAGE FURY AROUSED. HE MUST ESCAPE! THEN, MUCH LATER, THE MOMENT CAME—

—TWO GUARDS PAUSED NEAR HIM TO TALK! HE TURNED CAUTIOUSLY

—THEN SEIZED HIS ADVANTAGE. STEEL-LIKE FINGERS GRIPPED EACH WARRIOR, THERE WAS A SICKENING THUD - THEN SILENCE.

TAKING A GUARD'S KEY, THE APE-MAN RELEASED HIS CHAINS. HE SWIFTLY DONNED ONE UNIFORM FOR DISGUISE, AND, CARRYING THE OTHER, RACED TO DORAK.

"HURRY," EXCLAIMED TARZAN. "WE MUST GET TO SKAR'S QUARTERS. HE HAS PURCHASED GAZEL."

READER'S DIGEST Reported The Same Research Which Proves That Brushing Teeth Right After Eating with

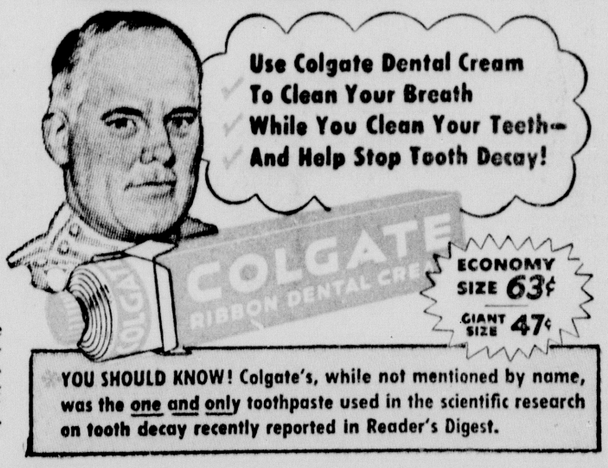
STOPS TOOTH DECAY BEST

Most Thoroughly Proved and Accepted Home Method Of Oral Hygiene Known Today!

Reader's Digest recently reported the very same research which proves that the Colgate way of brushing teeth right after eating stops tooth decay best! The most thoroughly proved and accepted home method of oral hygiene known today!

Yes, and two years' research showed the Colgate way stopped more decay for more people than ever before reported in all dentifrice history! No other dentifrice—ammoniated or not—offers such proof—the most conclusive proof ever reported for a dentifrice of any type!



YOU SHOULD KNOW! Colgate's, while not mentioned by name, was the one and only toothpaste used in the scientific research on tooth decay recently reported in Reader's Digest.
